Although fashions have changed, our interest in beauty contests is as strong as ever. Chris Love and Theresa Stillie model in the Calendar Couple Contest 1981.

1914: Woodrow Wilson was President. World War I broke out in Europe. The Panama Canal opened to traffic for the first time. Tampa was known for its fine cigars; and, seven miles east of Tampa, the little rural community founded by John Brandon proudly opened the doors of its first school to students in grades one through twelve.

1981: The newspapers said that Ronald Reagan, a former movie actor, was the new President. Tampa was the seventh largest seaport in the world, the gateway to the booming Central Florida Sun Belt, and the home of two major sports teams. John Brandon's community boasted a population estimated at 80,000, and the little school begun in 1914, now called Brandon High School, spent its first full year as the largest senior high school in Florida. 3,995 students were recorded on class rolls by the end of the opening week. There were 209 members listed on the 1980-1981 Faculty and Staff Roster. Double sessions and night school kept the doors of the building open from 6:00 am to 10:00 pm daily.

By sheer numbers, the state's largest was impressive; but more impressive than the quantity was the quality Brandon High School had come to present.

Of all the schools in Hillsborough County, Brandon had the highest percent of daily attendance leading to the smallest percent of failures due to absences. Brandon scored the highest in the county on the State Assessment Test and had more national merit finalists than any other public or private school in the county. Brandon students brought home math championships as well as the presidency of the state Spanish organization. National magazines called Florida a trendsetter in education. It was obvious to all that Brandon High was a major trendsetter in Florida education.

Brandon High was also known for its extracurricular activities. The band had received twenty-three straight superiors, as had the award-winning orchestra. In 1980-81 Brandon High also held the honor of being the State Student Government President for the first time. The school provided over fifty clubs and organizations for any interest a student might have had from special interest clubs to service and honor clubs. At Brandon, bigger did often mean better. We thought back to those who were here at the beginning and hoped they would share our pride if they could see us now.

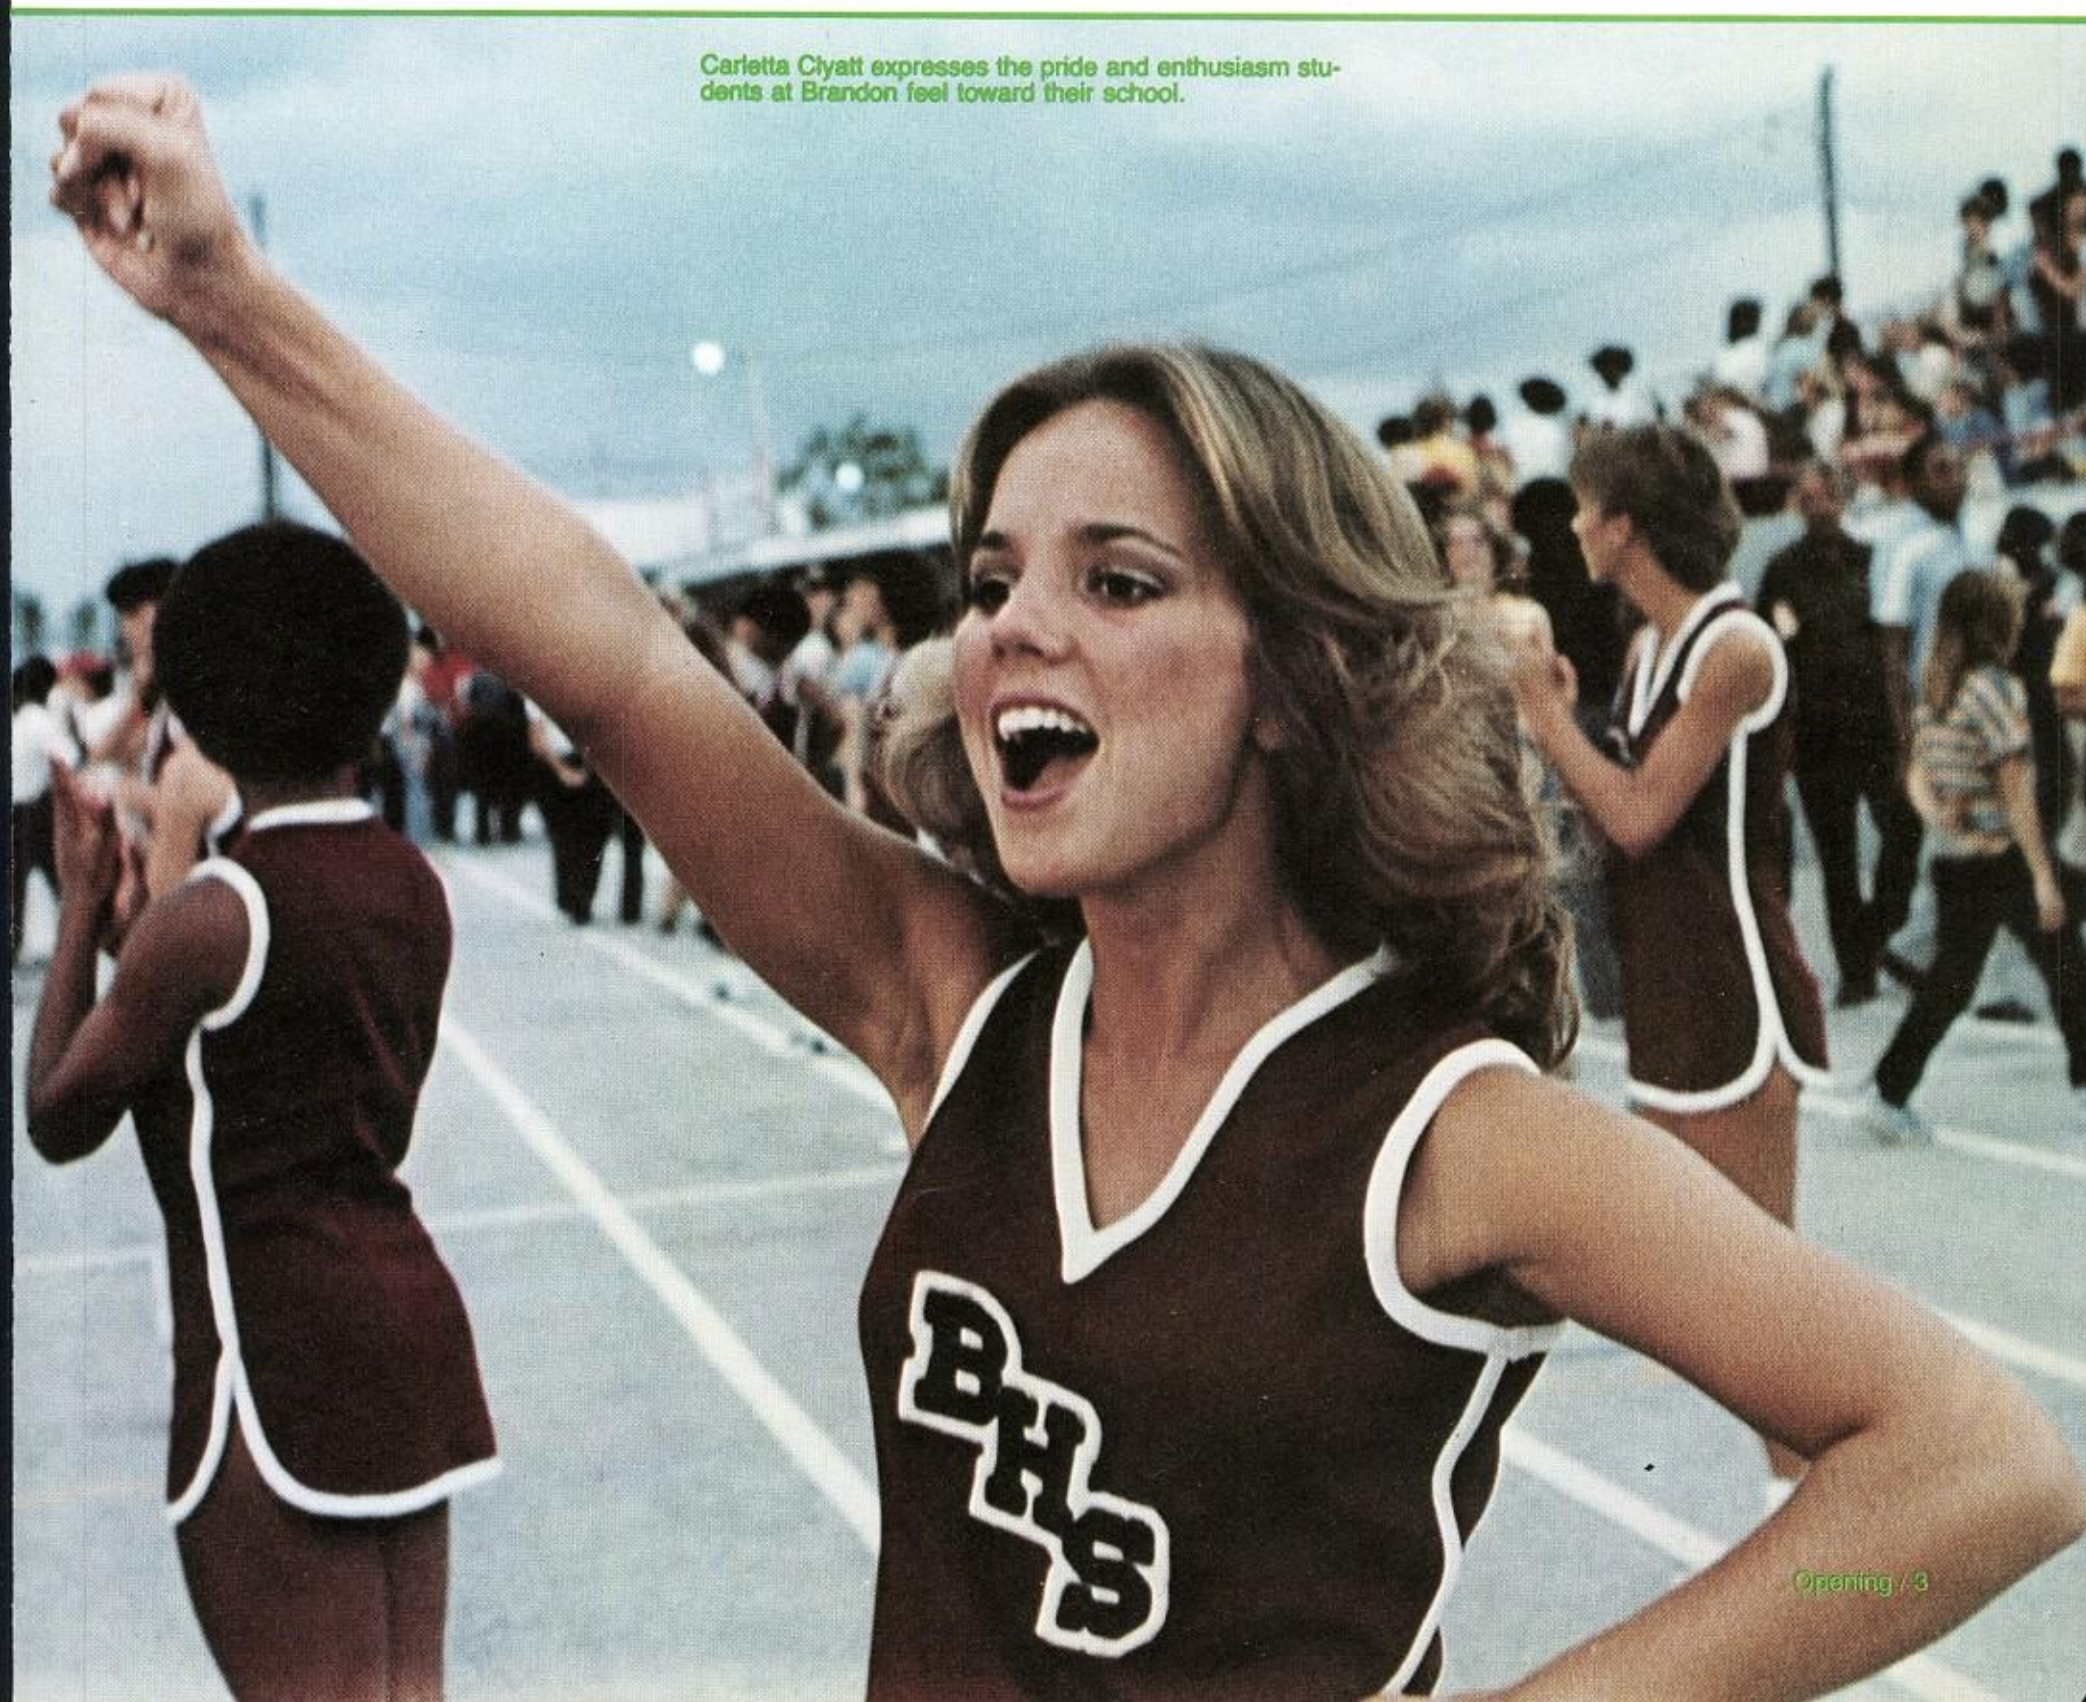

If They Could See Us Now!

Keeping Ourselves Active

Just about the only thing that had remained the same about Brandon since 1914 was that it still had a Brandon High School. Once quiet and rural, Brandon, by 1981, had become a vibrant, bustling community. A local realtor's population survey estimated that 80,000 people lived in the area. Recent additions to the downtown scene were a civic center, new shopping strips, additional development along Oakfield Drive, more starts on residential building, and, out by Highway 301, the skeleton of the eastern leg of the Crosstown Expressway.

As the community expanded, so did the activities of its residents; and Brandon students were an active part of what was happening. Double sessions scheduling allowed juniors and seniors to finish classes at noon. Many took advantage of local job opportunities and spent afternoons and evenings earning pay checks. As services available in Brandon increased, so did the demand for volunteers. Brandon High students donated their time and hard work everywhere from Brandon Community Hospital to local churches to nursing homes to children's homes to youth sports programs. The pride Brandon teenagers felt in their community was intense because it was a personal pride born of participation and involvement in Brandon's growth.

Taking Part in National Affairs

President Jimmy Carter greets Mr. Joseph Garcia, a local attorney, at a private campaign dinner in Washington, D.C.

The world of Brandon was a busy place in 1981 and so was the bigger world outside our community boundaries. Evidence that the Brandon area was becoming an important spot on the map increased as the major presidential candidates sent representatives searching for our votes in the Presidential Campaign. Although our growth rate remained high and our unemployment percentage low — in contrast to some other areas of the United States — we all felt the pressures of inflation as the costs of goods and services always seemed to rise faster than our incomes. Senior boys, unlike other senior boys from the previous six years, faced the prospect of registering themselves for military service once they reached eighteen. Brandon, as the training center for Olympic hopefuls in diving competition, felt the effect of world politics when U.S. athletes boycotted the Moscow Olympics in the summer of 1980. An increased awareness of the national necessity of conserving energy put many of us out of our gas-guzzling large cars and into sub-compacts. "M.A.S.H.," "Real People", and "WKRP In Cincinnati" were some of our favorite T.V. shows; we loved football generally and the Tampa Bay Bucs specifically. As we coped with the economic, political, and social changes of 1981, we appreciated our own special place in the world.

Student Life

On a summer day, Michelle Finnegan enjoys Lithia.

As we looked back on the earlier years of students' lives, we saw the changes in styles, fashions, fads, entertainment, transportation, work, and recreation.

During the rapid growth of Brandon in the sixties, it was known as the "HOT SPOT" to all of the high school students who lived in and around the Tampa-Brandon area. The main hang-out was the A&W Rootbeer Place on Highway 60, which was occupied by the U-Haul Company in 1981.

Compared to the old A&W, the hang-outs of 1980, such as J-Burns, Pizza Hut, and McDonalds, made us wonder what the students of yesterday would have thought if only they could have seen us, the classes of the eighties, back then when they were in our places!

From the crinolines and bobby-socks, ducktails and penny loafers of the fifties, to the long hair hippie-look and mini-skirts of the sixties, and then to the disco dancing and music, along with flashy hair styles, tight-fitting pants and the below-the-knee dresses of the seventies, we entered the eighties only to see the western look convert many people into "Urban Cowboys" which entailed plaid, button-down shirts, cowboy hats and 4-wheel drive pick-up trucks! But for those who didn't get in to the "cowboy" craze, there was punk rock with dark sunglasses and wild dancing. Also, of course, there was the slim, trim preppy look with leather moccasin shoes and trouser-type pants often worn with Gator shirts.

Since we were only at the beginning of the eighties, we might have wondered what would be next? Would everyone turn country and western? Or would they go the punk style? Would dresses continue climbing back up above the knee? What about jeans, particularly Levi's? Would they ever become obsolete? Would gas prices go up so high that students would not be able to afford to drive? When the recreation and entertainment that we enjoyed in 1981 grew old, what would replace it? We would watch to see!

We've Got the Look

Our moms and dads had lived through the poodle skirts, saddle oxfords, bouffant hairdos, and leather jackets. Some fashions and fads had disappeared forever, while others — the venerable blue jeans, for example — had come full circle. We were as conscious as any previous generation of what was "out" and what was "in".

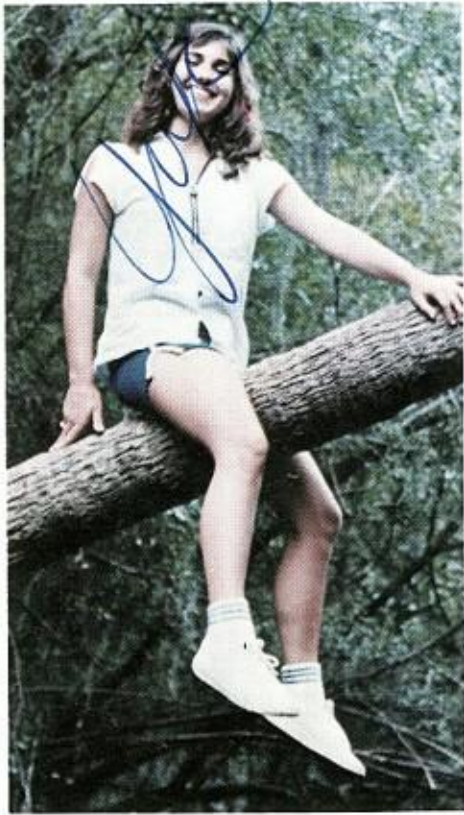

Blue jeans still prevailed at Brandon, but the most important were the ones with that "special signature" on the seat. For the student who wanted a more personalized outfit, there were many different jerseys in different colors, each expressing the wearer's affiliations and preferences. The cowboys also had their look at Brandon thanks to the movie "Urban Cowboy". The preppy look was seen throughout our halls with sweaters around necks and top-siders abounding. Punk styles also had their say, with skinny ties and bright colors popping up everywhere. More and more students became clothes conscious at Brandon High, thus proving that we had the look of the '80's.

Spare time! What was that? Most of us had very little of it. Classes, homework assignments, club activities, and after-school jobs used up most of our waking hours, but when a few precious moments arrived, uncomplicated by commitments, we all knew how to use them. We had discovered racquetball and could round up a few friends for a game. Our Central Florida climate made water sports a pleasure almost all year round. We might be crossing the wake on water skis at Lake Thonotosassa, soaking up the rays at Coquina Beach, or trying for the biggest fish in the gulf. Frisbee, bike or motorcycle riding, camping, hunting, tennis, and jogging kept us outdoors, too. Happiness to some of us was an afternoon of shopping at University Square or East Lake Mall. Rock was king and 98 was our first choice for good listening. Special interests like auto mechanics, photography, reading, and horseback riding lured some of us, while others went into the community to volunteer their time to Brandon Community Hospital, to local churches, or to youth athletic organizations.

We had more choices of things to do than Brandon students of years past; we took advantage of those choices; and in doing so, we were busier and more active than ever before. We were like all the students who'd gone before us, though, in that we valued our spare time and used it to create some of the happiest memories of our high school years.

The Crunch of Inflation

Terri Schiele, Mary Pat Mahoney, Graham Argott and David Thornhill express their confusion over senior expenses.

Money! Money! Money! We needed it for class rings, tickets to games, lunches after school, yearbooks, club jerseys, new clothes, prom and gradnight.

Many of us, suffering from the inflation crunch, took after school jobs. Brandon's abundance of fast food restaurants provided employment to numbers of Brandon students. Some students even found work related to their future career choices. All of us found that the money we earned had one unpleasant quality ... it disappeared quickly.

Two years ago gasoline had been $.60 a gallon, and joy rides were frequent. In 1980-81, gasoline cost between $1.15 and $1.25, and there was no room for waste. Two years ago the postage stamp had cost eight cents, but in 1981 its price was fifteen cents.

The price of whatever it was that we needed always seemed to go up, never down. We counted our pennies and tried to find a way to pay the bills and still afford a few of life's luxuries.

Getting the lead out, gets the money out ... of your pocket.

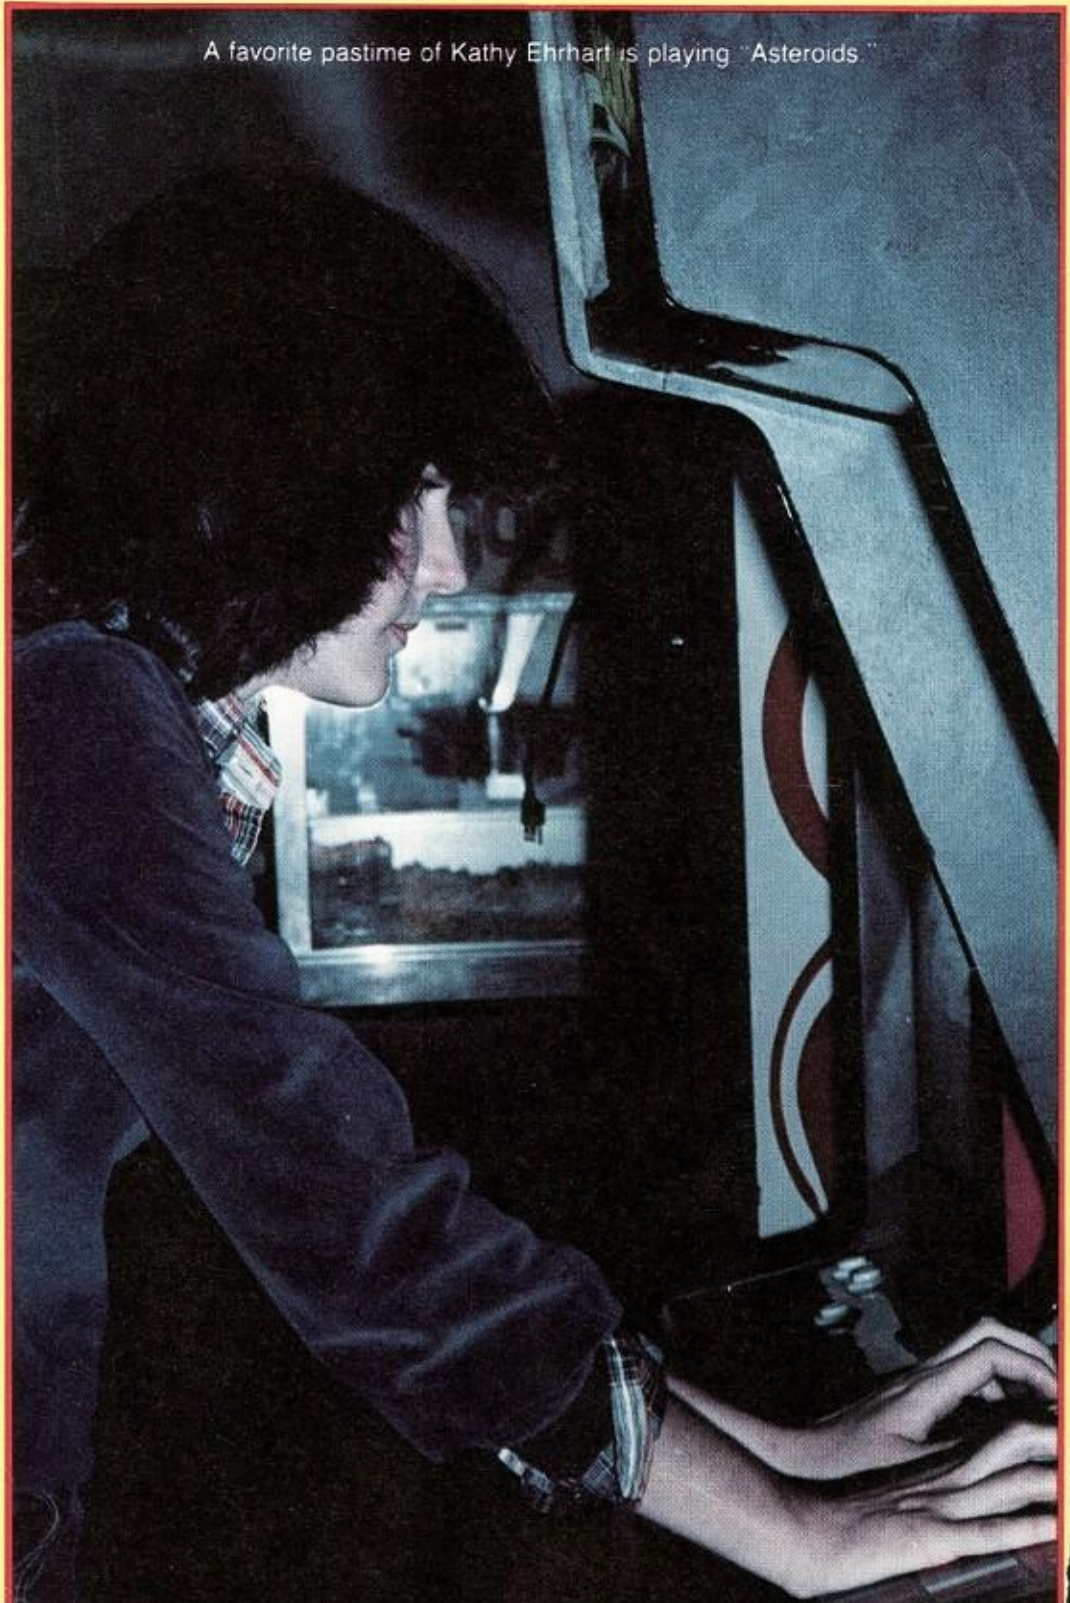

In order to afford a few luxuries, Jane Fleegel is employed at Burger King.

Where to go ...

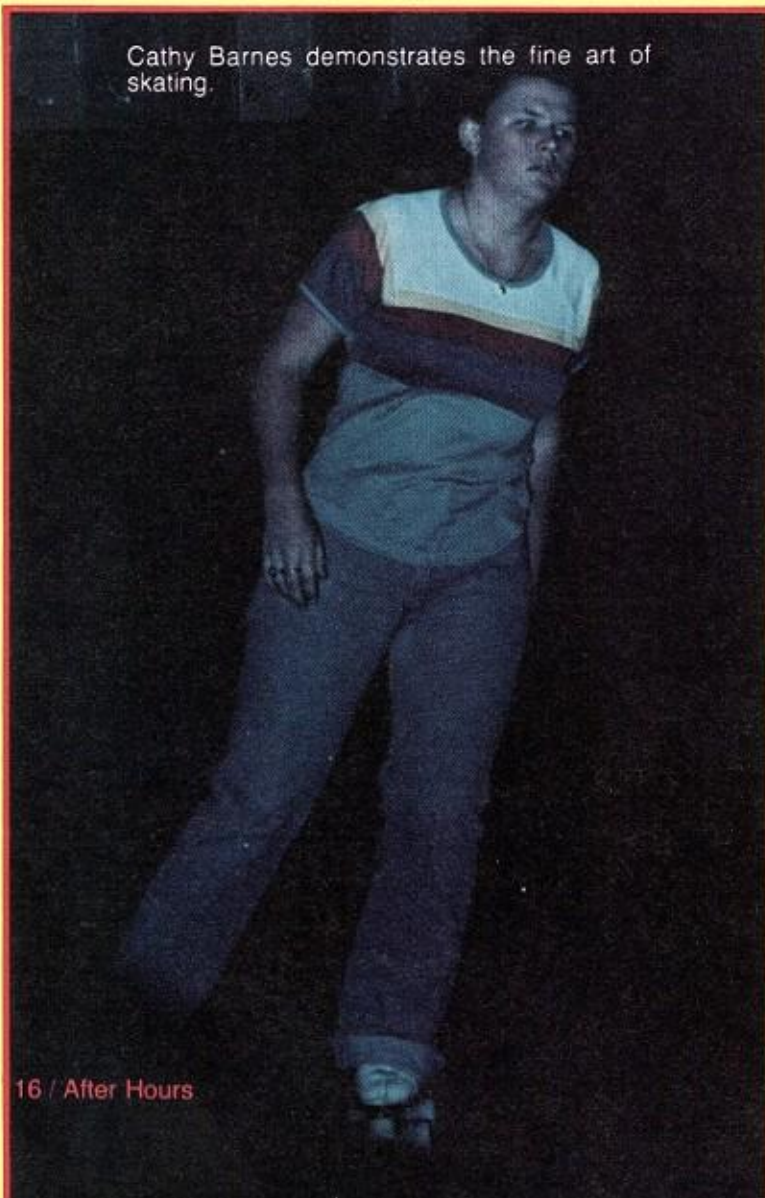

Years ago students spent their time away from school in basically the same ways. Skating had been a favorite pastime for years and a great form of exercise, but "Roller Disco" was fairly recent. Just going out to eat or to a movie with a special friend was a relaxing way to spend an evening. Getting together with a close friend and spending the afternoon at a shopping mall could make us forget the pressures of being teenagers. A recent craze was to play Space Invaders or Asteroids — or a number of other electronic games. This was a great way to take our minds off our homework, not-so-high test grades, jobs, and how we were going to meet our next car payment. Especially at this time in our lives, transportation had become quite a problem. With the price of gas so high (along with everything else) owning a car wasn't very practical. Even "cruising" was becoming less and less prevalent. Riding a bike or moped or even walking was becoming more and more popular. For longer trips many of us rediscovered the bus. After school in 1980-81 we needed somewhere to go and some way to get there. With our resourcefulness we usually managed to find both.

Activities

Girls' Interact presents the new B.H.S. "Fight Song."

Tradition was strong among us. Whenever someone dared to suggest a change in the way we'd "always" done things, he was sure to find those who believed it almost sacreligious to alter a Brandon ritual. Yet looking back over the years, several things had changed. Sophomores now had afternoon pep rallies, Calendar Girls became Calendar Couples for the second year, and juniors and sophomores were added to the Homecoming Court. During Spirit Week we had our first "New Wave" Day. Keeping with tradition, we held the Senior Auction on Country Day.

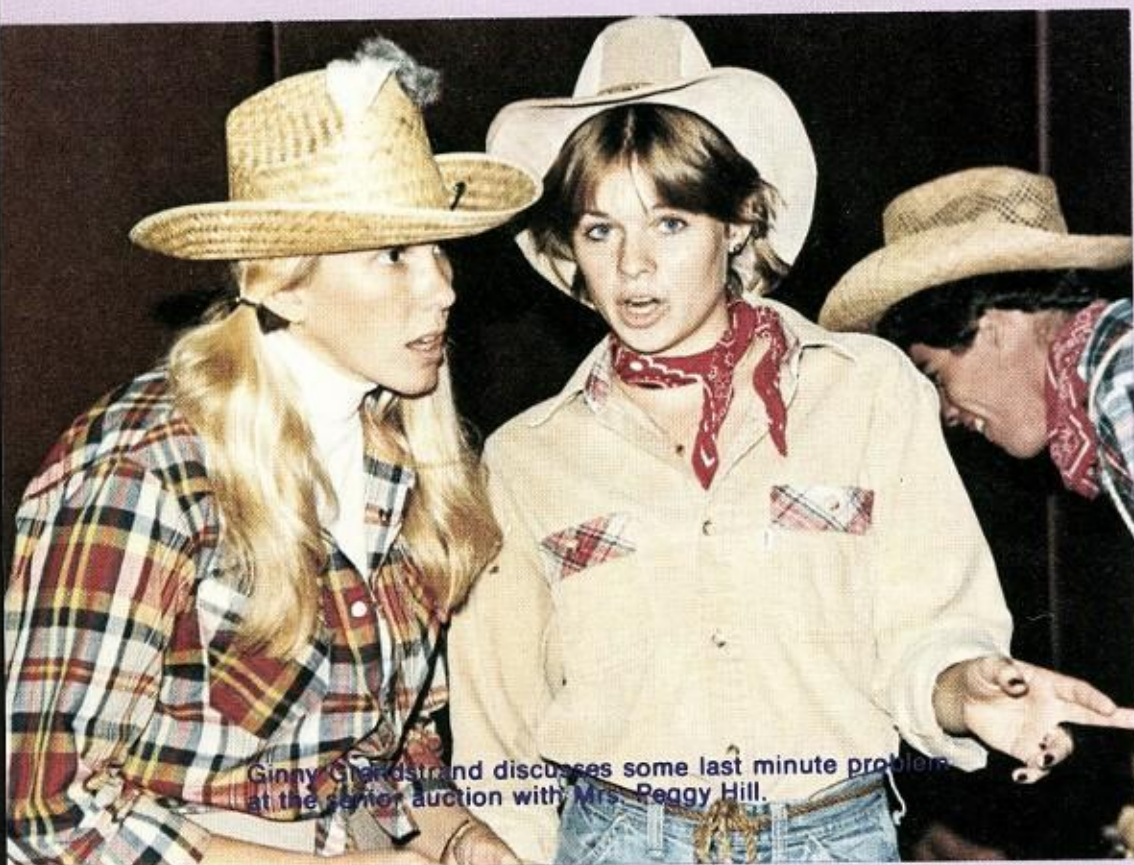

We participated in the 10-mile Cancer Society Walk-a-thon. This was the only walk-a-thon in the nation for the Cancer Society. Competition between clubs and among seniors, juniors, and sophomores was rewarded with numerous prizes.

The Blood Drive gave eligible students the chance to donate. To be eligible, the student had to be at least seventeen years old and had to have his parents' permission.

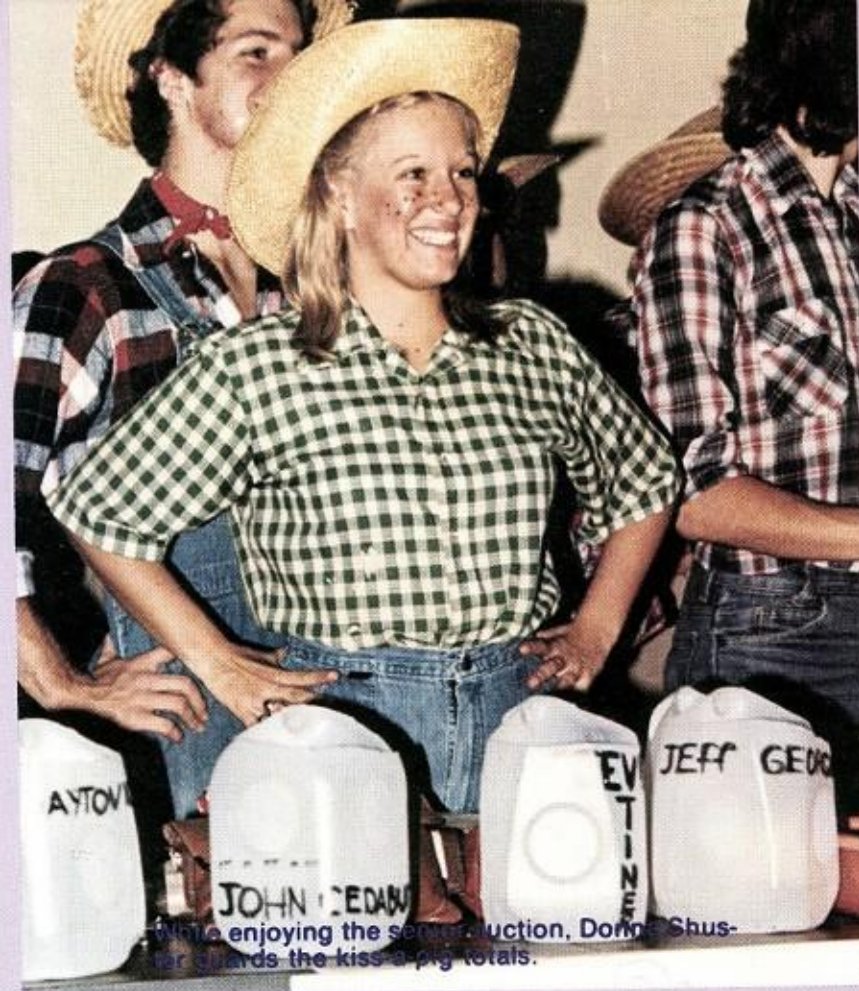

While we added new traditions or changed our existing ones, we learned to accept these alterations and to display our strongest school spirit.

When our classmates and teachers started showing up for school in cowboy hats and punk outfits we knew something was up. Of course it was just Spirit Week, our traditional dress up week, but if a stranger had walked in he might have thought he had crashed a costume party. An October 31st Homecoming gave the week a decidedly spooky twist as students dressed in monster outfits.

Monday began the week as people dressed in the styles of the past, like bobby sox, leather jackets, and the ominous garb of the Mafia. Tuesday might have been one of the quietest days as the Miss Irresistible contest progressed. As the contest went on there were people walking around with glitter on their faces, safety pins through their cheeks, and outlandish outfits because Tuesday was punk rock day a new addition to the traditional days. The senior auction highlighted country and western day on Wednesday as Coach Matt Hauer auctioned twenty seniors off to the highest bidder. Thursday was character day as students dressed as their favorite character from any source. Thursday night all clubs and organizations readied their exhibits to be judged, and later on the Hop-n-Eagle Pep Rally was held to give clubs a chance to perform skits for awards. Friday capped the week off with the traditional maroon and white day and that night the grand finale the Homecoming game.

The Eagles Have Landed

Trying for top honors in Interact's Legs Contest are Paul Wagner, escorting the sultry Marsh Rainey.

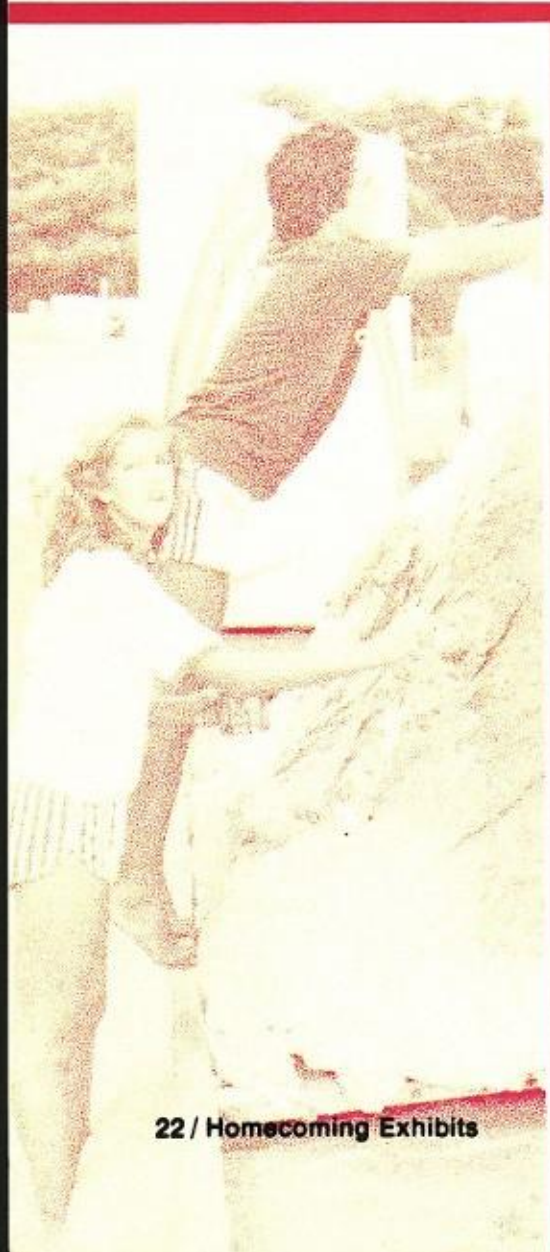

For weeks club members had met after school and at night in garages around Brandon as they did the preliminary paper stuffing, sign painting, and papier machéing for their first-ever Homecoming Exhibit Contest. Finally, on the afternoon of October 30, they converged on McLane stadium and put their final products together. By 7:30 that night the exhibits formed an arch around the North end zone, and everyone headed into the bleachers to enjoy the Hop-N-Eagle Pep Rally and to find out which groups' efforts had been judged to be tops. As darkness fell over the stadium, the crowd and cheerleaders alike put together the best show of Eagle spirit we'd had all year.

We cheered as Steve Gay collected his unwanted Kiss-a-Pig award, Jim English became Ugly Man 1980, Andre Darby won Super Eagle, and Linda Haughom and Lori Williams earned Miss Irresistable titles.

Then the clubs went center field to show, through various skits, how the Eagles would destroy the Leto Falcons in the homecoming game. Key-Kiwanettes "Slow Motion Potion" skit took top skit honors, followed by JC — Jaycettes in second place and Cupidettes in third. Judges awarded Best Overall Exhibit to Yearbook Staff for their "Fumigate the Falcons" entry. JC — Jaycettes exhibit was Most Original; Cupidettes and Beta tied for Best Theme; Concert Choir won Best Use of School Colors; Interact was the Best Sponsored Entry; and Sophomore FBLA was the group judged to be Most Spirited during the competition.

The crowd went home happy, convinced that the sky was made for Eagles, and ready to see Brandon win against Leto.

Members of the Sophomore Court were Kathy Neal, Cecelia Knowles, and Easter Sarnecki; the Junior Court members were Linda McCray, Shantel Shiflet, and Tonya Walker.

At halftime that night, the Senior Court members — Gina Guilford, Felicia Noriega, Jane Fleegel, Carletta Clyatt, Nancy White, Teri Mallory, and Kelli Gallagher — waited anxiously for our senior class president to announce the 1980 Homecoming Queen. The crowd quieted and then cheered as Thomas Preziosi introduced our 1980 Homecoming Queen, Kelli Gallagher.

The second half, using a Run-and-Shoot attack, the Eagles faked their way 60 yards in 10 plays with quarterback Mark Coon scoring the second touchdown. The third touchdown came when Coon threw a pass to Willie Mingo in the end zone.

The following night everyone celebrated their victory at the Homecoming Dance. It was an enjoyable and traditional evening. Everyone crowded around as Principal Orlan Briant crowned the queen, Kelli Gallagher. Following that, "Ugly Man" Jim English, escorted the queen to the dance floor for the first dance. The theme song was "Love, Look What You've Done To Me."

It was a weekend filled with joy, smiles, and an overwhelming feeling of spirit and pride for Brandon. The sky truly was made for eagles.

Captivating the Audience

For weeks in September many girls excitedly asked "that special guy" to accompany them in the Calendar Couple Contest. The applications were handed out and each contestant answered several questions about himself. On the afternoon of practice, sixty-nine couples met in the auditorium to rehearse for the preliminaries the following night.

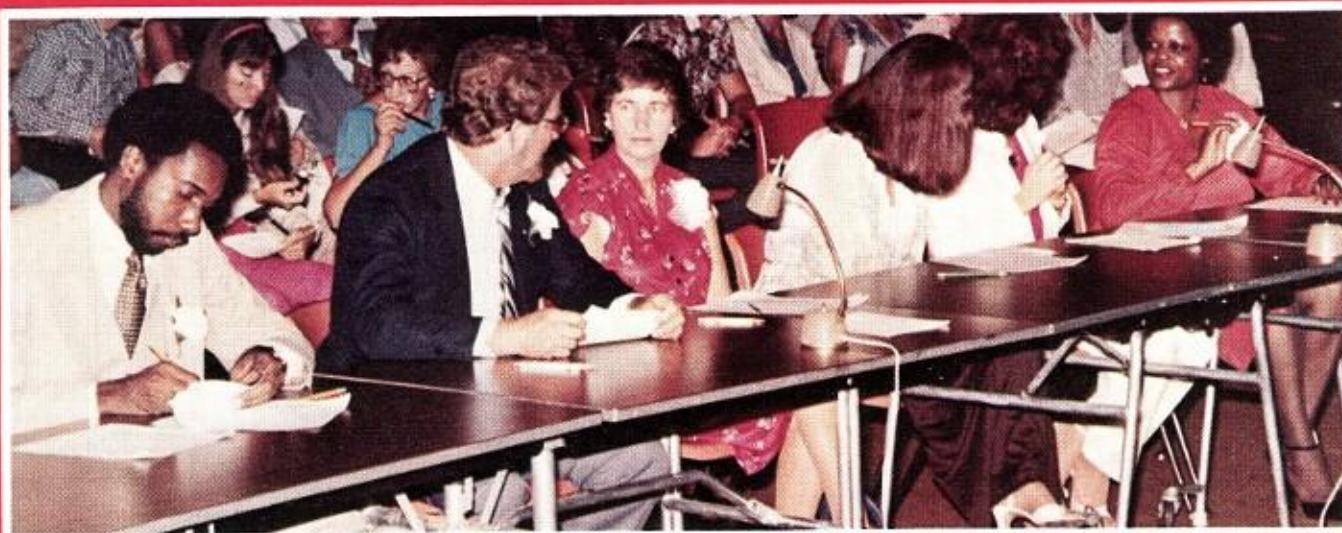

When the night arrived many nervous couples smiled hopefully at the judges as they paraded across the stage. While proud parents waited, the votes were tallied and thirty couples became qualifiers for the finals. These contestants had four days to rest and prepare for the October 4th finals when thirteen lucky couples would be selected to appear on the cover and twelve months of the 1981 Brandon High Calendar.

There was much commotion as well as excitement on October 4, 1980. It wasn't just an ordinary quiet Saturday afternoon in Brandon. Sixty Brandon High students who had qualified for Calendar Couple Finals nervously checked their outfits to make sure everything was just right for the big night.

The yearbook staff worked diligently the entire morning preparing for the final night of the contest. Plants were brought to school in a truck and had to be carried onto the stage for background decorations. Tables were set up for those staff members who would be collecting money. Orchestra came early to prepare for their performance which would serve as entertainment during intermission and while the votes were being counted. SAVOS also came early to establish the correct lighting.

As the evening began, Pam Morris played the piano as Hospitality Hostesses greeted the incoming audience with the final program. Everyone involved worked responsibly to make the final night of competition successful and entertaining. After appearing on stage in both casual and formal wear, the contestants waited for the verdict. Finally, proud parents and excited friends cheered and applauded as Heidi Beckington announced the thirteen Calendar Couples for 1981.

Father Mulcahy (Scott Clancey), Frank Burns (Loren Bracewell), and Pvt. Boone (Richie Soule) crowd around the desk of Colonel Blake (Thad Cason).

Across the nation Colonel Blake, Hawkeye Pierce, Father Mulcahy, Hot Lips Houlihan, and Radar O'Reilly were names as familiar to us as our own. They were some of the main characters of the perennially popular TV show M*A*S*H. It was no wonder that the response was terrific when Mr. James Rayfield, Drama Coach, announced plans for the Drama Club to produce the stage play M*A*S*H in the BHS auditorium. Auditions were held after school, and the final set was cast:

General Hamilton Hammond — E.J. Cuneo
 Pvt. Boone — Richie Soule
 Lt. Colonel Henry Blake — Thad Cason
 Capt. Bridget McCarthy — Christine Ramer
 Lt. Janice Furry — Lisa Landon
 Sgt. Devine — Donald Cagnina
 Lt. Louise Kimble — Kathy McBurney

Capt. Frank Burns — Loren Bracewell
 Father John Mulcahy — Scott Clancey
 Capt. Walt Waldowski — Erik Nichols
 Capt. John McIntyer — Kirk Alderman
 Capt. John Black (Ugly) — Kevin Ward
 Radar Reilly — John Sutton
 Capt. Benjamin Franklin Pierce — Mark Walloga
 Capt. Augustus Bedford Forrest — Ken Jackson
 Ho-Jon — Kevin Kew
 Korean Woman One — Carol Heath
 Korean Woman Two — Liz Tapio
 Lt. Nancy Phillips — Kerry Neal
 Major Margaret Houlihan — Cindy Miller
 Congresswoman Goldfarb — Lisa Bonilla
 Dean Mercy Lodge — June Sassnet
 Miss Randazzle — Julie Hawkins
 Mitzi Bonwit — Trudy Zellmer
 Fritzi Bonwit — Michele Rocha

Agnes Bonwit — Donna LeFebvre
 Moose Madison — David Roche
 Lt. Connie Leibowitz — Carol Heath
 Major Ruth Haskell — Dennine Sackman

Announcer — Paul Prator

The sets were built and painted by members of the Drama Club. Loren Bracewell headed the crew. The set was designed by Mr. James Rayfield. More than twenty students worked Saturdays constructing and painting the set. Also two student assistants, Kenny Chapman and Tony Pettys, helped with the construction. The stage lighting and sound was provided by SAVOS.

The auditorium filled with students and townspeople on the two nights of the performance, and all who saw it declared the Drama Club's effort a tremendous success.

Kerry Neal and Lisa Landon ham it up behind stage.

Appearing in a scene in the tents are Capt. Pierce (Mark Walloga), Capt. Black (Kevin Ward), Capt. McIntyer (Kirk Alderman), Capt. Forrest (Ken Jackson), and Ho-Jon (Kevin Kew).

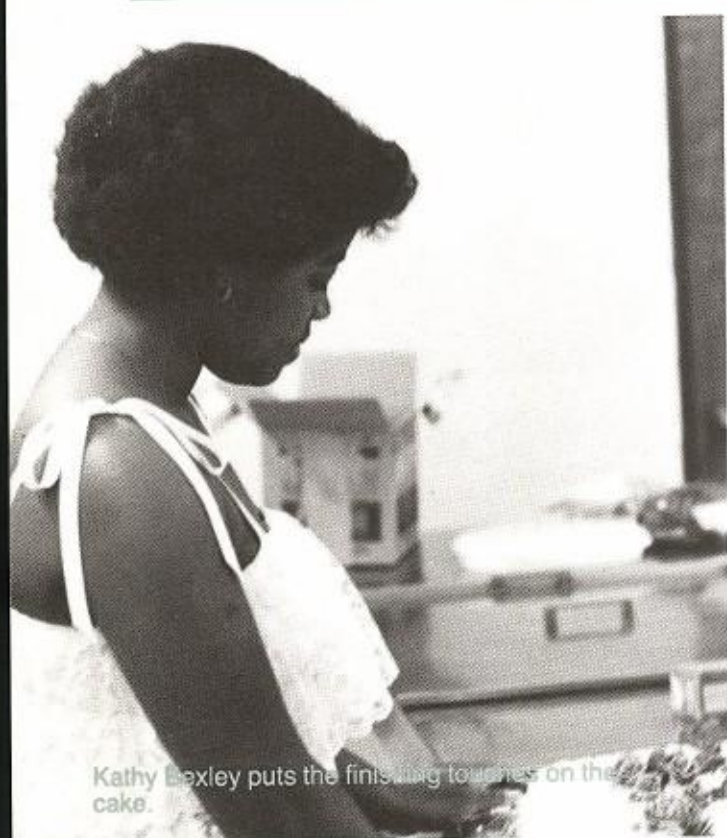

While Lt. Kimble (Kathy McBurney) looks on suspiciously, Sgt. Devine (Donald Cagnina) tries to con Lt. Phillips (Kerry Neal) into buying land in the states.

Crowned into Spirit

One of the traditional events at Brandon High was the Christmas Ball. The 1980 Christmas Ball was held on December 5, 1980, in the commons. Student Advisory Committee sponsored the ball and the King and Queen Contest also. At 9:30 the candidates for king and queen anxiously awaited the new pair for 1980-1981. Administrative Assistant Hubert Brantley crowned Chuckie Singletary king, and 1979 Homecoming Queen, Lisa Walker had the pleasure of crowning Mattie Lang as queen. Chuckie and Mattie took the traditional dance while all the ladies ahhed and the gentlemen ohhed to the tune of "Three Times a Lady," by the Commodores. As we, the Class of '81, looked back upon our spirit-filled holiday seasons, we would remember this as our best ever and our best Christmas Ball ever.

Getting ready to crown the Christmas Queen for 1980 is our Homecoming Queen of 1979, Lisa Walker.

Preparing to make the most of the night are candidates for King and Queen, Thomas Preziosi and Sheila Sparling.

Organizations

Beyond the classroom doors of Brandon High School were clubs that gave feelings of belonging and importance to a student.

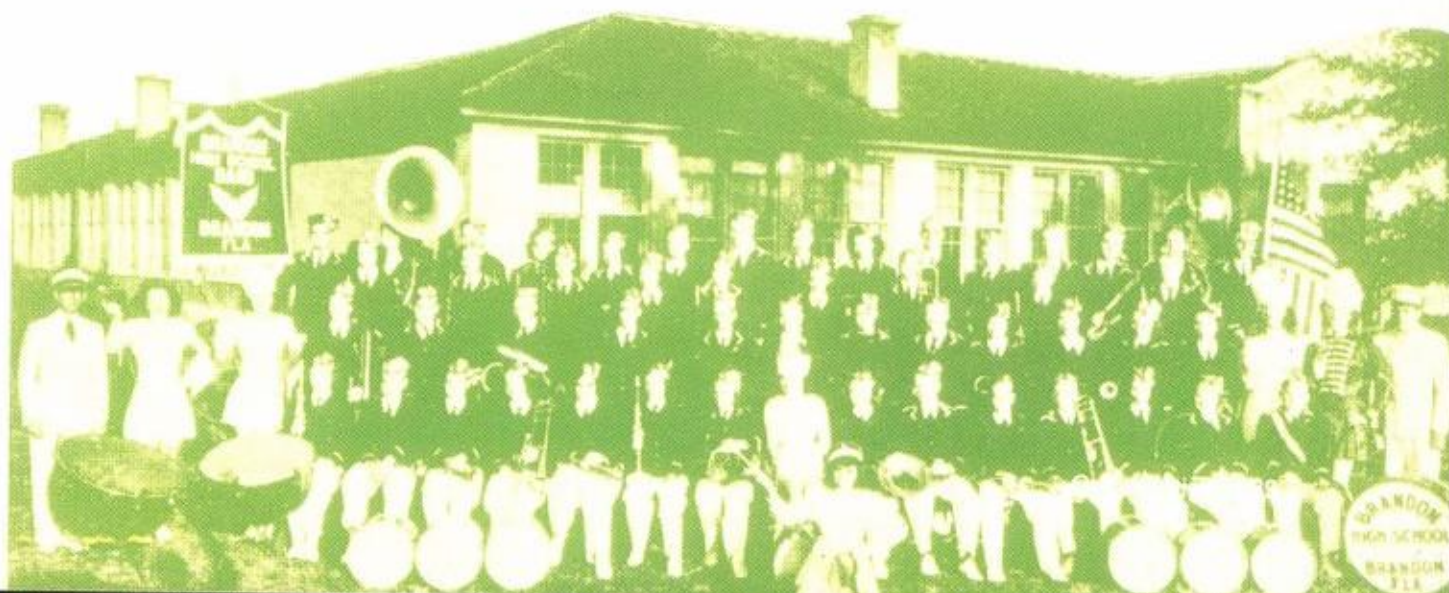

Some clubs of past years had disappeared from the organizations roster. Gone were F.T.A. (Future Teachers of America), 360, and the Ecology Club; new in 1980-81 were H.O.S.A. (Health Occupations Students of America), Pep Club, and Forensic League. The oldest organization at

Brandon High School, other than Student Government, was F.F.A. (Future Farmers of America). F.C.A. (Fellowship of Christian Athletes) and C.F.S. (Christian Fellowship) were the largest organizations. Two groups, Student Government and Spanish Club, had earned the special honor of heading their state organizations. Student Government responded to the need for increased sophomore involvement by creating the Sophomore Board and Sophomore Senate.

Being an active, involved club member could be an enormously demanding task. There were no monetary rewards for individual efforts, yet those of us who participated found other special rewards. From all the time and work we donated, we gained new friendships and created lasting memories.

The Brandon High School Marching Band of 1947 poses for the yearbook.

Southern Hospitality à la B.H.S.

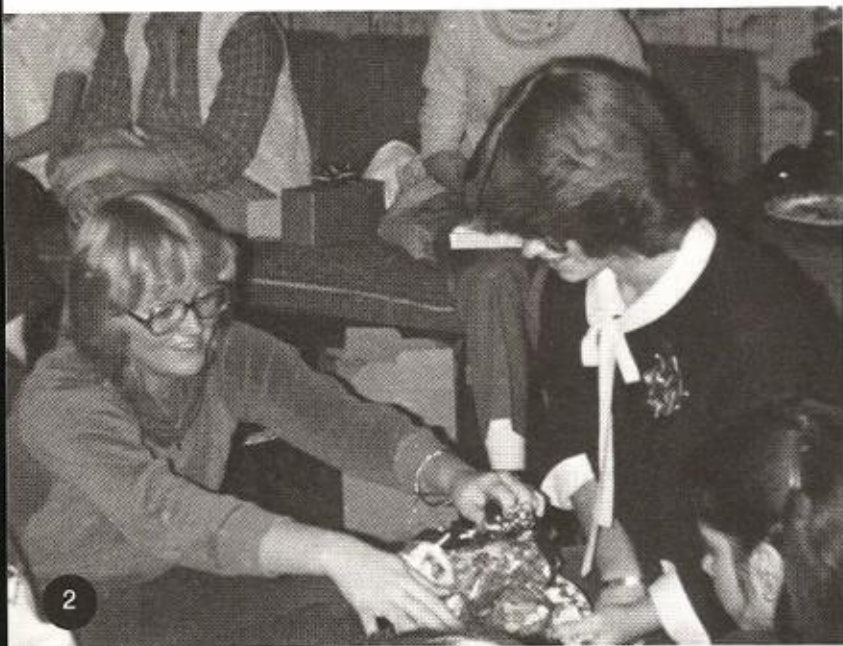

Persuading them to wait patiently, Sheryl Lyman assures the people at the door of the auditorium that they will soon be seated for a concert.

When a person entered Brandon High School for the first time, who could he have relied on to help him find his way through the never-ending maze of hallways, doors, and classrooms? Who did the athletes depend on when they were craving a drink to quench their thirsts? Who kept the confusion down when it came to seating audiences at concerts, plays and community functions in Brandon's auditorium? Or, during the frustrating moments of planning class schedules and pulling cards, who could a student have depended on to lead him to the correct decisions? What about when somebody was in need of a friendly smile? Who could he always find with one? Well, the best people for anyone to have depended on to fulfill these needs for us would have been the twenty-five Hospitality Hostesses, who were led by Miss Betty Blake and Mrs. Carolyn Riggs and whose main service to the people of Brandon High School and our community was to assist those who were in need of help.

The Hospitality Hostesses not only served and assisted others, though; they had fun times being together as a group by having parties and other get-togethers. They involved their parents by having a father-daughter picnic and a mother-daughter tea.

Each Hospitality girl was assigned a secret pal to whom they gave gifts and surprises throughout the year. At their end-of-the-year banquet they broke each other's suspense by revealing who was whose secret pal. They each also had big or little sisters, and sometimes both. The motive behind these things was to bring the girls closer together and to build everlasting bonds of friendship between them.

1980-81 was a very fulfilling year for Cupidettes. They started off the year right when they built a prize-winning float for the Homecoming Exhibition. The members participated in various service projects such as the Superwalk to benefit the American Cancer Society, a visit to the V. A. Hospital at Christmas, the adopting of a family for the Salvation Army, painting the windows at Dairy Isle for Christmas, and many other deeds to benefit people, the school, and the community.

The Fall Service Club Tea was a great success. Hosted by Cupidettes and Jayceettes, girls from all the service clubs were able to socialize and converse with each other.

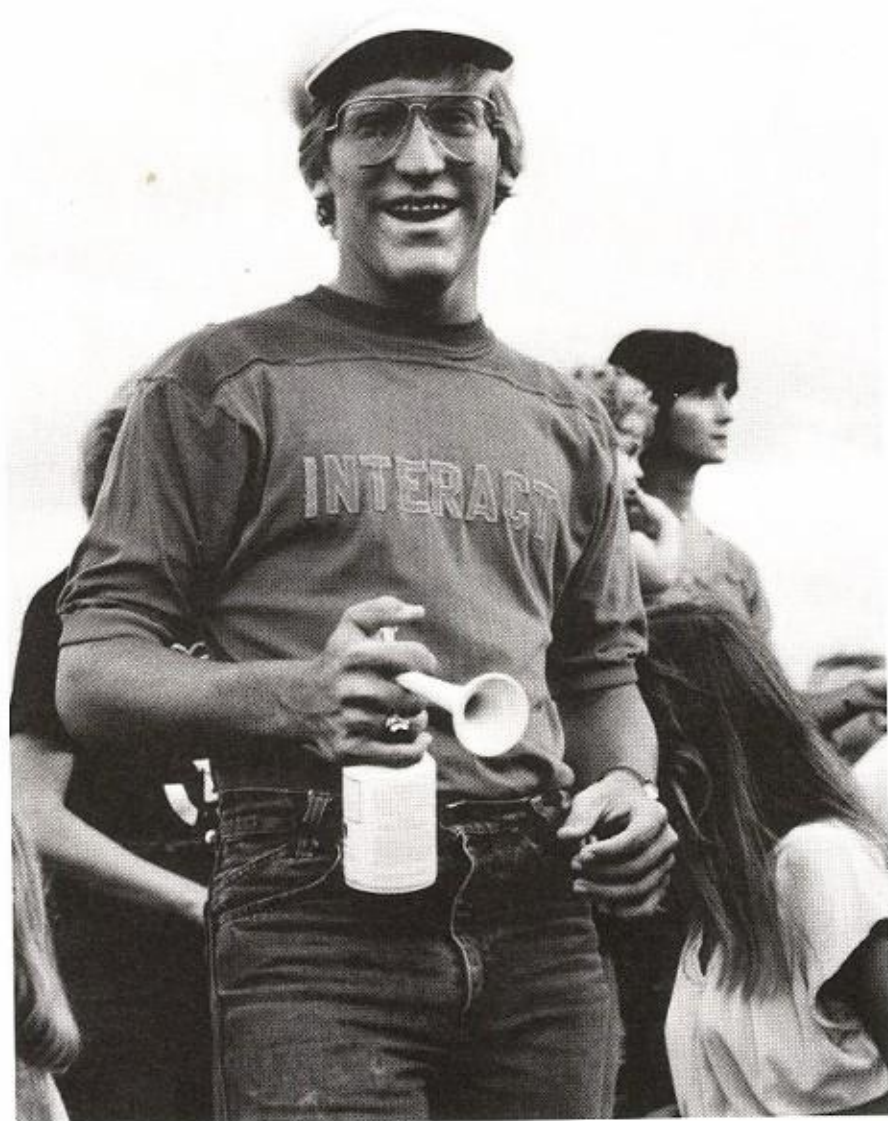

Under the leadership of Mrs. Ann Gibson, 1981 was a great year for a spirited and dedicated group of girls.

Interact Involved

Involved and Interact were interchangeable words throughout the school year. Under the leadership of Tommy Griffith, Guy's Interact was active in many different projects both in school and the community.

One of Interact's many successes was their annual Hop-N-Eagle Pep Rally. The evening included various club skits, the judging of the club floats, and their outrageous legs contest. Interact also parked cars at the home football games, painted spirit signs, and in December had their yearly Bike-a-thon. Along with these activities, Interact still had time to visit the aged at Lowe's Nursing Home once a month.

Even though there were many rough spots during the course of the year, Guy's Interact pulled through with a winning season and produced a club like no other at Brandon.

Often service clubs were thought of as sororities and fraternities with no real beneficial qualities. Many people who were not involved in a service club criticized them. Despite what some thought, service clubs did exactly what their name implied; they provided school, community and even international services. Girls' Interact met and surpassed these standards.

As a school project they composed the Fight Song and had it hung in the gym. They painted signs every week of the football season to promote school spirit. And like all other service clubs, they participated in Homecoming activities such as window painting and creating an exhibit.

Girls' Interact could often be found working in the community. They stuffed bags with goodies for the Barnett Bank during Halloween and helped with the Key canned food drive at Thanksgiving. They visited Lowe's Nursing Home every month and gave small gifts and hand-made cards to the patients at Christmas. During the Christmas Season they also had a program for Rotary and sponsored a drive for needy families to provide gifts and food to those who would otherwise have had none. The club cleaned their two medians weekly. They also got sponsors for the Leukemia Walk-a-thon. These efforts of Girls' Interact gave them recognition in the community as a hardworking service club.

The forty member club sponsored by Miss Donna Hawley and Mrs. Marjorie Johnson not only worked to serve their school and community, they also had an international project. They made clothing to send to the orphanages in Haiti. So although some tried to accuse service clubs of being merely social clubs, Girls' Interact's list of accomplishments ruled out this myth and placed them at the top of the list of service clubs.

Bryan Clark, President of Jr. Jaycees, said of his club, "We really got things accomplished this year. We did what we set our minds to do!!" Washing cars to earn money for the ad budget and service projects, visiting the children at Nettle's and doing yard work at Nettle's, putting together a Homecoming skit, and cleaning the teachers' parking lot were just some of those things they set out to do.

Jr. Jaycees had been a Brandon club for five years and was made up of thirty-two members. Mr. Roy Rayburn sponsored the group. Backing up President Clark were Mike Cronin — Vice President, Scott Davidson — Secretary, Joe Garcia — Treasurer, David Johnson — Senior Director and Scott Fafinski — Junior Director.

The group worked along with sister club Jr. Jayceettes on most projects. The efforts of Jr. Jaycees resulted in valuable services rendered to our community and school.

Creative, original, and willing to serve the school and the community described Jr. Jayceettes. The thirty members of this group worked to the best of their ability to earn money for service projects and to visit Nettle's home for children.

As part of their fund-raising projects, Jr. Jayceettes sold M&M's. The money they earned was put toward purchasing new furniture for the school and materials for the reading lab. An activity board to be placed in the commons was planned during one of their regular monthly meetings.

The girls painted the windows at Burger King with a Halloween scene during Spirit Week. With all the hard work painting, they found time to practice their skit for the Hop-n-Eagle pep rally with Jr. Jaycees, the brother club. The group was rewarded for their effort with a second place for the skit and received a "best all-around for a sponsored exhibit."

The girls went to Nettle's to babysit during Parents' Anonymous meetings. The children at Nettle's enjoyed the visit from the girls as they shared a day of storytelling and playing on the swing set in the back yard.

All the time and attention contributed to the school and community made the year a successful one for the Jr. Jayceettes.

Rock Becomes Charitable

The main goal of the thirty-seven members of Kiwanettes was to serve. With the help of their adviser, Mrs. Betty Salings, these girls combined their efforts in an attempt to benefit the school and community. One of their many tasks was to work in the concession stands during home football and baseball games. Led by Diane Boston and Nancy White, the Kiwanettes held a Rock-a-Thon in January, as a fund-raiser.

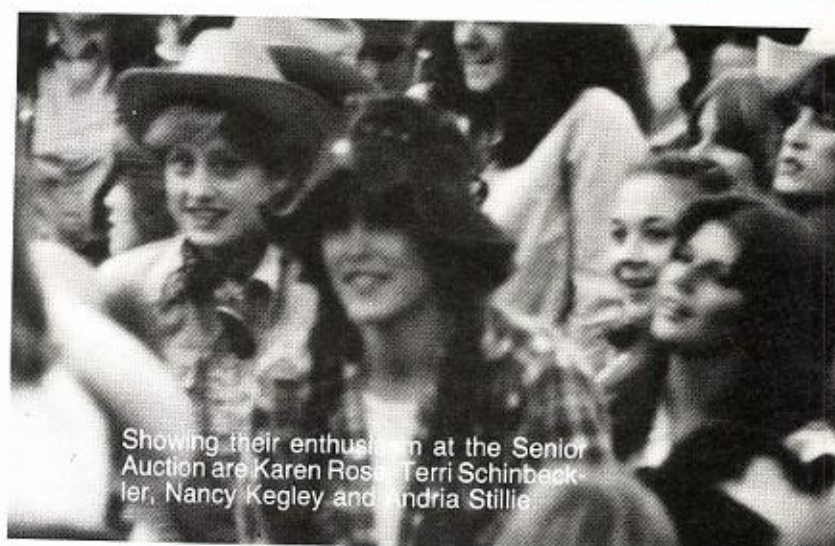

Participating together, Key and Kiwanettes painted the Chamber of Commerce windows during Homecoming week to promote community spirit. Together they built their homecoming float and combined their enthusiasm and energy to win first place for their skit in the Hop-n-Eagle pep rally.

Recognizing Special People

People were the interest of SAC, Human Relations and "B" Club. The three groups expressed their concern in different ways.

Members of "B" Club had the common bond of having lettered in varsity sports. Their school project was the selection of the "Athlete of the Week," recognizing those who'd made special contributions to their sport.

Student Advisory Committee (SAC) and Human Relations Club were closely related organizations. SAC members were elected by the student body, while Human Relation members were people who joined their club because of a special interest in its functions. Both groups worked together in planning and putting on Brotherhood Week, the SAC Christmas Ball, and a clothes drive for needy families. Both groups actively helped with Project Insight and other humanitarian projects in the school.

Expressing it in a variety of ways, SAC, Human Relations, and "B" Club all showed their concern for people.

Two vastly different clubs put their efforts toward making school a better place to be, one by planning for and operating audio-visual equipment and the other by promoting good feelings about our school.

The Sophisticated Audio Visual Operators Staff (SAVOS), which had existed for seven years at Brandon High, had done a lot for the student body, school, and the community. With the help of their sponsors, Mr. Barry Bunn, Mrs. Carol Covington, and Mrs. Joy Stafford, members of Savos operated all the lighting and sound equipment in both the auditorium and gymnasium. Some of the productions they did during the school year were Calendar Couple, Miss Brandon, Junior Woman's Club Follies 1980, and the play "M.A.S.H." put on by Drama. At their meetings, Savos members discussed upcoming events, planned future projects and inducted new members.

Give me a B-R-A-N-D-O-N, What have you got? BRANDON!! That's what Pep Club, a new special interest club, sponsored by Mrs. Danice Donaldson, did this past year for B.H.S. With forty members in this club, they were able to put out a lot of noise and spirit at football games, basketball games, and other sports that went on at B.H.S.

Without Savos there would have been no lighting or sound for events; without Pep Club school spirit might not have reached the heights it did.

"MENTAL POWER" was the unofficial slogan for Chess Club and Bowling Club. Using this power, each member tested his skill by competing against other club members and against other high school teams.

Under the guidance of Mr. Phillip Clark, their sponsor, and president Karl Whitehead, the members of the Chess Club used their wits, intelligence and high reasoning in making all the right moves.

Although the Bowling Club was only in its second year at Brandon, it had well over 80 members. Overwhelmed at the turnout this past year were Mr. Ed Luckner, the sponsor, and Keith Sherwood, the club president. The Bowling Club sponsored an Eagle Walk for Spina Bifida and American Cancer Society which had a great participation and raised a lot of money.

By competing with other schools, the Brandon Bowling and Chess Clubs were able to add to their talents and proved to be outstanding teams.

Michael Cunningham shows his calm demeanor while making his opening remarks during a debate.

Hard work, determination, and a lot of practice — these things characterized both the Equestrian Club and the Forensics League.

The Equestrian Club focused on the enjoyment of horses. All members loved to ride, and many participated in contests and horse shows with their four-legged friends.

Mrs. Nancy McDermott was the sponsor of the Equestrian Club, and she herself loved to ride. She owned four horses of her own, which she showed.

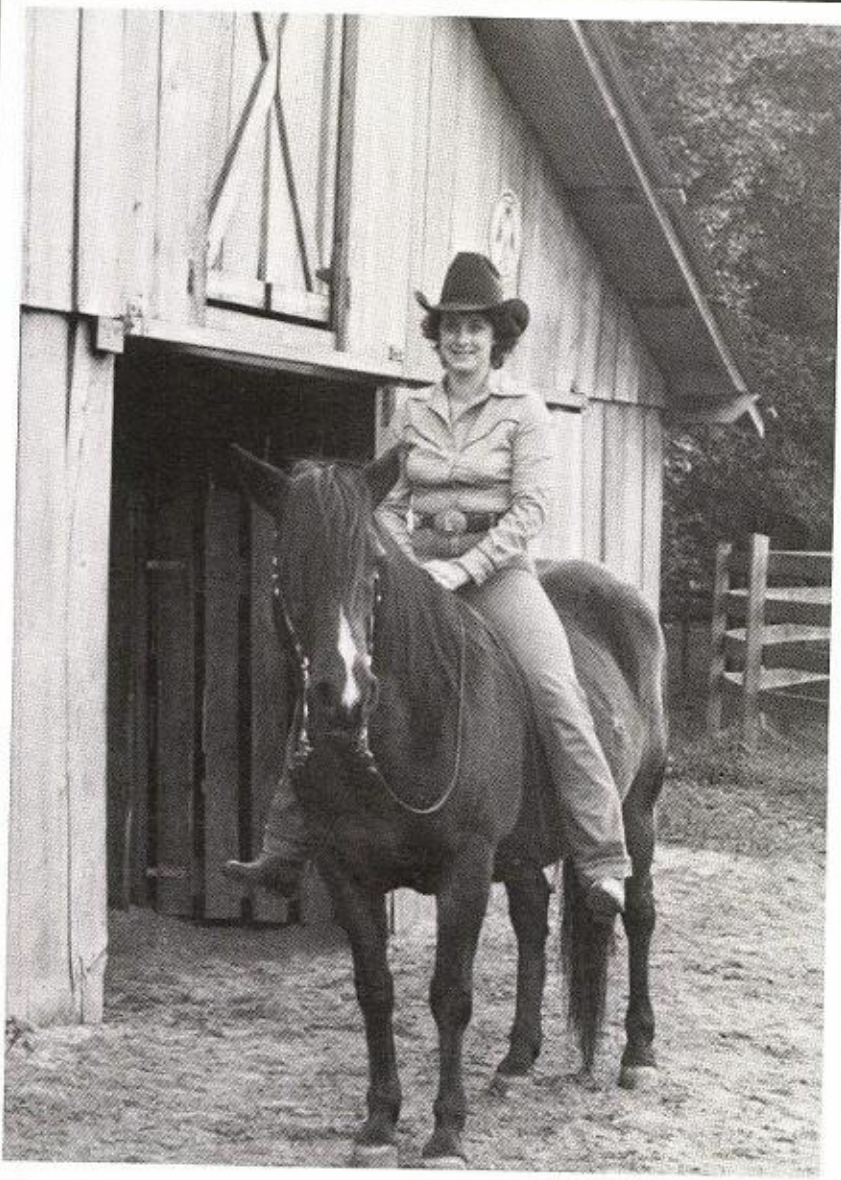

The Forensics League concentrated on the fine points of the art of debating. The members participated in debates with each other, first researching their points and practicing their style.

On Election Day, the five members of the Forensics League held a debate on the issues for the classes of Perez, Powell, and Hammock. The audience was to imagine that the "candidates" had been elected in the primaries instead of Carter and Reagan. Michael Cunningham and running-mate Perter Dunlap took the side of the Reagan administration on many points, while Mike Davis and running-mate Jim Schiefelbein took the Carter views. Ernie Donini acted as moderator between the two candidates. The audience asked questions of the candidates concerning the economy, taxes, foreign policy, and U.S. defense.

Miss Chrissy Ignatuk sponsored the Forensics League and taught public speaking and English.

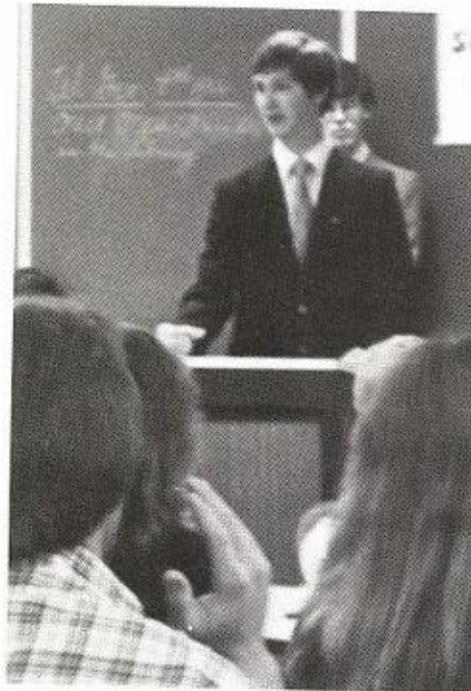

While there were few similarities between Equestrians and Forensics League, their single common bond was that each group boasted members strongly devoted to the interests promoted by the group.

Atop her horse, Smokey, Lori Williams seems to be enjoying herself.

While giving his opening remarks, Mike Davis shows much feeling, showing the strain of debating.

While many Brandon students held after school jobs, one particular group combined school work and employment through participation in DCT. Diversified Cooperative Training, a co-curricular special interest club stressing leadership and personal development. DCT offered many students opportunities for work. Actually, there were two DCT's. The club sponsors were Mr. Robert Sperry and Mr. Ron Stallings. Mr. Sperry's group had been in existence for twenty years and consisted of 29 members. Mr. Stallings' group had only been in existence for ten years and had 27 members.

To raise money for club projects, Mr. Stallings' group held popcorn sales. As a service to the community, they visited the patients at St. Jukes Childrens' Hospital.

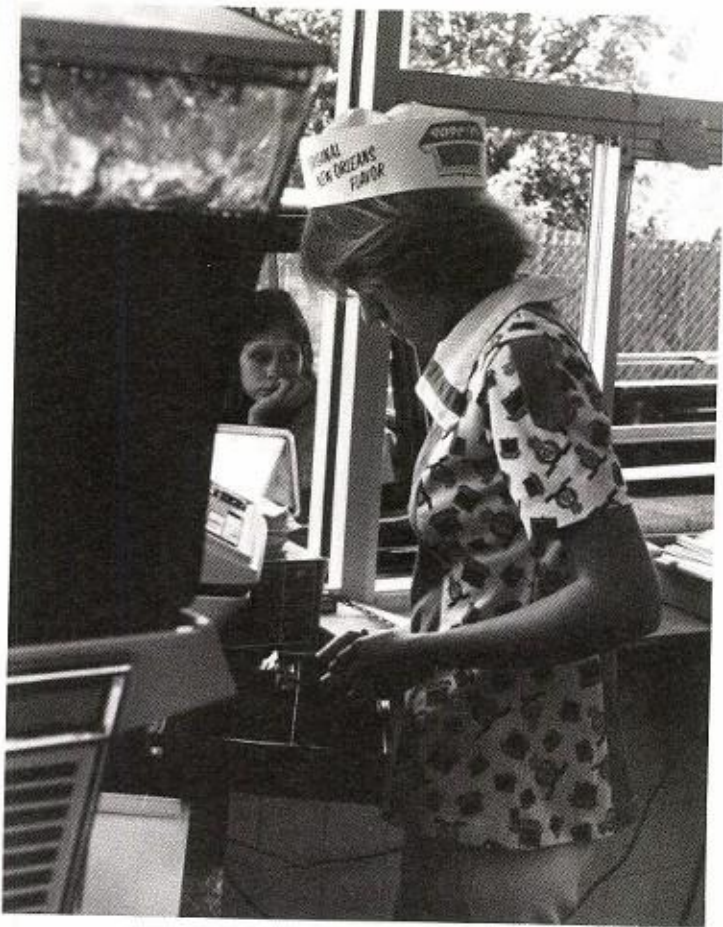

Mr. Sperry's group raised money with pocket flyers. Money they earned helped pay for an employer-employee banquet. To benefit the community they visited St. Jude's Hospital, School of Hope, and Seffner Rest Home.

If one's idea of fun was mixing work and pleasure, DCT was the club to get into!

While her classmates are all busy trying to design the latest fashion, Terri Lynn daydreams about the big weekend.

What is the first thing that comes to mind when you hear the words marketing, displaying, and distribution?

DECA, Distributive Education Clubs of America, was a club with a goal to develop future leaders for marketing and distribution of goods and services. Fashion Flair DECA was also a service oriented club composed of students interested in the fashion industry. DECA was divided into two clubs, and both benefited all who joined. Fashion Flair DECA led by Mrs. Glenda Billett, helped students in the world of fashion marketing. They held many fashion shows and fashion designer contests. They also conducted anti-shoplifting campaigns and promoted good public relations between the private sector and the business community. Mr. Bert Harris, sponsor of the other DECA, led his group down the long perilous road into district, state, and national contests. The two DECA's jointly performed a valuable service to the school in their operation of the school bookstore.

WEP, Work Experience Program, was a program which allowed students to gain experience while still obtaining salaries and high school credits. Sponsored by Ms. Rita Lynn, WEP had a very active year.

Students in both DECA and WEP worked toward a better career in the unknown world of tomorrow.

Working with the Community

By interacting with the community, members of CBE and VICA came to realize the importance of perfecting their skills in any chosen field. Actual work experience held valuable lessons for these students.

Students enrolled in Cooperative Business Education received a school credit for holding a job within the community. They met as a class one period a day, where they developed business skills and proper attitudes that could be useful on their jobs. Senior girls held their own chapter of FBLA and participated in such events as Typewriting, Shorthand, Accounting, Business Communications, and Data Processing. CBE's officers were Carrie Rountree, President; Jayne Buchanan, Vice President; Donna Jones, Recording Secretary; Tracy Tritch, Corresponding Secretary; April Salker, Treasurer; Diana Crabb, Historian; Kelli Figlio, Reporter; and Donna Johnson, Parliamentarian.

VICA, Vocational Industrial Clubs of America, also worked, offering their services to customers. Three days a week the Cosmetology Department was open to the public, and the Senior girls styled men's and women's hair. VICA's officers were Susan Palumbo, President; Diane Crumpler, Vice President; Denise Beisler, Secretary; and Robin Smith, Treasurer.

The experiences gained in these two organizations were sure to prove priceless to these students in the years to come.

As the bell rang for special interest club period, 57 members eagerly gathered for their monthly Future Business Leaders of America meeting. During their FBLA meetings, leading and specialized business employees were introduced. They showed the variety of jobs offered in business and the expectations which came along with those jobs.

An extremely positive aspect of the club was that it gave many students an opportunity to be involved in Brandon High School. For weeks they were busy selling M & M's in order to raise funds to sponsor students for local, state, and national contests. The club also bought supplies for the Business Department.

FBLA was an international coed organization, designed to subject students to the fascinating, competitive world of business, for America is business.

If our parents and grandparents were graduates of Brandon High, they might also have been members of the Brandon chapters of FFA (Future Farmers of America) or FHA (Future Homemakers of America). The two organizations boasted lengthy records of existence. FFA's chapter at Brandon was begun in 1929 and was still considered to be the leadership part of the agriculture program. The 80 members worked on the theory that agriculture was our life support. FFA deserved a fair share of recognition for being one of the few groups which did not raise its money by selling M&M's. Rather, club members earned money for projects by selling hay, cattle, citrus, and vegetables. Providing trees for the community was one of their worthwhile endeavors. FFA also helped the Lions Club with Christmas tree sales, bought furniture and repaired equipment for all departments in the school, and furnished the palms and platform for graduation. During its 51 years of activity, FFA had never lost the enthusiasm of its members.

Equally enthusiastic was FHA, a club which had been at Brandon for as long as there had been a Brandon. Some of the group's projects included attending State Convention, adopting an older person, and helping to beautify the teachers' lounge. Carrying over what was learned in home economics classes into club meetings, the twenty-five members of the group enjoyed programs on food, child development, housing, family economics, and clothing.

A much younger group, related to FHA, was HERO (Home Economics Related Occupations) in its second year of existence. This group concentrated on providing experience in teaching pre-school children. A car wash was their method of raising funds for various projects. Within the community HERO made child care services available.

All three groups were part of our school's history, but each of the three groups was busy making more history within our school.

As two of the largest special interest clubs at Brandon High, CFS (Christian Fellowship Society) and FCA (Fellowship of Christian Athletes) set out to spread the word about Christ as their goal for the '80-'81 school year. Many of the students of Brandon were very active in church activities, and, when school began, the students brought their beliefs in Christ to school and shared their feelings with others by joining CFS or FCA. CFS members went on a retreat to Camp Florida for one weekend. Athletes who wanted to share their beliefs in Christ joined FCA. At their monthly meetings, there were often guest speakers or films with testimonials. Throughout the year Bible meetings were held at individual FCA members' homes in the evenings. Members of both organizations appreciated the opportunity to be with other students who shared their religious convictions.

Working For Perfection

Flute player Teri Bartlett pays careful attention to the drum major during a halftime performance.

Assistant Drum Major Marsh Rainey prepares for the next routine.

Concentrating on both counting the beats and marching are Denise Williams, Alanna Stephens, and Mark Cannella.

Performing during halftime at football games was just a small portion of the Marching Band's activities. Pep Rallies, parades and district contest were events these members spent hours practicing for.

Mr. Lonnie Keen worked with the band during their sixth period class, while Gregg Morrow, Head Drum Major, and Marsh Rainey, Assistant Drum Major, directed the band on the field and during the Monday Night rehearsals. All these practices paid off as the band marched to its 24th consecutive superior.

The band sold light bulbs as a fund raiser. The money earned was used to purchase new uniforms.

It took plenty of time and desire to achieve the superiority to this 146-member band.

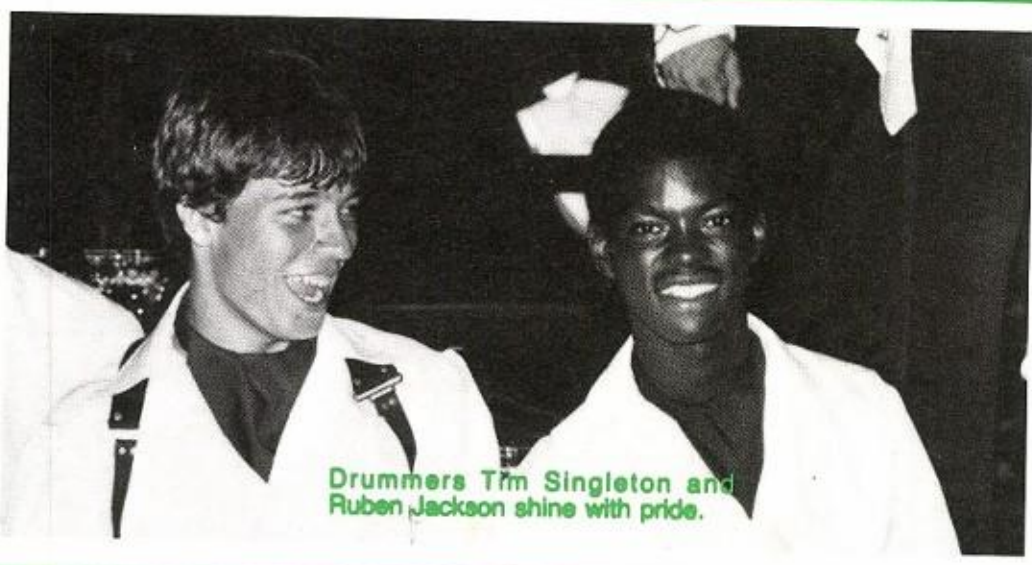

After a bad call, Jeff Lewis, David Waring and Brad Kimbro show their disagreement.

With all her music memorized, Jeanine Powers concentrates on the beat.

David Smith, Mark Tumlin and Wade Turner display precision drum skills.

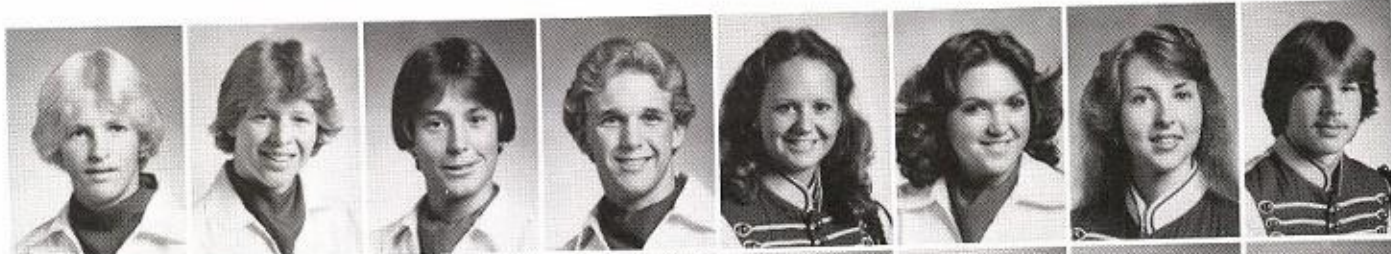

Drummers Tim Singleton and Ruben Jackson shine with pride.

Directing the band during halftime is a responsibility of Drum Major Gregg Morrow.

Musical P.R. Agents

Jeff Whitacre and Randy Nunley polish their music skills on their trumpets.

The 1980-81 Aquilla club, which was led by Mr. Earl J. Pate, consisted of twenty-four singers and six band members.

A very significant characteristic of the members of Aquilla was that there were no certain students that actually ran the group, but rather, each individual was expected to be a leader. This unique form of leadership resulted in one of the hardest working singing groups at BHS — one which received superior ratings at both district and state contests. A very honorable recognition came to Aquilla from the Veterans' Administration in Washington, D.C. for their outstanding services.

Along with singing their way up to top ratings at contests, Aquilla also successfully performed as the singing public relations agents of the Brandon community.

They visited schools, churches, clubs and hospitals, touching many hearts with their music.

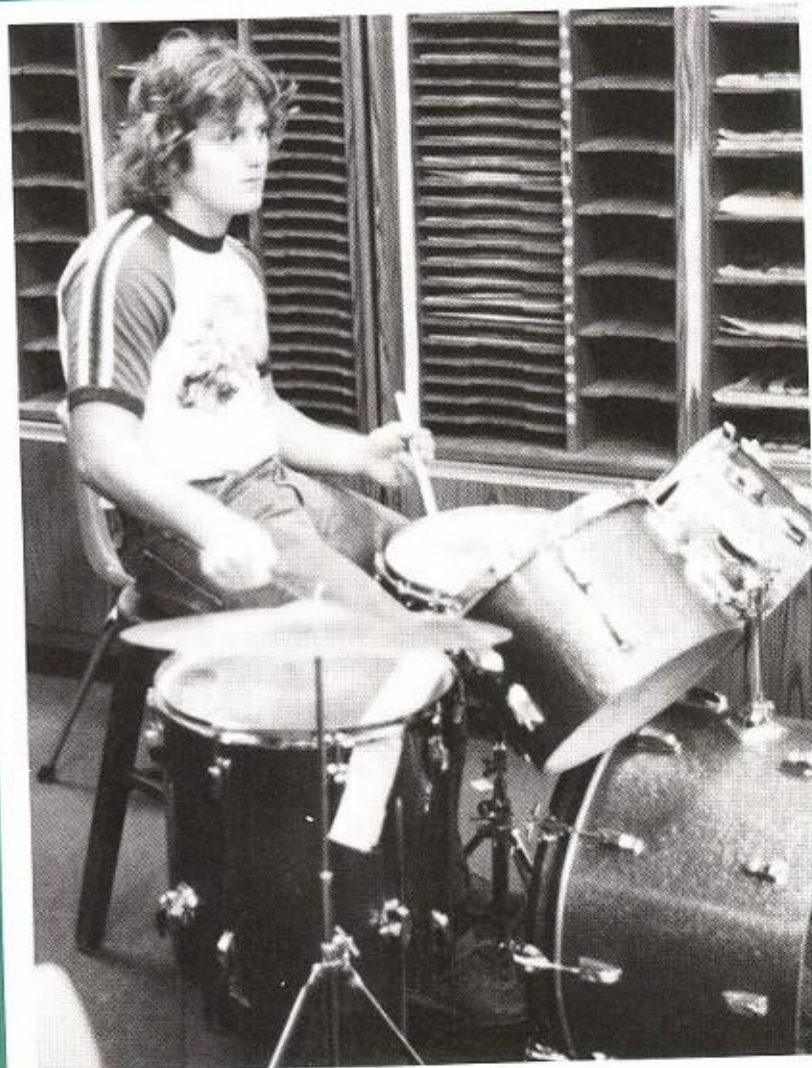

The 1980-81 Stage Band, which completed its sixth year of existence at BHS was led by Mr. Lonnie J. Keen, and consisted of thirty very talented members.

The Stage Band served the community by playing at approximately thirty concerts in the Brandon and Tampa area. Along with entertaining the people of our community, the Stage Band attended district and state Stage Band contests and received superior ratings at both.

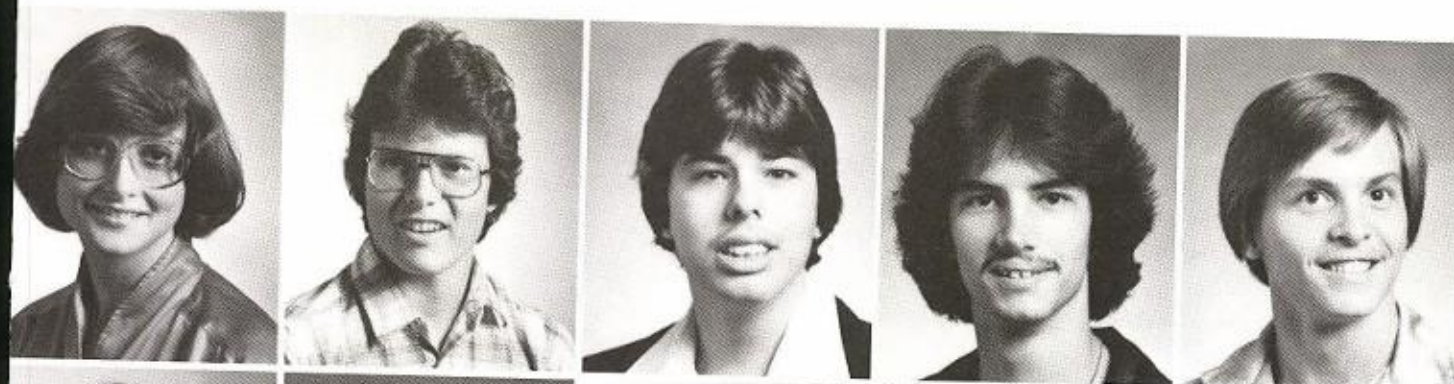

There could not have been a doubt in anyone's mind about Brandon High School's magnificent musical representation by both Aquilla and Stage Band.

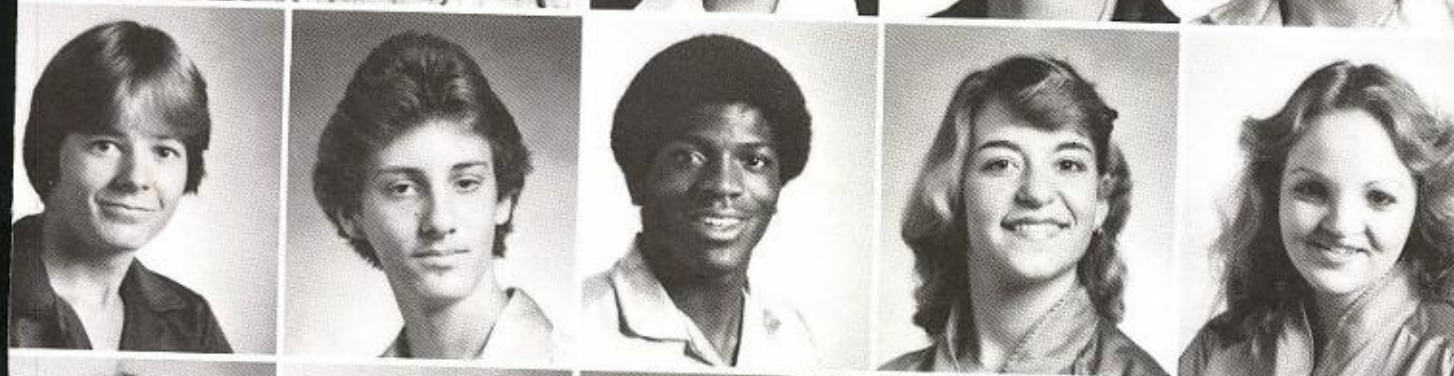

Concentrating intently on their music, John Rock, Tim Fowler, and David Waring play their trombones.

Working toward perfection, Andy Riotto practices on the drums for a Stage Band concert.

Keeping Busy

Happiness, to one group at school was joining together to raise their voices in song. The Brandon High School Concert Choir spent many hard and long hours rehearsing every day to accomplish many outstanding achievements such as performing at the annual Walt Disney World Candlelight Concert and the Florida State Fair. Being a member of the choir also included participating in district and state contests and visiting the V.A. Hospital at Christmas. The choir had 85 members, who, when not singing, kept themselves busy raising money by selling BHS mugs and candy and having car washes. All this was organized by sponsor, Mr. Earl J. Pate, who succeeded in making the Concert Choir one of the most outstanding organizations of its type in the county.

Playing Their Hearts Out

For fourteen years Brandon High had had an orchestra and it was, for all that time, the only one in Hillsborough County. Not content to rest on that distinction, the 83 members of Orchestra played their hearts out for our school and community.

As the sponsor of this group, Miss Linda Groh made jokes and faces to keep "her kids" in stitches, but it kept them practicing and trying to understand the composer's point of view to the music.

Tuxedos for the guys were some of the new additions during the year, as well as sophomores that would definitely be seen in the years to come.

Hoping to do well, the Orchestra practiced every Tuesday night and played at the school and in the community for such events as the dedication of the Nativity Church and the Calendar Couple Finals and the State Contest where they earned another straight superior.

The officers and sponsor made the rules and regulations for the group to follow.

Everyone involved in Orchestra hoped that the organization would stay strong in future years and would continue to earn the respect and admiration of people the school and community.

Looking up at the director, Heidi Norden keeps in time with the beat.

Greg Bellotte concentrates on the music.

Being the conductor, Miss Linda Groh cues the french horns.

Bradley Harp and Chris Daniel glance at the music before looking back up.

As Vice-president, Louveinia Shular must set an example to her underclassmen.

Because she plays the bells in band, Sybrian Castleman has no problem following the music.

Spirit Unrivaled

Few people put as much effort and enthusiasm into building the spirit of Brandon High School as did the dedicated cheerleaders led by Head Cheerleader Nancy White. It took more than individual ability; it took a team effort to generate the enthusiasm needed to spur our teams on to do their best. Their synchronized routines and their impulsive bursts of energy added to the overall excellence of their performance.

Performing at athletic events was not their only function, however. Brandon's cheerleaders participated in the Cerebral Palsy Bikeathon and also in many cheerleading clinics such as the National Cheerleading Association Clinic where they achieved straight superiors and were awarded the Spirit Award.

The cheerleaders really worked hard to try to erase what they felt was the stereotype image of a bunch of girls who got a lot of attention at football games. Brandon's cheerleaders made big contributions, not only through their cheering but also through their school and community involvement. Thanks to the cheerleaders and their sponsors Mrs. Judy Simmons and Miss Denise Knox for making the 1980-81 school year a big success.

You saw them performing during the football games, but that's not all they did. The Dancerettes participated in a kick-a-thon to benefit Muscular Dystrophy. It was held at the Winter Haven Mall. In groups of five, they kicked in five minute intervals every hour for six hours. Robin Bacon won an individual prize for raising over $700.00. In addition to that, they had a car wash in order to purchase their uniforms and props, and they repainted the stadium each year. Miss Patricia Fussell, their sponsor, kept her girls very busy with practice everyday from 2:00 until 3:30. As a result of those countless hours of drills, it was no wonder they were always in perfect unison.

Sarah Cooper, Jamie Godfrey, and Melody Spencer join in with the rest of the Dancerettes in our Alma Mater.

Head

The Colorguard and Majorettes were two groups which made up the Brandon High School Squad. This organization had been in existence since the beginning of Brandon High School.

The squad, which was sponsored by Miss Patricia Fussell, had fifty-eight members. The Head Majorette was Rosemary Pullinger and the Head Colorguard was Cami Bristow.

The BHS squad held a car wash which was used to pay for uniforms and props as well as flags for the District Twirling Contest. The squad, in company with Brandon Jaycees, raised in excess of $2,000.00 for Muscular Dystrophy. The money was presented by the seniors on the squad on television during the Labor Day Telethon. They also raised money for the prevention and cure of cancer. The repainting of the stadium every year was another responsibility taken on by the squad.

The squad practiced one and a half hours a day from 2:00 until 3:30 and each Monday evening from 7:00 until 9:00. They performed at football games, parades, and district and state twirling contests.

The language of yearbook consisted of strange jargon like "bleed it to the gutter," "mug shot," "top pic," "overburn in 100% # 458," "Copy a, 10," and "4-Color." Twenty-nine Eagle staff members spent a hectic, sometimes hilarious year speaking that language and putting together this 448 page yearbook. They worked 6th period in Rooms 303 and 312, and most said they worked on yearbook for all the rest of their waking hours too. By June any staff member could have written a fat book on the subject of putting together the Eagle. Here in capsule form is what that year was like:

Supplement will be done by new publisher ... we take one look at new materials and cry ... staff shows up suntanned ... no ads sold and we need $500 ... Kullberg arrives from Winston-Salem ... sophomores can't take pressure, disappear ... Eric and Easter hang in there ... we start spreading the rumor that the cover will be green (no one believes us) ... we fight over cover design ... Thomas and Diane lead the battle of the spreading eagle ... lobby and Heidi launch counter attack with the noble head ... compromise ... underclass mug shots, so soon? biggest decision ... Rax, McDonald's, Burger King? ... NO compromises ... Nancy takes orders to all three ... Calendar Couples ... the missing $55 ... Help! Where are the judges? ... Candy tells us she's confused ... Skipper discovers the lighting booth ... Diane's cover keeps falling off the page ... Heidi's mike quits while contestants keep walking ... Ardra's escort almost doesn't show ... Ardra almost kills ... Kathy opens mouth, volunteers for Homecoming Exhibit (sorry immediately) ... Chris robs dad's store of all spray paint ... Lisa learns about living too close to Dorsey house ... Gina gets lost for several days ... Keith is still on vacation ... we eat all the brownies from Jean's secret pal ... Heidi's house becomes giant yearbook factory ... hamburgers, hot dogs ease the panic ... new staff finds out why people go crazy on deadline day ... Bryn Alan coins new word, ReRe-takes ... Lyssie saves carbons for posterity ... Lei Roi wins prize for best unused caption ... football team makes amazing suggestion to Kevin and Candy ... Pam asks, "Where are my camping pictures?" ... Thomas stays awake three nights and becomes genuine zombie ... Why do yearbook sales have to start on deadline day? Nobody knows! ... Mrs. B forgets receipt books and fakes it ... Keely forges PB 3,000 times ... Mike gets unique signature ... Diane, Jean, Nancy and Michele leave Pinellas early ... win prizes anyway ... we take 5,000 pics of Senior Day ... 4 are good ones ... entire staff disappears for Spirit Week ... Indian Dorsey does whole routine at Sambo's (including "caca pants") 5:45AM ... Mary's wand becomes permanent fixture along with Ken's pants and "Mental Ward" ... Homecoming exhibit done by Kathy and Co. wins Best Overall ... second deadline ... Homecoming Week recovery slowed by approaching massive deadline ... Jean shoots all clubs very successfully despite no bleachers and no photographer (temporarily) ... Terri and Eric discover ROTC ... Chrisje pleads for band mugs, gets a tattoo ... Heidi and Mrs. B race to proof 160 pages before Thanksgiving ... turkey-stuffed staff returns to argue over what? where? when? for Christmas ... we rule out Bern's (again) ... humanitarian streak shows when we take gifts and food to our needy family ... Diane promises to do our Christmas Card Lane entry ... SAC Christmas Ball ... We need pics by Jan. 10th ... Holidays! Relief! No thoughts of deadlines! (except Chris and Pam, they're home alphabetizing 3,000 pics) ... Jan. 5 the light dawns ... third deadline is only two weeks away ... All those little bitty pics on one page? Do I have to? ... book is almost wrapped up ... ALMOST ... typing Deanna's index gives us permanent arthritis ... bluelines arrive ... should we flop this, bleed that, replace that, or leave it alone? ... How many ways can you spell Grandstrand? ... NEW YORK! Look out Big Apple! here we come! ... stories to tell, Broadway fever and sore feet ... "no money, no fun, we stay home ..." Kevin lives in Commons Area ... Bill gets senioritis bad ... Orlando Hyatt beckons for FSPA ... we never pass up a good thing ... oh please let the books be on time ... the books arrive ... world's greatest moment is ripping open first box for first glimpse of the final product ... Do you know what it's like to lift eleven tons? ... no names on covers, we don't have to alphabetize (Yea!) ... the day we have waited for arrives ... seniors file into the auditorium ... the slide show begins ... cover of the '81 Eagle is flashed onto the screen ... proudly we stand ... books are distributed ... days are set aside to print names on covers ... senior staff members attend 6th period for the last time ... juniors and sophomores begin work on the Spring Supplement.

Deadlines had to be met. News had to be gathered quickly and accurately. Publishing a monthly newspaper was hard, but The Emblem's twenty-five staff members worked many hours past their sixth period class to meet their deadlines.

The Emblem was financed with money made from advertisements, newspaper sales to students, and their fund-raiser, publishing the school calendar.

The 1980-81 staff consisted of hard-working typists, artists, reporters, writers, and photographers. Their main objective was the meeting of deadlines successfully; and, with this accomplished, they gained feelings of pride, satisfaction, and achievement. They were a group dedicated to informing the school.

Mrs. Linda McAdam was the newspaper's adviser. Nancy White, Editor, and Kellie Fitzpatrick, Co-Editor, were the staff's student leaders. These three provided the leadership that kept the Emblem team strong and resulted in a whole series of fine publishing efforts throughout the year.

Working to meet their deadline are Terri Schinbeckler and Linda Auer.

Capturing Creative Capabilities

In 1972, Leonard, the B.H.S. literary magazine, was made possible. It had improved and progressed over the years and even changed its name. Aerie, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Sandy Waldron, had become even better than before.

With a staff of seventeen talented people and the help of many student contributors, Aerie was created and produced the second semester of the school year. It was made up of poems, short stories, interviews, and artwork contributed not only by the staff, but from many different students throughout the school. Through these contributions Aerie was a reflection of the creative capabilities of students at Brandon.

Around the World and Back

Wearing a Bavarian hat, with pipe and stein in hand, Marcus Weber looks like he's back in Germany.

At their Christmas party, German Club members look over the articles brought from Germany.

Typing and mailing letters is no easy job according to Mike Davis.

Studying a foreign language could get to be so interesting that some people opted for extra time through club membership in the organization devoted to that language.

Students found that the clubs offered many activities related to the language that were not included in the regular class.

The Spanish Club, sponsored by Mr. Ralph Lopez, watched films about Spanish speaking countries at their meetings and also had the chance to taste cultural foods and play games in Spanish. At Christmas time, they learned about and participated in the tradition of the pinata.

In the German Club, which was sponsored by Mrs. Barbara Anderson, the members discussed what could be done to improve their club. They also held a car wash and participated in the German Convention and Culture Day. They also celebrated Christmas by having a party with traditional German delicacies and with the room decorated with posters and objects from Germany.

The German Club was still small, but its members hoped to, and intended to, help it grow.

A very special honor came to the Spanish Club when its members won the presidency of FSSC, the Florida State Spanish Conference.

That job took a lot of time and effort typing and mailing letters to the other members of the FSSC, and keeping themselves and the other members informed as to what was going on in Florida that applied to Spanish speaking people.

Brandon treated this honor with the respect it deserved. With Mr. Malcolm Chandler leading the way, the members of the FSSC took great pride in the work entailed.

Both of these clubs boasted thriving memberships and a great interest in the language and the country from which they originated.

The habits and customs of the Ancient Romans and of modern Frenchmen were the special interests of members of Latin Club and French Club. Under the leadership of their sponsor, Mrs. Suzette Thompson, members of French Club polished up their skills in speaking French while enjoying films, speakers, and club projects aimed at promoting an understanding of the French way of life. In the spring, members of the group represented Brandon at French Declamation, where they performed skits, recited poetry, and competed against other high schools with their knowledge of French. Latin Club members were proud of their new teacher and sponsor, Mrs. Terri Meiser, whose imagination and talent helped make Latin Club a successful organization. Among the group's activities were cultural food fests and a toga party. Latin Club also hoped to compete in Latin Forum. Both groups, French Club and Latin Club, widened the worlds of their members by providing exposure to different cultures.

Throughout the year students hear many unusual sounds in class. Among them were the firing of rifles, the rat-a-tat of drums and the ringing out of bugles. These were the sounds of some of the ROTC programs. The Brandon High Rifle Team and the Drum and Bugle Corps were readying themselves for competitions against other schools.

The Rifle Team at Brandon High has always been one of the best, and they do not lose that status. The Rifle Team has been in existence at Brandon High for years and had 12 members. The group sponsor was Sergeant Kyle Blevins and the Team Captain was Kevin Amos. The club met daily and practiced firing or discussed better methods.

Many of the students on the Rifle Team were also involved in the National Rifle Association. NRA had been in existence at Brandon for 8 years and had 31 members. The club held outings weekends and holidays. Teaching marksmanship skills was one of the purposes of the club. The officers of the club were Sponsor — Sergeant Kyle Blevins, President — Kevin Amos, Vice President — Allen Raiford, Secretary — Joseph Tierney, Treasurer — Charles Michel, and Master of Arms — Hugh Downing.

For those in ROTC that were musically inclined there was the Drum and Bugle Corps. The group had been in existence at Brandon for eight years and had fifteen members. The Corps was reorganized in 1980 under the direction of Mr. Lonnie Keen, the band director. They supported ROTC at all reviews and parades, and they competed during the year against other ROTC bands. The officers of Drum and Bugle were Frank Buehler — Commander, Michael Jones — First Sgt., Ronald Irvin — Bugle Section Leader, Timothy Singleton — Drum Section Leader, and Mr. Lonnie Keen — Instructor.

R.O.T.C. Drill Team and Colorguard members worked hard and long. Hours of spring practice were put forth in order to ensure that these organizations performed to the best of their abilities. Dedication established perfection and quality in their performances.

The sacrificed time paid off. The Male Drill Team, otherwise known as the Marching Fusiliers, held first place in the county, central state, and state. They received second place in the Southeast and fifth place in the nation.

The Female Drill Team received recognition for their efforts also. The Marching Fusillettes won first place in the county and second place in both the central state and state meets.

Presenting the colors at many important community functions was one of the many responsibilities of the R.O.T.C. Colorguard. They presented the colors at all the football games, F.B.L.A. functions and P.T.S.A. meetings also. To add to their list of merits, the Colorguard also competed in the Nationals.

For the Brandon High School R.O.T.C. Drill Teams and Colorguards determination and self-discipline resulted in high honors and community recognition.

More About Life

Hoping for the best, Theresa Labr stands calmly as she is weighed by Wanza Mosley.

As student interest in a subject grew, a request for a new club serving that interest would soon follow. Thus, each year, names of new groups appeared on the organization roster. Two such special interest clubs were Social Studies Club, in its sixth year, and Health Occupations of America (HOSA), in its first year of existence. These clubs helped interest the students and enable them to participate in their fields of study.

The HOSA Club had 35 members when it began at Brandon High. Its motto was "Hands of HOSA mold the health of tomorrow." The club was sponsored by Mrs. Barbara Redenbo, RN, and the officers were Dan Frotscher — President, Joey Martin — Vice President, Teresa McCown — Secretary, Cassandra Partin — Treasurer, Kathy Wood — Reporter, Gina Hampton and Linda Werner — Historians, and Brigitta Hirschfeld — Chaplain. HOSA's fund-raising activity was selling glass greetings. This money was used to send contest winners to regional and state competition. Getting involved to help the school was also important to HOSA, the club participated in the Health-o-Rama and was attempting to buy a wheel chair for the Dean's office. This club gave an opportunity for a student to explore and discover health careers available to him.

The Social Studies Club was one of the larger clubs at Brandon High School, consisting of 150 members between the A.M. and P.M. sessions. It was also one of the more serious and academically oriented clubs. As they gained a reputation for BHS at the county and state levels, Social Studies Club spread an awareness of the social sciences and world affairs. A major event of the club was participating in the Model U.N. Funds were raised to send members and faculty supervisors to the USF and Florida High School Model United Nations where they competed for awards. The club was sponsored by Mr. James S. Sopkin and the officers were Todd Disotell — President, Frank Buehler — Vice President, Van Nguyen — Secretary, Bill Oglo — Treasurer, and Alan Taliaferro — Sergeant at Arms.

Both Social Studies Club and HOSA more than met Brandon students' demands for informative, educational special interest organizations.

The Senate was a newly formed division of Student Government consisting of five members from each class. These fifteen people assisted the officers and Executive Board, acting as mediators between them and the representatives at large. It proved to be a successful addition to Student Government and would be continued — another of the many firsts of 1981.

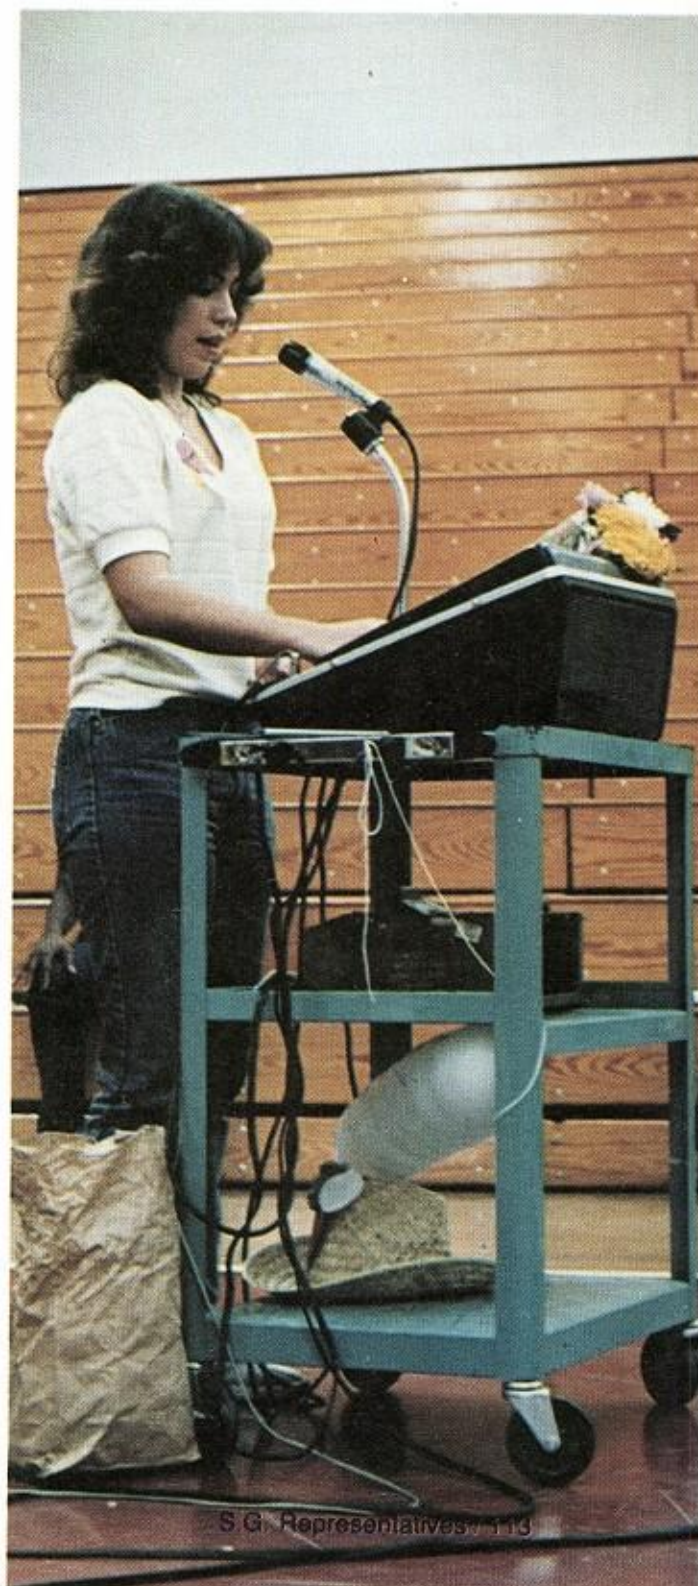

Student Government was also made up of representatives elected from each of our 80 homerooms, alternates, and members at large. For so large a group, the meetings ran smoothly and school spirit was abundant. That so many people wished to participate in this organization was an accomplishment in itself.

Kelly Archer considers the merits of some of Student Government's ideas.

In May of 1980, Student Government ran for the office of President at the Florida State Convention of Student Governments and won! This was a very distinct honor and a great responsibility which involved a year full of hard work, ambition, and travel for the officers and executive board. Setting a fine example for the state, a group of very dedicated members went to the National Association of Student Councils and Camp Cheeley, both held in Colorado. New ideas were brought back for activities and fund raisers, and contact was established with Student Governments all over the nation.

Kept busy with the Halloween Homecoming and Spirit Week, the officers and members of Student Government and Executive Board were found working dilligently at odd hours in the afternoon. With their spirit and leadership, they helped to make a number one school an even greater one.

Did you ever wonder, when clubs were selling records, tapes, bumper stickers, candy and key rings, who it was that kept everything straight so that we all sold different products and so that the demands for our money were spread out over several months' time? ICC was responsible for those fund-raisers and for whatever else involved Brandon's many clubs and organizations. ICC stood for Inter Club Council and was made up of the presidents of all the clubs and organizations at Brandon High School, headed by President Ginny Granstrand, and aided by Secretary Donna Schuster. While coordinating all the fund raising projects so that all the clubs in school weren't selling things at the same time, ICC also regulated the budgets for all the organizations and clubs in school. Besides coordinating activities for its members' clubs, ICC also sponsored its own activities including the luncheon for all the club sponsors in the spring and the American Cancer Society Walkathon in November. At weekly ICC meetings club presidents learned firsthand about upcoming events and procedures and were able to go back and pass on the information to their specific clubs. With the help of sponsor Mrs. Peggy Hill, ICC did a tremendous job keeping the clubs and organizations running smoothly.

Athletics

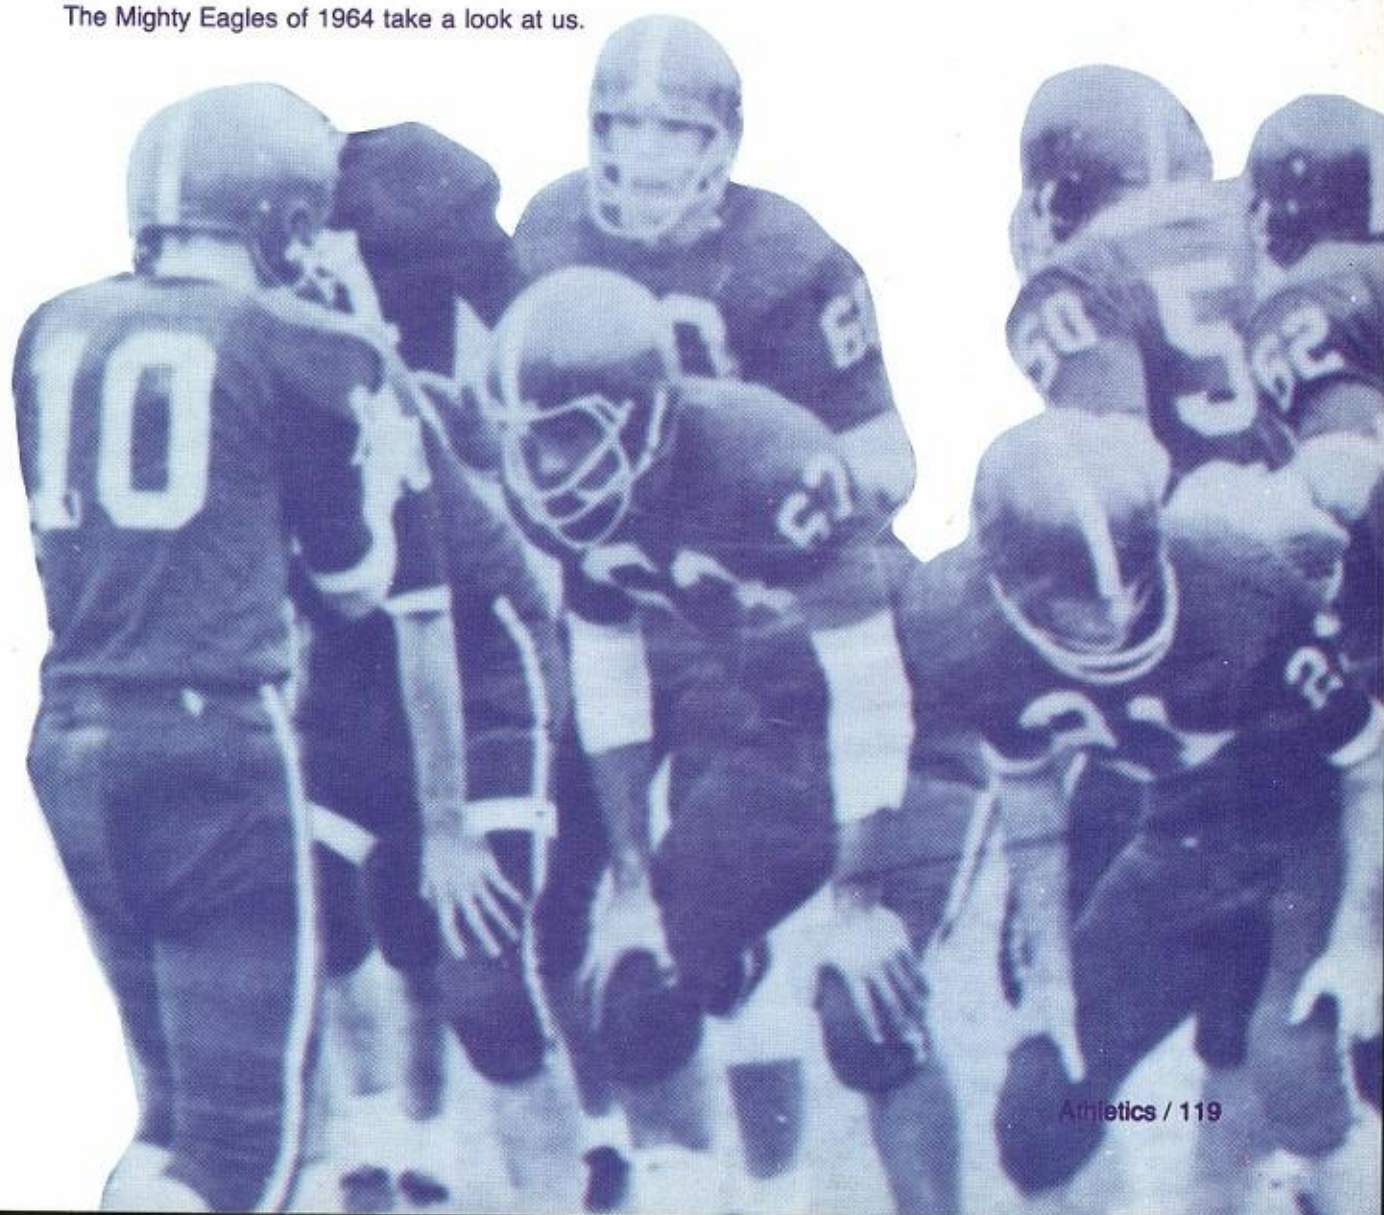

It's great to be on the winning side.

Once again Brandon High was the largest high school in Florida, and, because of that, our athletic program was also large. Pushing hard, Brandon athletes strived to be number one.

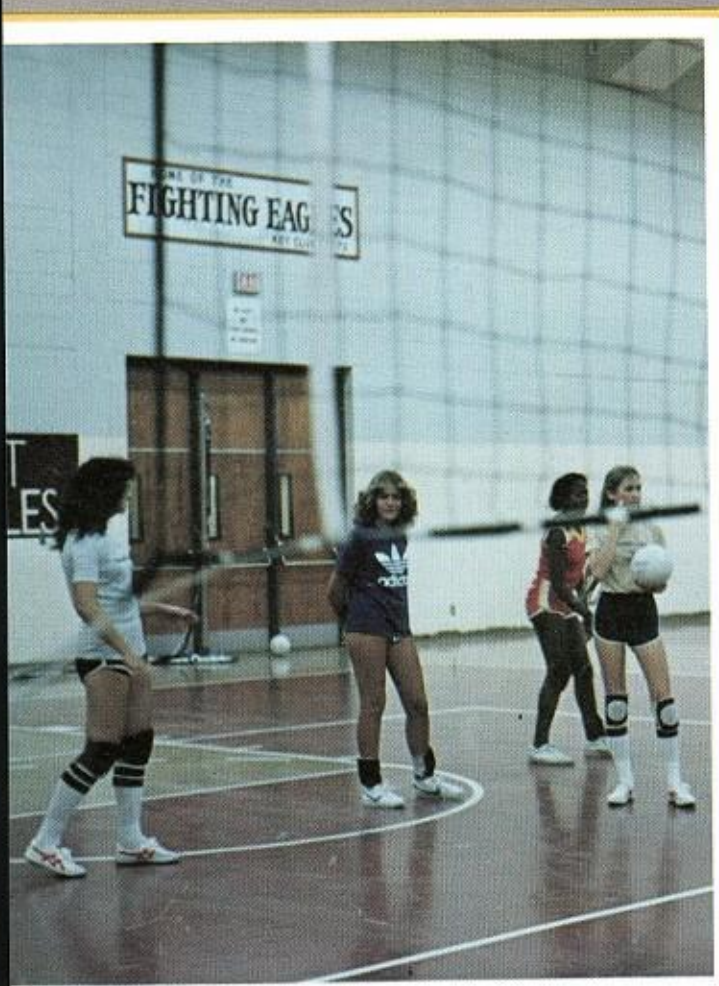

One of the fastest growing sports in America grew rapidly here in Brandon; that sport was soccer. It was successfully started and pushed like other sports to be a successful Brandon sport.

If they could have seen us in 1981, they would certainly have seen that our athletes were number one.

The Mighty Eagles of 1964 take a look at us.

Brandon's volleyball team was again a dominating team in the league. The team, which consisted of seniors, juniors, and sophomores, was made up of twenty-five members. This year the team had more sophomores than in any previous year. The abundant supply of sophomores was in preparation for the replacement of the starters who were graduating. The starters were seniors Cindy Edwards, Cynthia Gadson, Lynn Hallmark, Mickey Jackson, Terri Schinbeckler, Melissa Yee, and junior Reece Brooks. Melissa Yee, a first team all-county selection last season, was a major factor with her all round volleyball skills.

Coach Frank Vining's dedication to the sport and to his players played a major role in the ability of his team. The team practiced three days a week — Monday, Wednesday, and Friday — for two and one-half hours. They played their games on Tuesday and Thursday. The team used the 2-4 play having two setters and four hitters. With two years of experience with Coach Frank Vining in hand, the team had great expectations for the season.

The team displayed a magnificent showing in the Jamboree, emerging the only double winner of the night. This victory set the mood throughout the season.

The Long Run

Determination was the key word to both the boys' and girls' cross country teams. Having to put in many hours of school practice and showing strenuous hard work and determination were just a few of the things that were expected from the teams and it showed.

The boys' cross country team was the state runner-up champion, while the girls were the western conference, district and regional champs.

The boys' cross country team lost four all-conference runners from the 1980 state runner-up team through graduation. The team, however, had put in a great summer to repeat the previous year's accomplishments.

The team was led by outstanding performances from senior, Pat Griffith and juniors Jeff Connally ("The #1 Man") and Kevin Burnsed.

The girls' cross country team lost only two runners from the 1980 team through graduation. Their immediate goal was to be the western conference champions, and their hope was to repeat as district and regional champs. They stood a good chance against Leto, their toughest competitor, which was runner-up to Brandon. The girls' cross country team was led in victories by junior, Carrie Foret. Carrie had led the 1980 team to their winnings and titles.

All the hours of practicing, hard work, and time, devoted by both teams obviously paid off.

Pushing to the Top

Each intent on the play, Coaches — Buddy Raburn, and Glen Stewart watch the final seconds of the half.

Grunts and groans were heard before and after varsity football games as the Brandon Eagles pushed their way to top. In his first year as the head football coach, Coach Larry Bass strained to make the Eagles number one in this very important sport.

As Defensive Coordinator for the 1979-1980 team, Bass had been a major force in inspiring team spirit. His players felt that, if there was one major change in the 80-'81 season, it was in the increase in desire and dedication among the players.

Team Captains QB Mark Coon, LB Sam Schubert, and C John Cedarburg set examples of aggressive plays all season. Other seniors such as O.R.G. Steve Gay, R. Tom Rutledge, and F.B. Gary Stevens helped the team to score during the game. Talent abounded among juniors on the team who would be counted on for the next season. Bobby Starr — RG, LB — Robert Bradley, DB — Brian Harlow, DB — James Horne, and DE — Doug Barlow showed their abilities as juniors for what they hoped to do next season. Weight plays an important role in football, and the largest man on the team was DT — Mike Waytovich at 235 pounds.

The fact that there were no sophomores on the team reflected Coach Bass' philosophy that experience was so important to performance that sophomores would gain much more from a year playing JV than from a year of warming the varsity bench.

Joining the returning coaching nucleus of Bass, Stewart, and Rayburn were four other outstanding coaches — Hauer, Ippolito, Levija, Gabe, and Burnett.

Monday through Thursday at team practice, players worked on their specialties and attempted to perfect their execution of the 50 defense.

Nobody felt worse than the players and the coaches themselves when the Eagles lost; but, when they won, nobody was surer than they that pushing for the top was worth their hard work.

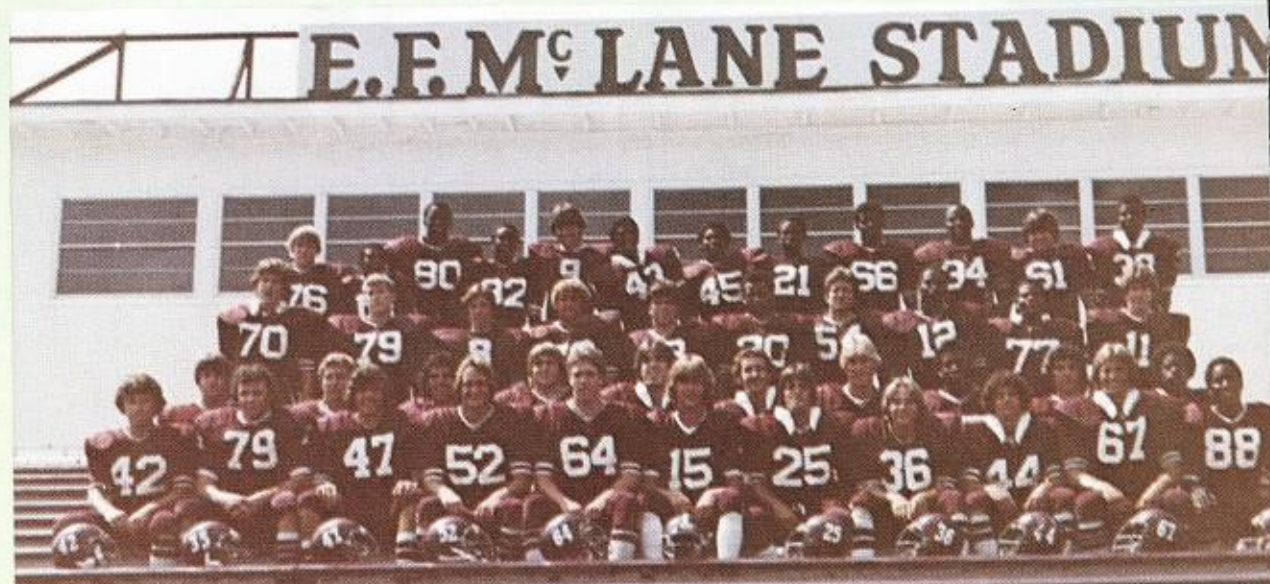

Not usually one of his duties, fixing a broken helmet becomes a necessity for Coach Matt Hauer in the middle of this game.

The 1980-81 Brandon Eagles' varsity football team started the season out with many new, young players who were filled with great enthusiasm and were led by a new coaching staff.

Brandon's team consisted of many outstanding players, one of whom was Robert Wines, who was noted as the best place kicker in the conference. Jeff George, one of the best running backs in the conference, rated fourth place, through five games gained 360 yards on 69 carries. There was Mark Coon, who rated third in the conference in passing with a completion rate of 50.2%. Steve Tyner and Willie Mingo were third and fourth in receiving. Bobby Starr, who was a junior and played the position of a guard, was a very outstanding offensive player. Stanley Scott was a junior also, playing as an effective defensive end. The first string full back was Gary Stevens, who was a senior and a very valuable player.

Through the training of Head Coach Larry Bass, the Brandon football team put out much more work and time than what was normally recognized. The players put in many hours of practice and training along with plenty of well balanced meals to keep both their minds and bodies in excellent shape.

"We did our part, you do yours," was one of the slogans the J.V. football players used when talking to members of other athletic teams at Brandon.

Once again, the J.V. football team enjoyed a season as one of the best squads in the county.

Returning Head Coach Jim Graves, along with Coaches Larry Bass, Mike Burgett, Tom Levija, Buddy Rayburn, Glenn Stewart and new addition Tony Ippolito, showed the county how great BHS really was.

When asked what he thought of coaching at Brandon, Tony Ippolito said that Brandon had a good football program, that it was a challenge to make the team as good as it was last year, and that he didn't want to go anywhere else.

Coach Ippolito, who graduated from Brandon in 1975, was one of the stars of the varsity football team that year, as well as of the wrestling team. The J.V. team had a great season, ending up with a 6-0 record for the season.

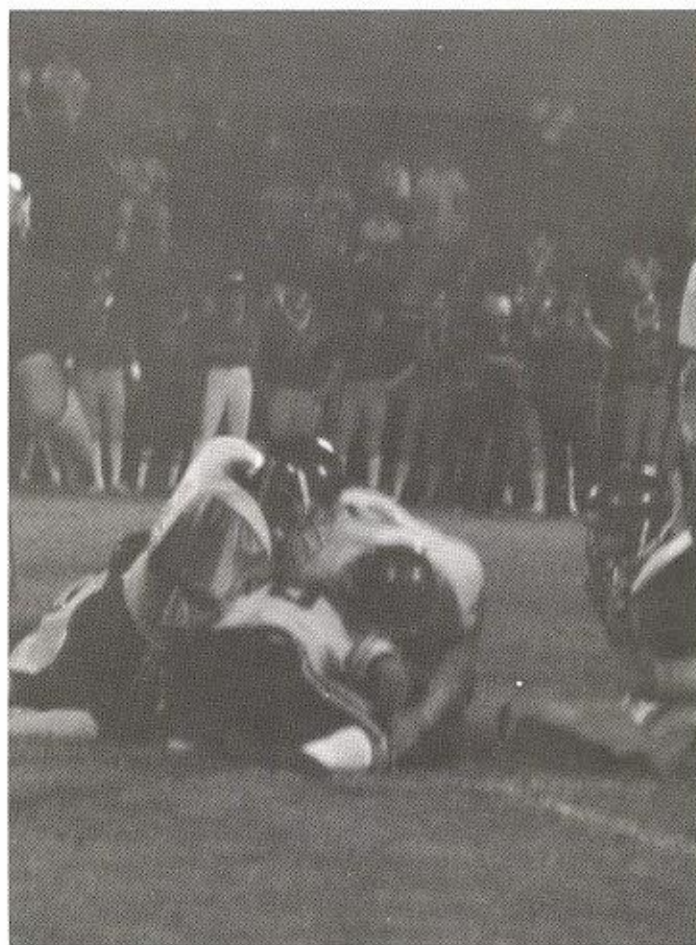

Though they didn't play before the large crowds that the varsity did, these men were not discouraged. They still played the best football that they knew how, and it paid off.

The 1980-81 Brandon Eagles Basketball team found themselves starting out the eighties with basically a no-name team; but even though the players who made up the team started out as being not very well known, they carried with them a genuine, enthusiastic attitude through the season.

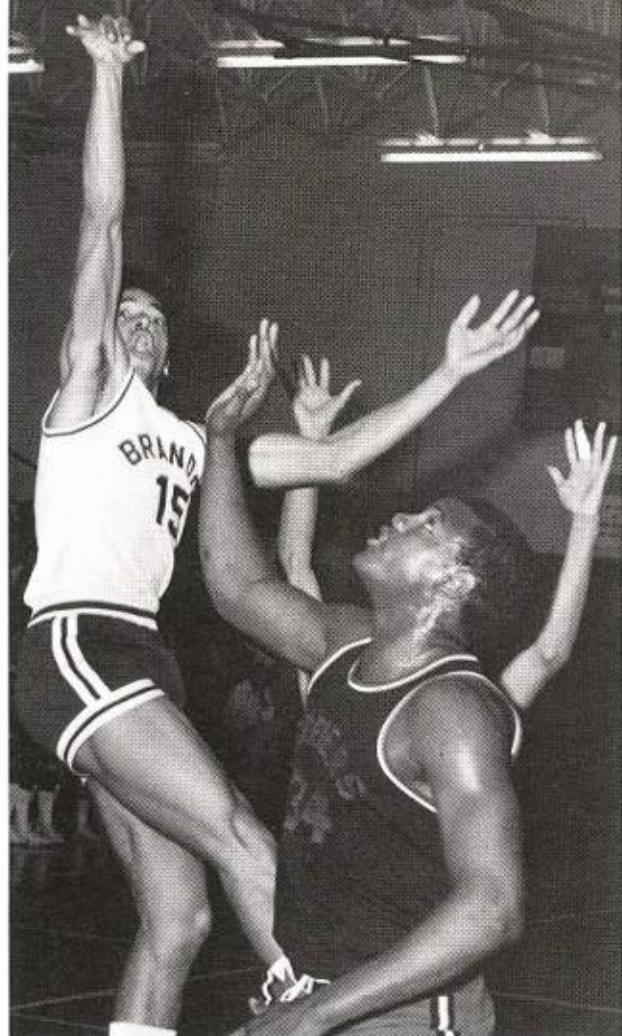

The head-coach of the Eagles was Jack Bennett, who completed his fifth year of coaching at Brandon in 1981, and his twentieth year in over-all coaching.

The lettermen returning were Tommy Conley, Porter Dunlap, and Wayne Washington who were all three quality quick guards.

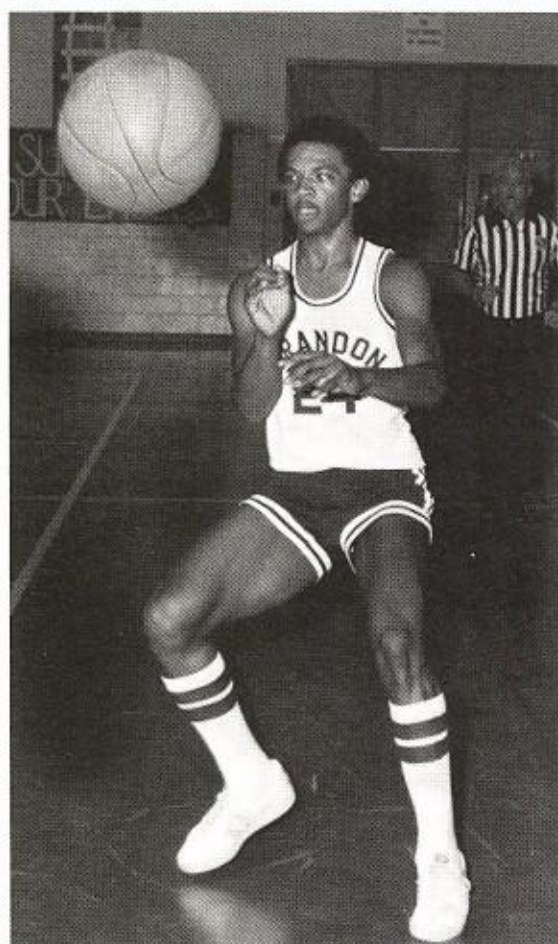

Jeff Singletary provided the necessary board strength along with strong man Richard Chancey. Woody Davis was an improved player over the season. Pat Piché, Eric Philyor, and pint-size Greg Jones added depth to the team.

Small But Tough

As top contenders for the Western Conference, the Brandon Girls' Varsity Basketball team was smaller than in past years, but what they lacked in size they more than made up for it in speed and spirit. The versatility of Kim Lambert, Kathy Lambert, Kathy Davis, Yolanda Holmes, Ginny Grandstrand, Julie Thompson, and Cynthia Gadson led the team offensively and defensively with strong drives, speed, rebounds and accuracy.

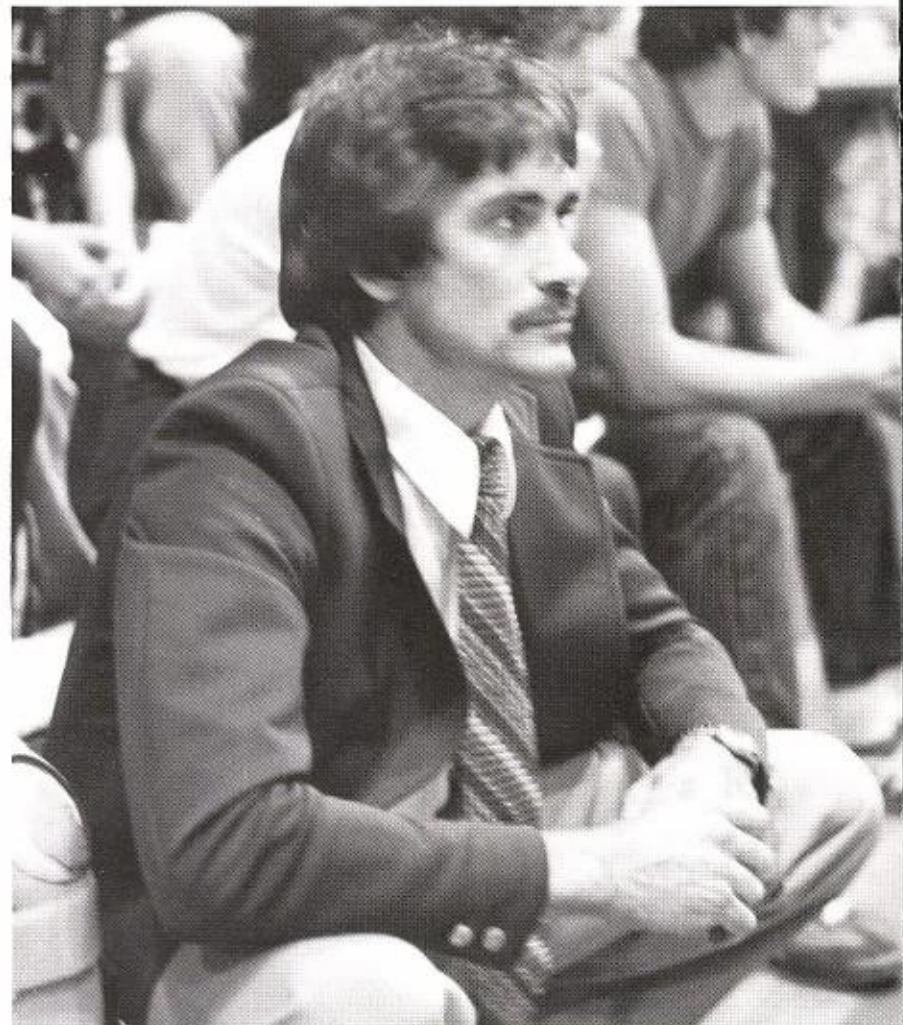

Coaching the team for the first time, Coach Frank Vining added a new dimension to the team's playing and spirit. Other members who rounded the team off to be a strong contender against rival teams were Carol Whitney, Angie Callender, Rene Danials, Anne Jamrog, Carrie Baker, Reece Brooks, Terri Shettle, Kitrina Kelley and Edwina Griffin.

Win! Win! Win! was the theme for the 1981 Brandon High Varsity Wrestling Squad this past season. Under the leadership of first year coach Russ Cozart, the wrestlers maintained a balanced desire to win. The Eagles opened their season with a streak of eighty-four undefeated matches. Coach Cozart said the team's strength came from the eleven seniors out of the thirteen positions on the squad. Led by Tony Gustafson, Mark Herren, Mike Waytovich, Jerry Hildreth, John Chavez, John Gorman (the only sophomore), Kirk Johnson, and Mike Sebetzki, the grapplers maintained an unbelievable record in the districts, regionals and state tournaments.

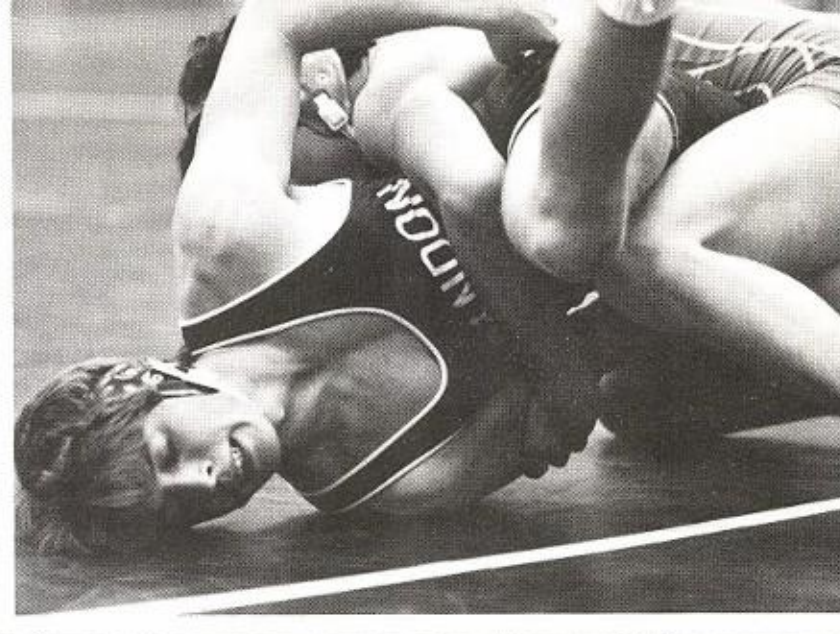

Alex Ippolito, the brother of Brandon's first state champion, Assistant Coach Tony Ippolito, was the only junior to make the squad. The final results helped the Eagle Wrestlers keep the streak going.

The Junior Varsity Wrestling Team looked forward to a new and challenging season as they began practice in November. With new coach Russ Cozart transferring to Brandon from Chamberlain, the J.V. team worked hard toward a successful year.

Because the interest in wrestling at Brandon was great, the wrestlers had to have "wrestle-offs" to earn places in the payee line-up for each match. Outstanding wrestlers included junior Charles Goins in the 140-pound weight class, junior Chipper Clark, who later moved up to the varsity team in the 114-pound position, and sophomore Andre Darby who wrestled the 121-pound spot.

These athletes had the desire and ability to make the Junior Varsity Wrestling Team what it was in 1981: awesome, amazing, unbeatable.

While J.V. wrestlers, as well as all the other sports teams, entered their season anticipating success, a very important team of adults was working to insure that each athletic activity was scheduled properly and facilities were available.

Mr. Raymond McCoy, Business Manager, and Miss Betty Blake, Assistant Business Manager, were responsible for ordering tickets, hiring ticket sellers and deputies for security, and paying officials and other game personnel for each sports event hosted at Brandon High. In addition to these responsibilities, they had to file a financial report and deposit all money in the bank. Because of the hard work put out by these individuals and other members in the Athletic Booster Club, Brandon received the Carey E. McDonald Award. This award recognizes the top athletic program in the state of Florida for the 1979-80 school year.

A Kick in the BHS Grass

Until about 1970, soccer had been a "game played by Englishmen," a sport about which we in the U.S. knew little or nothing. In Brandon, interest in soccer had sprung from two sources: Tampa's major league soccer team and youth participation in large, well-run soccer league in the community. When Hillsborough County appropriated funds for the establishment of high school soccer teams, Brandon students responded by turning out in large numbers to vie for positions on the team. From the fifty who tried out, Boys' Soccer Coach, Paul Trojak, had to cut twenty team members. Although turning away good players because there was no more room was difficult, it pointed to the strength of those who did survive the cut to become members of Brandon's first team.

Anticipation . . . Soccer Success?

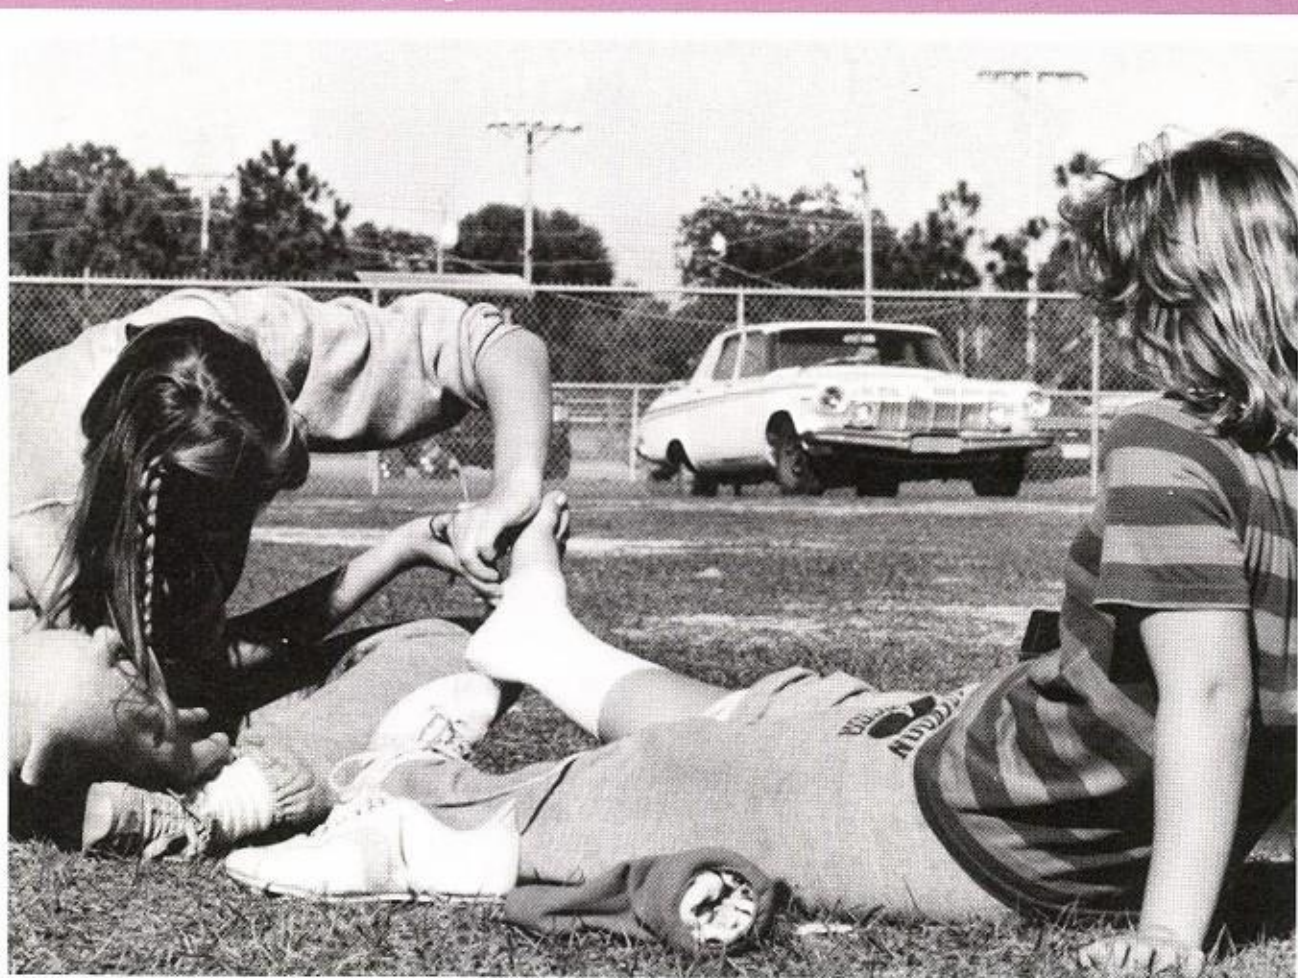

Many people had waited a long time for soccer to come to Brandon High School. When the call went out for try-outs for Brandon's first-ever Girls' Soccer Team, many girls responded. Everything was in its beginning. Uniforms had to be ordered; procedures had to be established; the team had to be picked. All those duties fell to Miss Susan Johnson, who returned to Brandon after an absence of several years to become the coach for the team. The many sophomores on the team gave promise that several years down the road we could count on experienced players. The enthusiasm of the entire team as they practiced each day from 1:30 to 2:30 further predicted success. Yet, no one knew what to expect, who the outstanding team members would be, or how our team would compare to the other Hillsborough County teams. On the brink of our first-ever soccer season, the key word for us all was "anticipation."

To win

Mattie Lang practices throwing the shot put in her spare time.

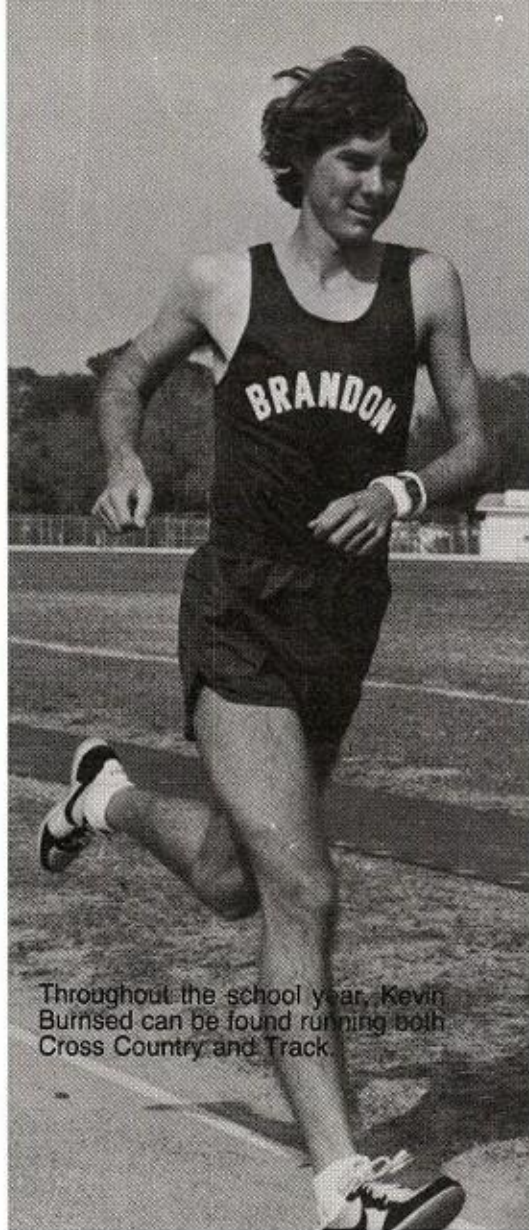

Cheryl Green proves her endurance as a distance runner.

Practice, practice, practice — that was one thing that Brandon's girls' track team could get enough of. They put in many hours of hard work after school in which they proved the ability of the girls' track team to defend their Western Conference and District titles.

The tri-captains of the girls' track team were Mattie Lang, Cheryl Green, and Shawn Polite. Mattie Lang went unsurpassed in the field events. Cheryl Green put forth her best effort as a distance runner, while Shawn Polite excelled as a sprinter.

Coaches Owen Self and Jim Sumner were always there to provide the girls with that extra boost of encouragement that they needed to excel. With such great individual achievement and determination, the girls' track team continued to prove in every meet that all the practicing and coaching would lead them on to victory.

Throughout the school year, Kevin Burned can be found running both Cross Country and Track.

Don't let his face fool you. Scott Davidson can fly over those hurdles!

While we were still huddled in our houses suffering from Florida's coldest winter in years, members of the Boys' Track Team were out at McLane Stadium running laps and jumping hurdles in preparation for their challenging season. In January, Coach Jeff DeCola assessed his team this way: "We are a very young and inexperienced team, but we have over sixty members, and we hope to improve throughout the season." Track team members started the 1981 season boasting a record of having won their last 54 dual and triangular meets in a row. The team had also won the last four Western Conference Championships. Despite their lack of experience, team members gave their best efforts toward upholding the proud reputation of Boys' Track at Brandon High.

Running Against the Wind

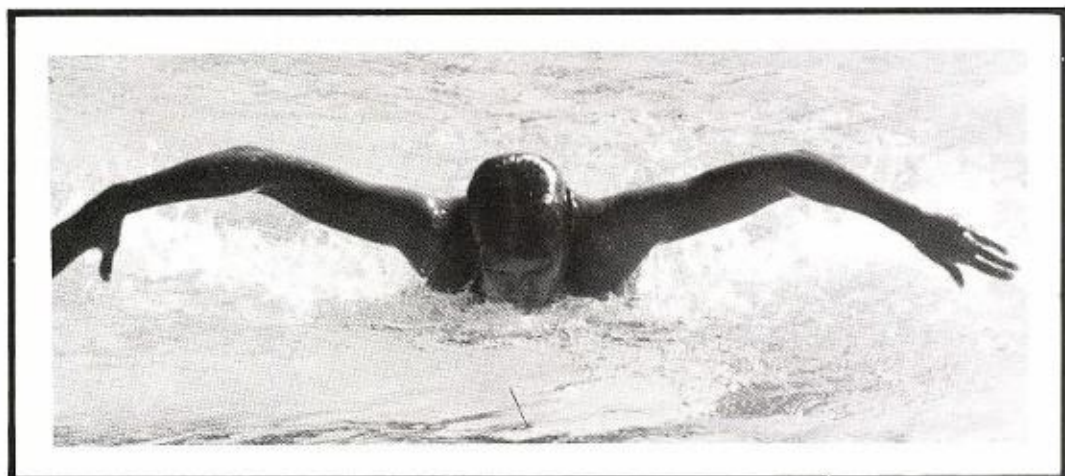

Even on the coldest days, Mary-Alice Harris relentlessly works on mastering the art of diving.

Diane DiMasi and Jonna Stack listen to instructions from their coach during practice.

Susan Oliver demonstrates the correct technique in performing the butterfly.

Swimmers Beatrice Trexler, Jonna Stack, and Donna Perry stretch out to prepare for a demanding practice.

Coach Knox observes the swimmers as they prepare for their next set of laps.

H2O ... The Way to Go!

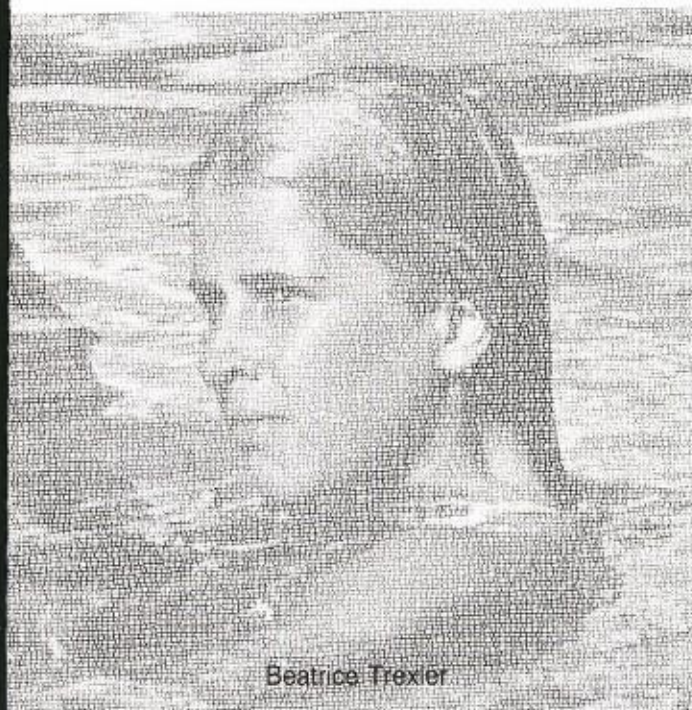

This year's Girls' Swimming and Diving teams showed great enthusiasm and confidence. They put forth every effort to sustain a team filled with a sense of togetherness. The teams exhibited pride in their school as well as in themselves. The girls were required to practice for an hour and a half each day. They worked hard to improve their skills in order to compete in meets such as Hillsborough and Leto with a little less apprehension than in the year before.

Returning to the team even better than before were swimmer Jonna Stack and diver Felicia Noriega. Also displaying excellent skills were swimmers Susan Oliver, Laura Rado and Linda Caw. The result of dedication of each individual contributed to a maximum effort to compete as a team.

The swimmers' patience and discipline were what gave this team the determination to swim each race to the fullest.

Individuality

"Keep those toes pointed and those arms out," thinks Ken Gordan as he dives into cool waters.

"Legs don't fail me now" — Paul Houston practices his swimming style.

The 1980-81 Guys' Swimming and Diving Team was exactly that — A TEAM. Each individual participant put forth great effort in order to establish a congruous team flowing with coordination and unity, as well as with individual style. Pete Knox, the team's coach, emphasized cohesiveness and teamwork. He also instilled a sense of winning and competitiveness into his swimmers.

Displaying greater enthusiasm and improved skills were returning Seniors Tom Brown, David Davis, Lee Dykes and Junior Scott Simpson. With the "old-timers" there to help ease the tension, newcomers Paul Houston, Richard Dixon, and Mark Carpter didn't feel out of place. Together the old and new members led the team to success.

The water might have been icy, the wind chilly, and the air frozen, but the guys plunged right into the Bobby Hicks' pool five days a week. Along with daily practices, the swimmers were also required to lift weights every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday for an hour and a half. Diver Ken Gordan practiced each back flip and swan dive until perfection was accomplished, while swimmer Hal Harwell worked relentlessly to lose a few seconds on his back stroke.

Through hours of practicing and encouragement from Coach Pete Knox, the team was able to function as a well-organized, smooth-running team. Each new competition was met with determination and completed with confidence.

Donnie,

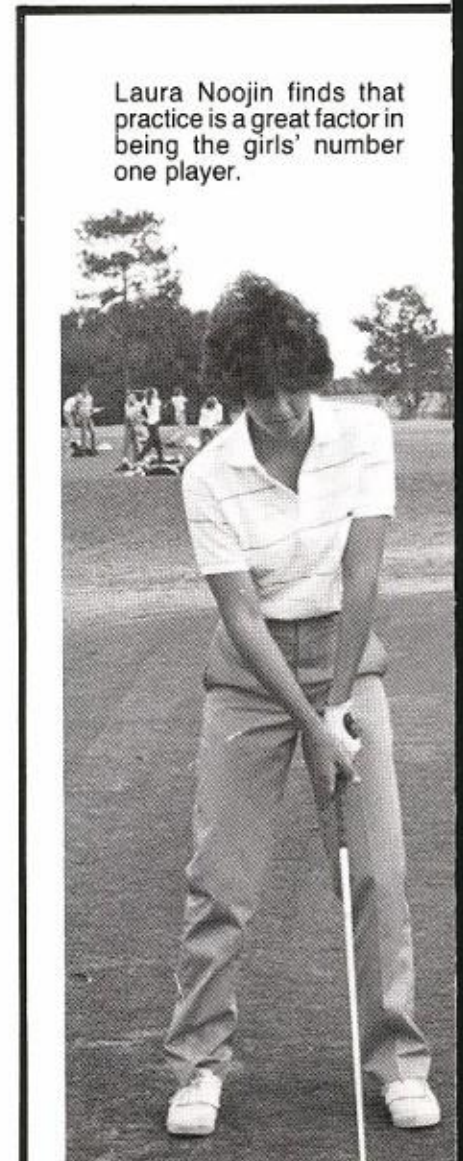

I'm really glad I had the chance to get to know you a lot better. It's sad we don't have another year together at BHS. But I guess since we're cousins I'll see you around! Take care! Love Hoil.

Through the eyes of Brandon High School Golf Coach, Taylor Stokes, the Brandon Golf teams were expected to be the best in this area.

The girls began the season boasting an impressive record of six straight district titles. Returning for their final year were such outstanding seniors as Laura Noojin, Lynn Armstrong, and Shelia Sparling. Laura's superior play quickly moved her into the top position in the girls' team vacated at the end of 1980 by Outstanding Female Athlete, Diane Nowakowski. With consistently low scores, Mark McMeen held the number one post on the guys' team. His excellent play helped to put his team in the leading position in match after match. Seniors Mark Wickham and Bill Carey gave fine performances in their effort to keep Brandon in the victory column. Each time we heard golf results reported over the intercom we could tell that the afternoon spent on the Buckhorn greens and fairways were paying off.

Showing enthusiasm in her swing is Shelia Sparling.

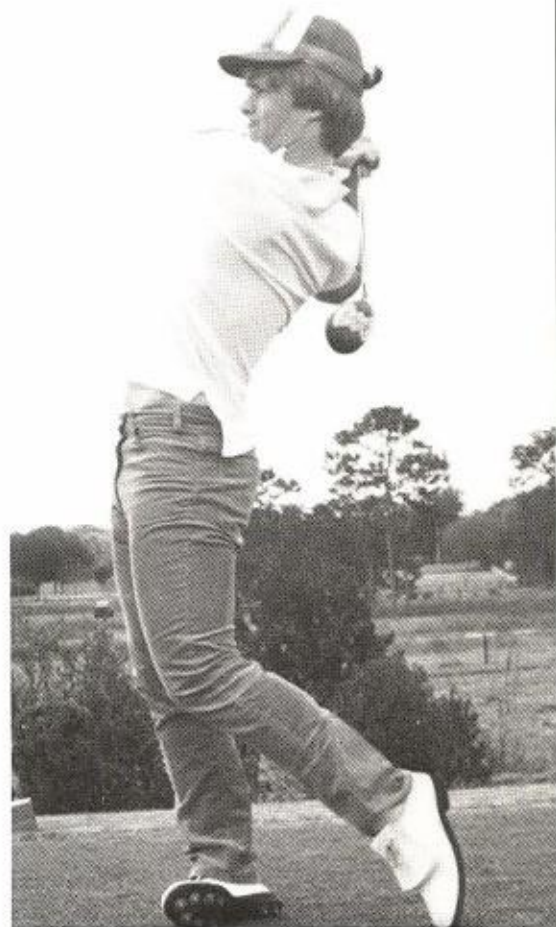

Laura Noojin finds that practice is a great factor in being the girls' number one player.

Many long hours of practice were spent on the Brandon High tennis courts as members of the girls' and guys' tennis teams worked to perfect their backhands and forehands. Coaches Paul Trojak and Glenda Billett were on hand to straighten out bad techniques and to make sure everyone's form was competition perfect. With newcomers Ann Bush, Kim Howell, and Linda Cantell as well as returning Melaine Suzanne Davidson, Denise Moore, and Lori Bunce, the girls' tennis team felt that they were the top contenders in district and Western Conference. The guys' tennis team also felt confident of success as Craig Roberts, David Storms, Steve Werner, and Todd Allen returned to help make 1980-81 a winning season.

Experience

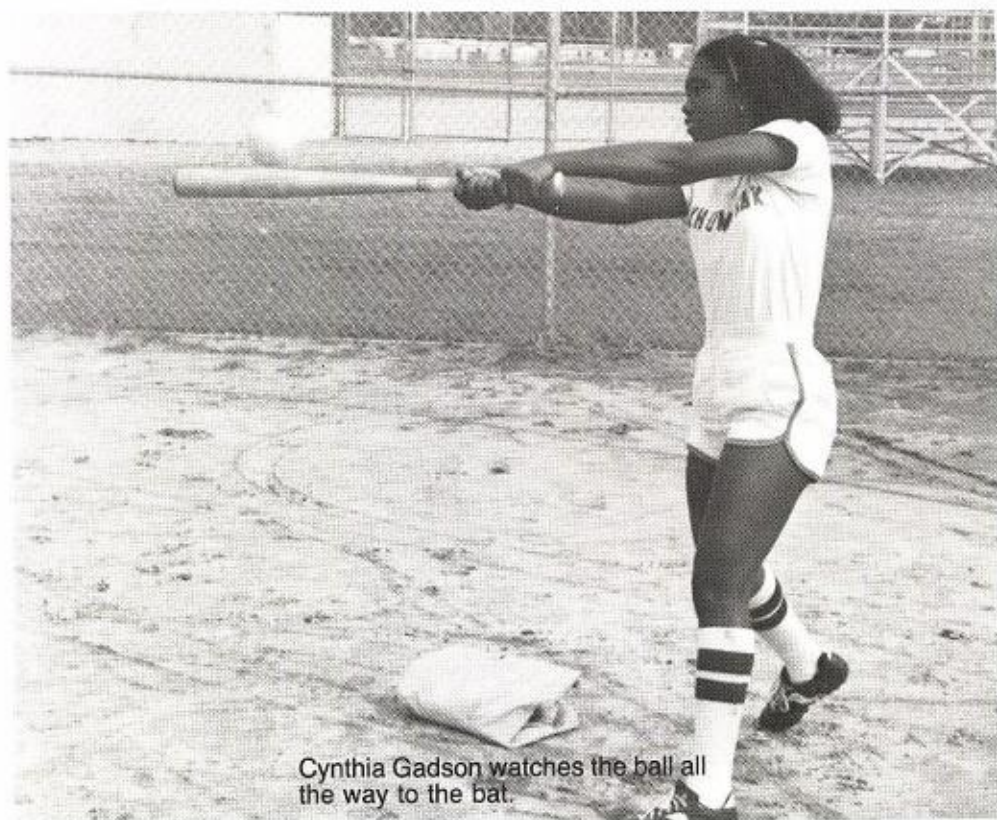

As spring neared, Brandon High's best softball players came out of hibernation to begin daily two-hour practice sessions at Hanley Field. The team was loaded with experience as seniors Michele Hanis, Cindy Edwards, Cheryl Bergeron, Carrie Baker, and Lynn Hallmark returned for their third and final year of playing for BHS. It was Buddy Rayburn's third year of coaching the team, and he put his experience to work improving the team's skills. Talent also came with newcomers Adair Valdespino and Robin Sabourin as pitchers, and fielders Stacia Pennington and Terri Shettle. Combining the old with the new, the softball team was a threat to all other district and Western Conference competition.

Coach Buddy Rayburn discusses practice plans with Asst. Coach Glen Stewart.

Carl Wilbanks winds up for the throw.

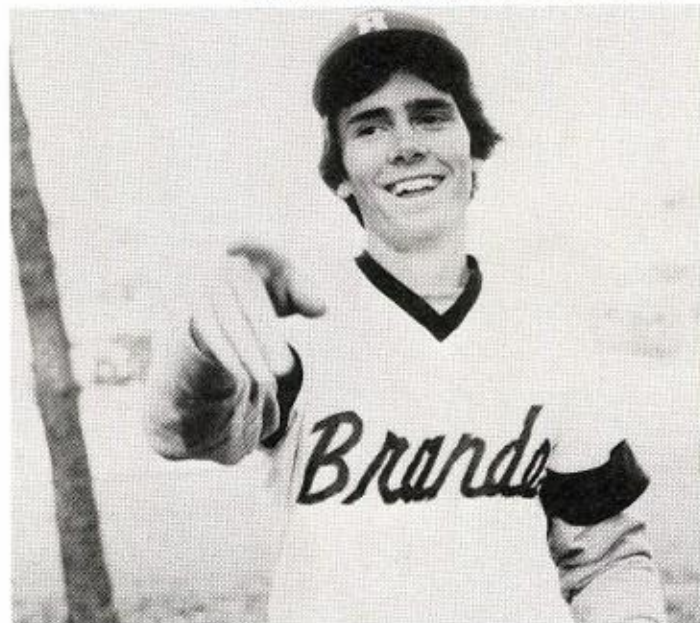

Confidence in each other contributed to the winning efforts of our baseball team. A strong team attitude, bolstered by plenty of experience, gave second year coach, Joe Perez, a winning combination. Seniors among the starting nine were John Cedarburg, Ernie Donini, Bobby Rase, Duke Seldon, Jeff Thomason, and Carl Wilbanks. Providing further slugging and fielding power were such players as Bobby Anderson and Paul Reed. They set their goals high-District, Western Conference, State. Working as a solid, strong unit, they entered the season eyeing big victories.

Hard and long hours of training and holding athletes were only a part of each coach's job. Our coaches were dedicated to bettering the performance of our athletes and at the same time, to maintaining the honorable reputation for good sportsmanship that had earned recognition for Brandon throughout Florida.

Off the field, additional concerns occupied each coach's time: Would all team members satisfy eligibility requirements? Was the available equipment appropriate and in adequate supply? What sort of coverage would the newspapers give to our performance? Could the level of enthusiasm and determination of the season's beginning be maintained for the year?

Passing judgment was easy for those of us who sat on the sidelines. We tended to praise the players when we won and blame the coaches when we lost. Occasionally, though, we also found time to recognize these dedicated people for their efforts in our athletic program and say, "Good work, Coach!"

Enjoying the BETA picnic, members Stephanie Truschel and Robert St. Amant take to the Hillsborough River for some wet and wild fun.

Honors

The smile on Lisa Turner's face proves that learning through actual experimentation is the most enjoyable.

The size of Brandon High this year could have hindered us in many ways, but not academically. Enrollment was high in our honor courses and clubs. More than in previous years, high school students were getting involved in their studies and in preparation for college. We had grown not only in higher achievements, but also in educational expansion. Principals, teachers, and administrators of the 50's dealt with many intelligent students, but, with the advancement of technology and the broadening of learning techniques of the 1980's, the intelligence of our students was more pronounced than ever. We had reached a new pinnacle of academic accomplishment.

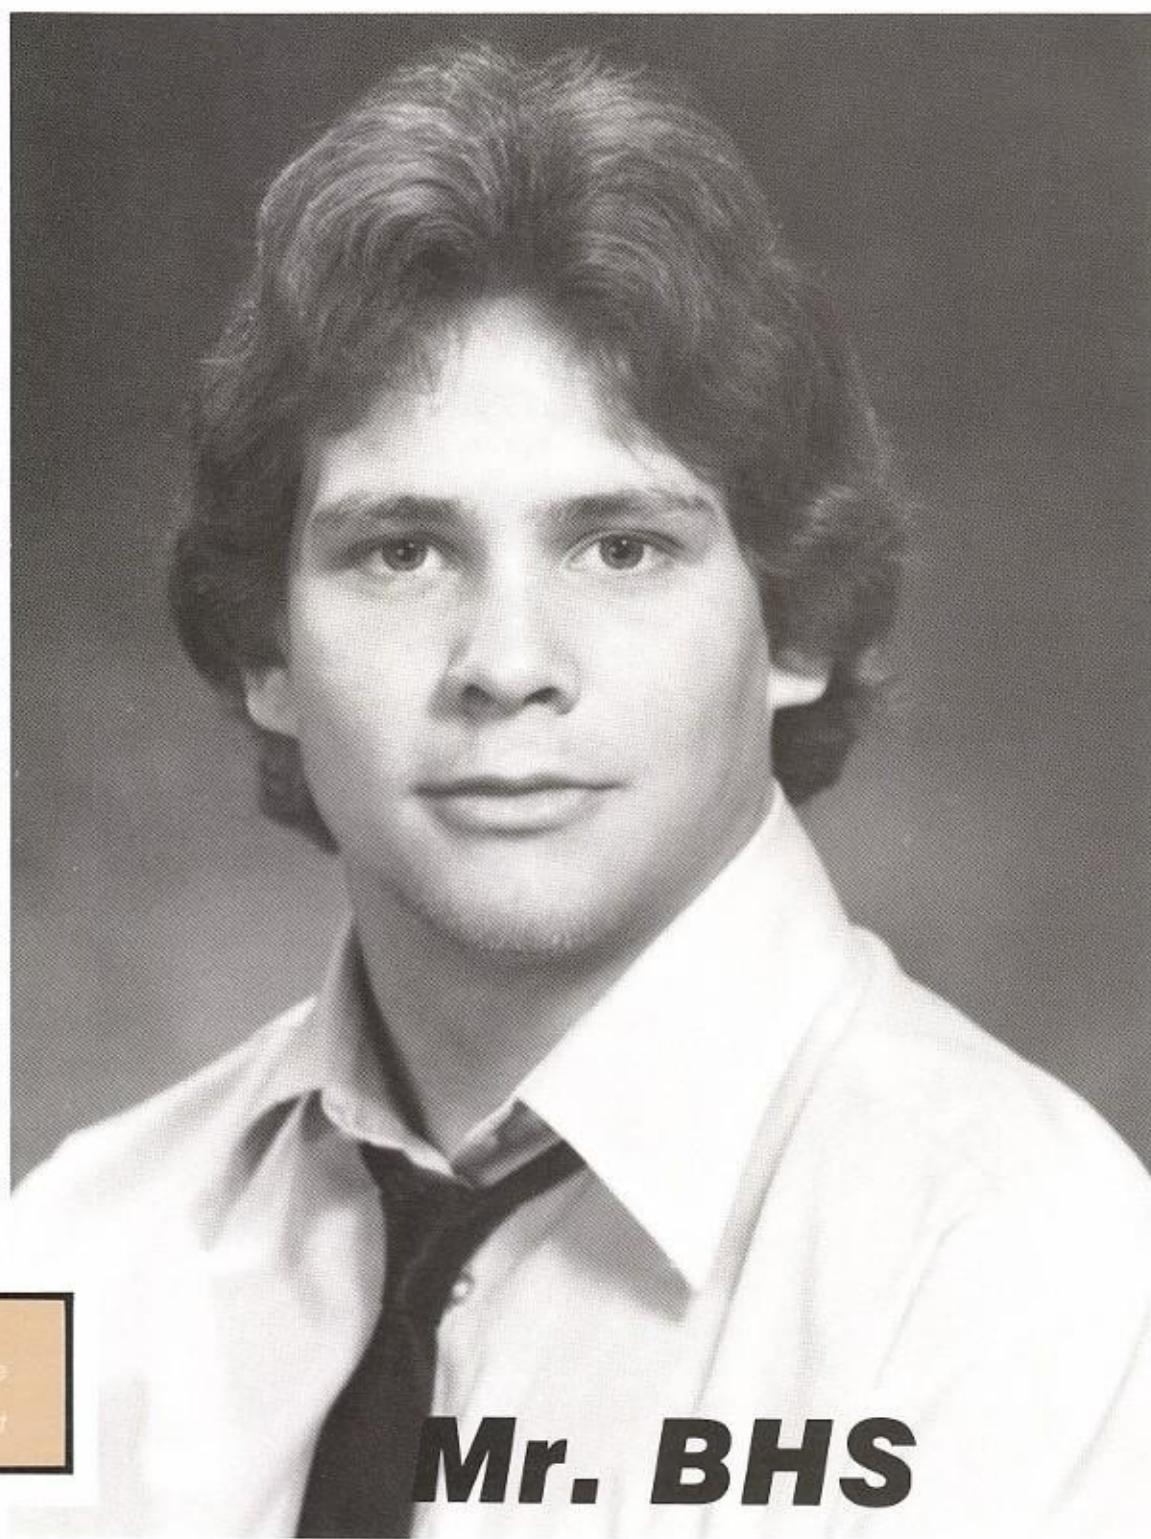

Styles of the nifty 50's abound in the 1951 Beta Club's group picture.

1981 Senior Hall of Fame

Outstanding leadership, service, and school spirit characterized the twenty students in this year's Senior Hall of Fame. Choosing from fifty nominees, the faculty and senior class elected Mr. and Miss BHS and eighteen Hall of Fame members on Thursday, February 5. The ballots were tabulated at the school board's data processing office in Tampa, and the winners were announced on Friday February 6. Traditionally again this year Mr. and Miss BHS were announced at the prom on April 3. Fellow class members applauded as they danced to the theme song.

*"The one thing I like best at Brandon is the courage of the leaders when they try something new."
— Sam Schubert*

Mr. BHS

"...To fall perfectly in love, but not without imperfections," was one of Sam Schubert's ultimate goals in life. Spare time was very rare for Sam as he was our Student Government President and State President of the Florida Association of Student Councils.

Sam was an active member of Beta, Mu Alpha Theta, Key Club, and FCA throughout the year, but still had time to be the football Captain and work as a carpenter after school. When asked about his pet-peeve, Sam answered, "I can't stop eating pizza!" The first thing after high school Sam was "... going straight to Daytona Beach for a week of marine biology!" and then planned to study political science at U.F. or University of Tampa. From day one Sam had led his class by becoming the Sophomore Class President and then Junior Class President the following year. Always giving his best, Sam became the Student Government President which meant devoting most of his time to school. At the peak of his Senior year, the Faculty and the class of 1981 bestowed upon him the well deserved honor of Mr. BHS.

High atop a building, Sam Schubert works part time as a carpenter.

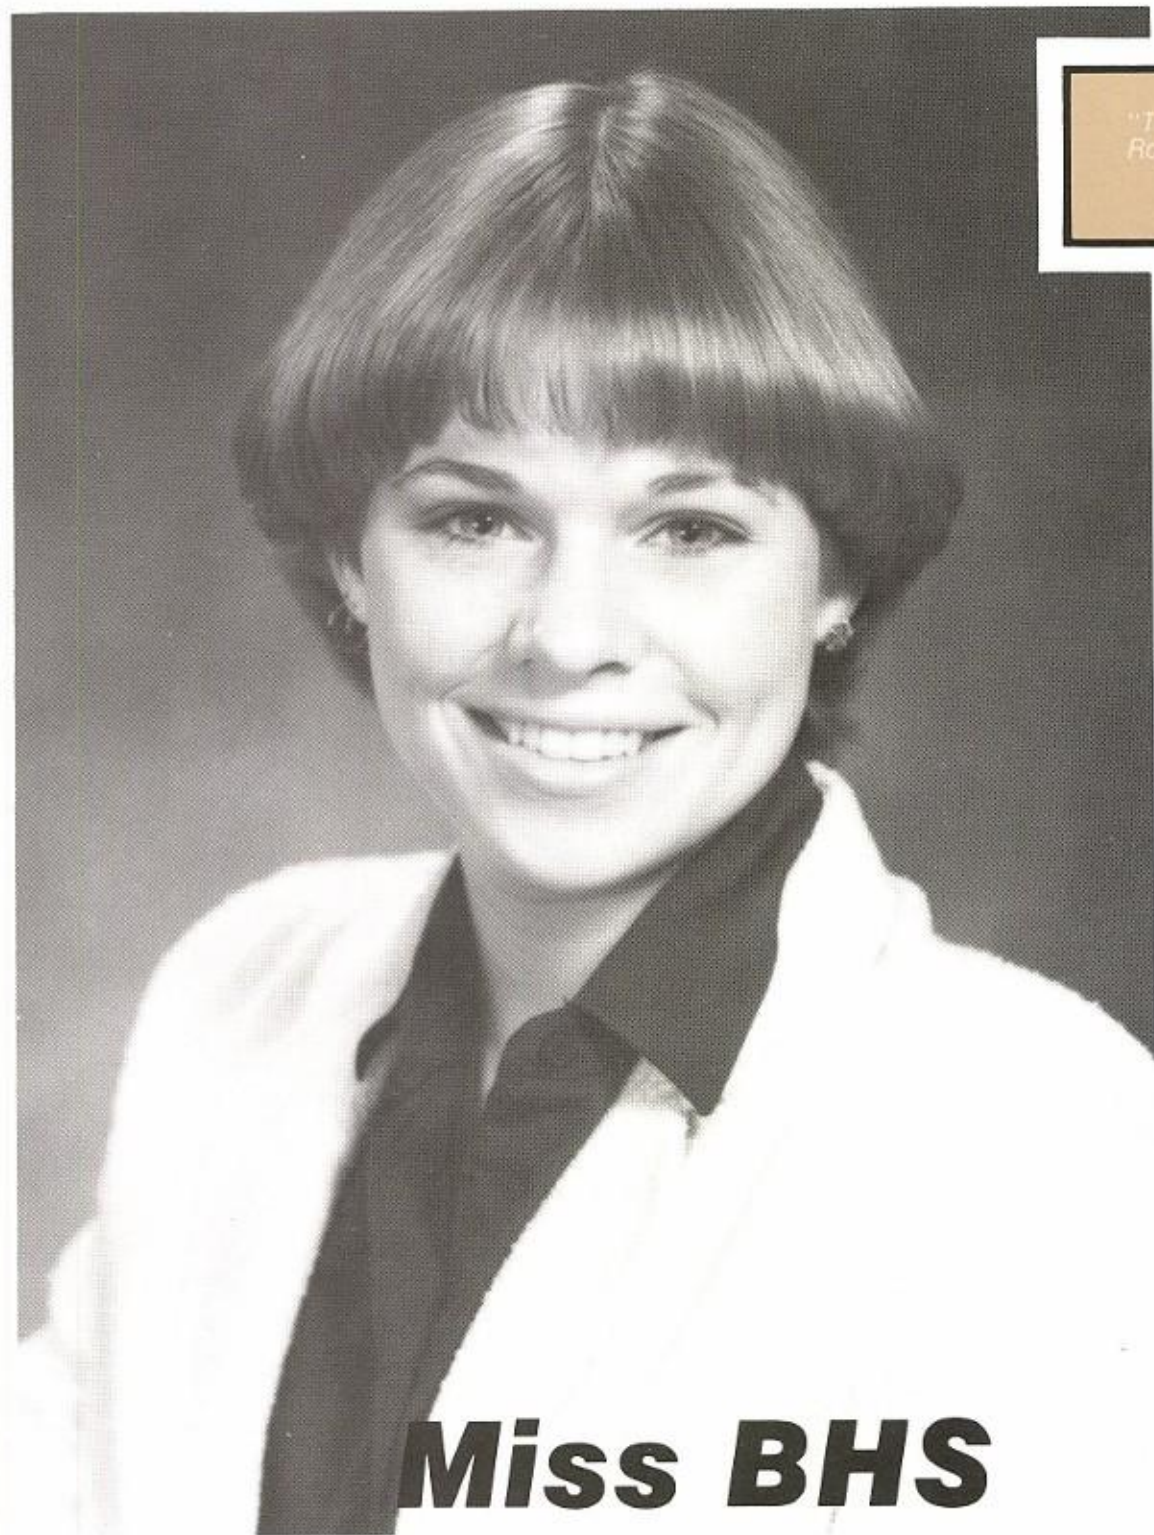

Getting down to the kids' level, Ginny Grandstrand receives much satisfaction from coaching her soccer team.

Our choice for 1981 Miss BHS was Ginny Grandstrand who was Student Government's Vice-President, President of ICC, and a member of NHS, Beta, FCA, Spanish Club, and Jaycettes. Sports being her forte, Ginny was one of our best Varsity Basketball players. She also played on the tennis team, was a softball manager, and coached a youth soccer team after school. Commenting on the size of Brandon High, Ginny said, "I don't see how anyone could be anything but proud about our school. BHS offers the most of everything — especially friends — for everyone." Being involved during high school was very important to Ginny who was on Junior Council and Scogin's Teen-board in her Junior year. If she could change anything, Ginny would like "... to change the notions some people have that your high school years are a waste of time. High school is the best opportunity you have to get involved and enjoy yourself." In Ginny's spare time she loved "being outdoors, walking in the rain, or reading a good book." After high school Ginny planned to attend college at USF or University of Tampa to study Mass Communications or some field in which she could work creatively with people. Miss BHS's school spirit was among the liveliest here at Brandon, and she thought, "The class of '81 is the most fun-loving, energetic, and involved of any class that has attended BHS."

Miss BHS

"The exhilarating feeling I got standing on top of the Rocky Mountains is something I'll never forget."
— Ginny Grandstrand

Being a member of Cupidettes, Quill and Scroll, Fashion Flair, DECA, and also being the academics editor for the yearbook kept Ardra Beasley busy throughout her senior year. In her spare time, Ardra worked at Publix and liked to cook, shop, and "Spend money foolishly." Ardra planned to attend the University of Florida and major in communications.

Mark Coon, quarterback of the Football team, was the Vice President of Key Club and a member of FCA during his senior year. Mark's most memorable moment at Brandon was "when all those good-lookin' Jaycettes dressed me up as a girl for the day." Mark's after-school activities included his construction job and drawing. Mark planned to attend college, hopefully on a football scholarship.

Guys' Interact President, Tommy Griffith, planned to attend Florida College and then go on to the University of Florida to study medicine. Tommy was very active in Mu Alpha Theta and in the Student Government Senate. In Tommy's spare time he liked playing with his five cats, singing, and participating in most sports, including racquetball and swimming.

"Dirty hands are my pet-peeve, especially when people touch me."

— Ardra Beasley

Smiles abound as Ardra Beasley dresses a mannequin.

Relaxing with his cat, Tommy Griffith enjoys his spare time.

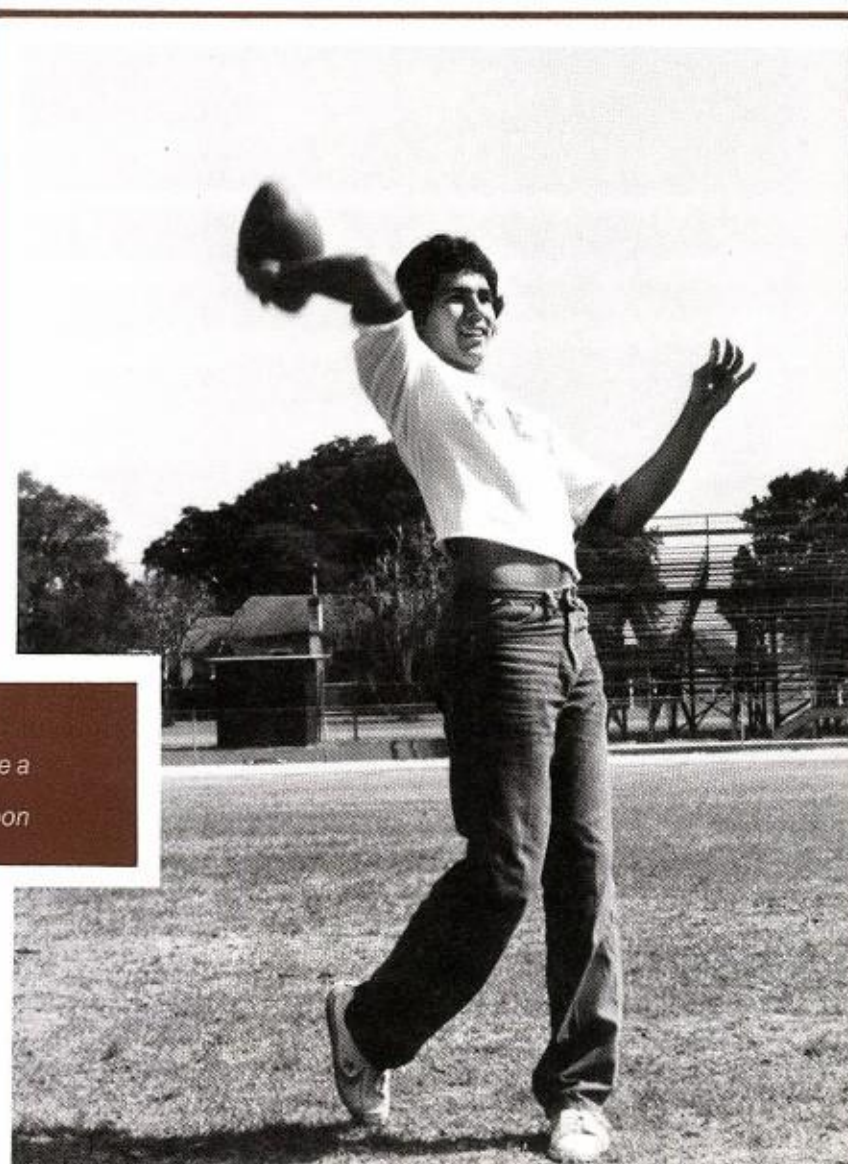

"I think what has made my senior year special are the friends I have made and the good times I have had with them."

— Tommy Griffith

"If I could accomplish one thing in this world and be assured success it would be a joining of all countries for world peace."

— Mark Coon

Quarterback Mark Coon practices his long pass on the field.

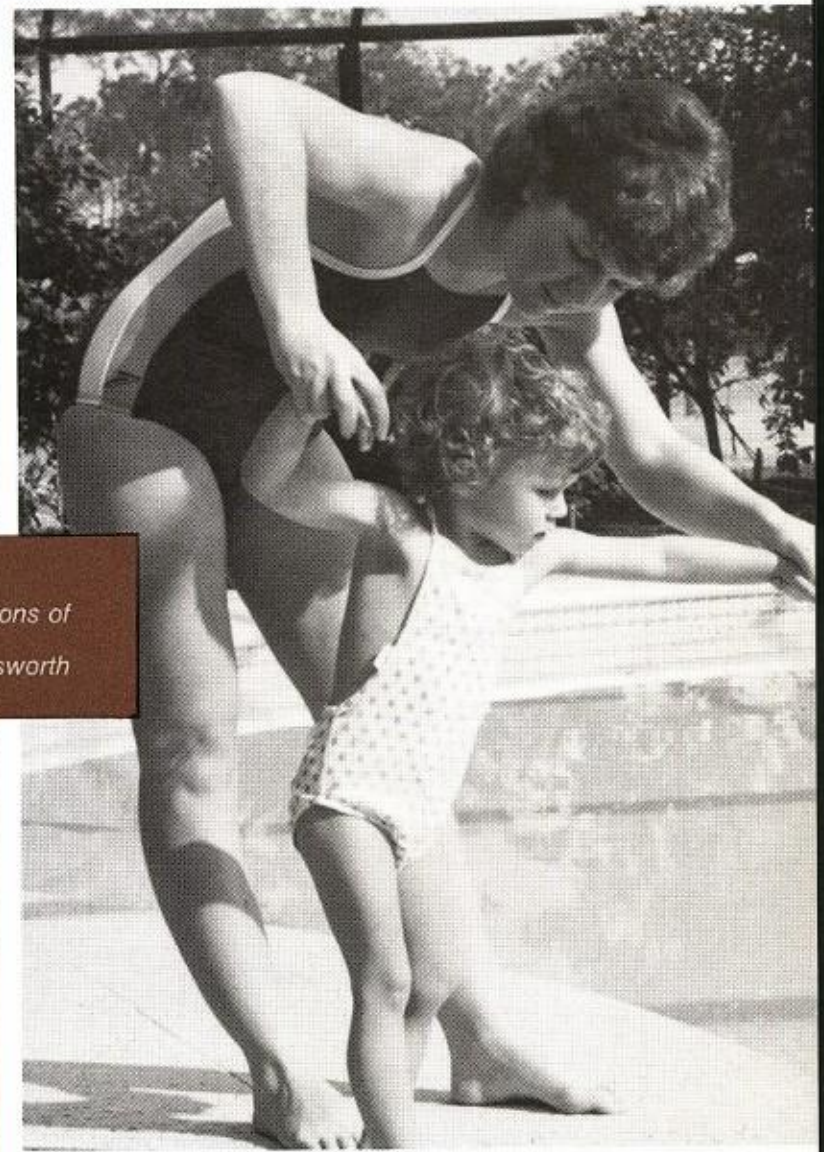

"My only goal is to be satisfied with my life, and myself, wherever I am."

— Mary Johnson

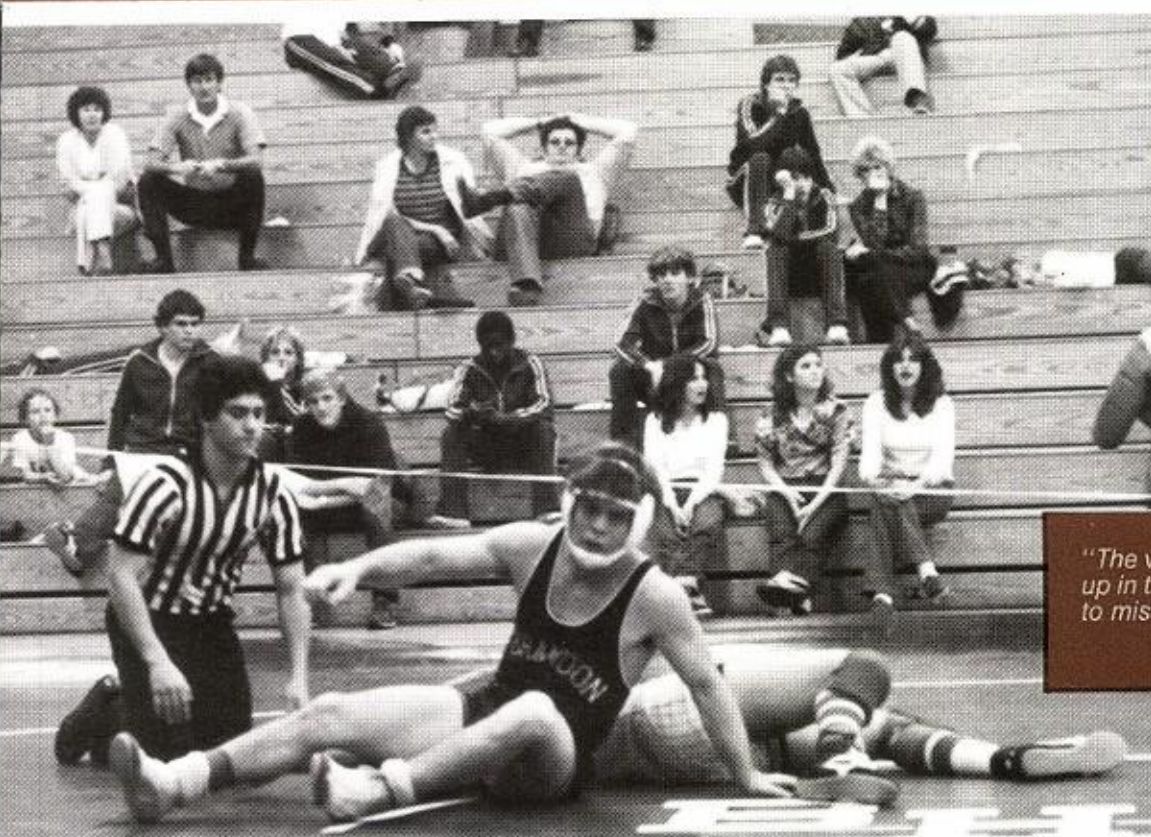

Taking pictures to Mary Johnson is fun, not a job.

"If I could change anything in the nation, I would change the conditions of poverty in which so many Americans are living."

— Jill Hollingsworth

Teaching children how to swim is fun for Jill Hollingsworth.

"The very first thing I'll do when I graduate is throw my cap up in the air and celebrate for a month, but I'm really going to miss school."

— Kirk Johnson

Coming out of another winning match is wrestler Kirk Johnson.

As a member of Mu Alpha Theta, Beta, Quill and Scroll, Girl's Interact, and N.H.S. — the last two of which she served as Vice-President, Jill Hollingsworth still had time to letter on the swim team and be an active member of the S.G., Executive Board, and P.T.S.A. Jill planned to attend Duke University and major in biomedical engineering or some field relating to mathematics and science.

Money was a big part in Mary Johnson's high school years as she was a treasurer of her Sophomore and Junior classes, N.H.S., and Student Government. Mary was also a member of Quill and Scroll, Beta, Jaycettes, and the year book staff. One of Mary's hobbies was photography, and she dreamed of taking "...a picture that becomes famous for its deep philosophical meaning and lasts forever." Mary, one of Brandon's National Merit Finalists, had been accepted to University of Florida and would major in journalism.

The President of Key Club, Kirk Johnson, was actively involved in Student Government, D.C.T., and

F.C.A.; and he was one of Coach Cozart's best wrestlers. Kirk, who worked at Western Fuel and also helped out with the new student orientation committee, planned to go to college and major in business management. Kirk hoped someday to get into the airlines or own his own business.

The school spirit of Mattie Lang was evident as she was extremely active in the Pep Club, B Club, Cupidettes, Drama Club, track team, Student Government, and ICC. Being President of S.A.C. also took up a lot of Mattie's time, but she still had time to skate, sing, read, write poetry, and attend classes at U.S.F. on Saturdays. Mattie's future consisted of pursuing a degree in law at Florida State University, getting married, and having kids.

"Before I die, I would like to see more of this world I live in and meet more of its people," said Chris Love, a member of Mu Alpha Theta, N.H.S., Beta, Student Government, and Interact. In his spare time Chris enjoyed playing sports and being in the sun. Chris planned to go to U.S.F. after graduation and then go to University of Florida to study medicine.

"I would like to spend an entire year of taking a tour around the world. It would be great to find out how other people live," was Teri Mallory's response when she was asked where she would definitely like to go in her lifetime. In addition to being Varsity Cheerleader, Teri was a member of Mu Alpha Theta, Junior Council, Student Government, Kiwanettes, FCA, and the 1980 Homecoming Court. She loved swimming, playing tennis, and going to the beach. She hoped to study computer engineering and business administration at the University of Florida after graduation.

"The thing that made the class of '81 unique is our craziness for new trends and our love for each other."

— Mattie Lang

A favorite past time of Chris Love's is playing basketball.

"I have a great fear of basketball players running into me at the game while I'm cheering."

— Teri Mallory

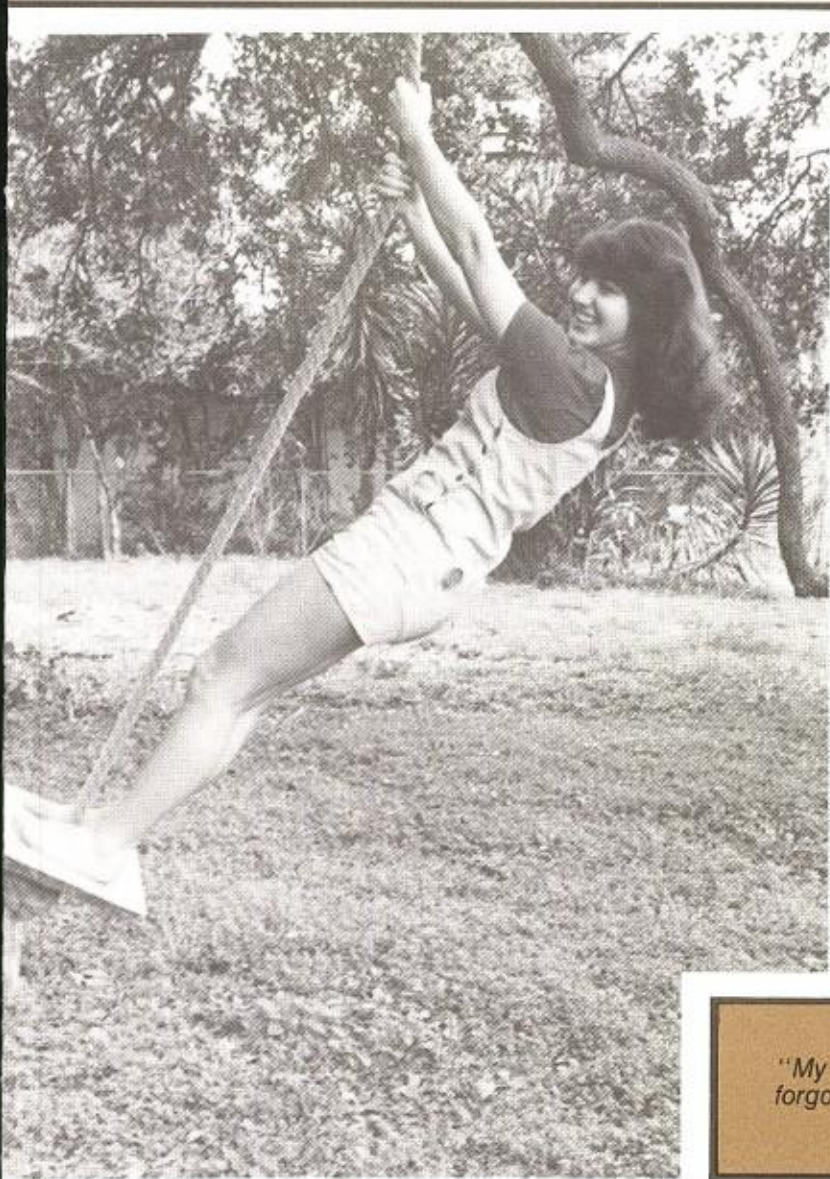

Always cheerful, Mattie Lang works the BHS switchboard.

"The most unique part of my family is our last name itself. We all try to live it."

— Chris Love.

Limbering up is important to cheerleader Teri Mallory.

Carefree Krystal Sanchez swings happily on a lazy afternoon.

Steve McGovern cited flirting as his most enjoyable hobby and complimented his family by calling them "fantastic ... my dearest friends!" At Brandon, Steve was National Honor Society President, Captain and Chaplain of the Varsity Football Team, and FCA President. He also was a member of ICC, Mu Alpha Theta, Latin Club, SHS, and the Assembly Review Committee. A letterman in both football and track, Steve received the Bill Poast Award, and a first team All-Academic County selection. With an eye toward a medical career, Steve would attend the University of Florida.

The activities of Senior Class President, Thomas Preziosi, included Eagle Staff Honors Editor and Photographer, Student Government, NHS, Beta, Quill and Scroll, and Interact. To Thomas, laughter was the most important thing in life, and he said, "The most unique thing about the Class of '81 was our ability to laugh at ourselves." Thomas hoped to attend a college in the Northeast, where he would major in advertising and minor in stage production.

Among the organizations which kept Krystal Sanchez busy during her years at Brandon were SG Executive Board, Kiwanettes, Beta, NHS, Senior Class Directors, Mu Alpha Theta, and Christian Fellowship Executive Board.

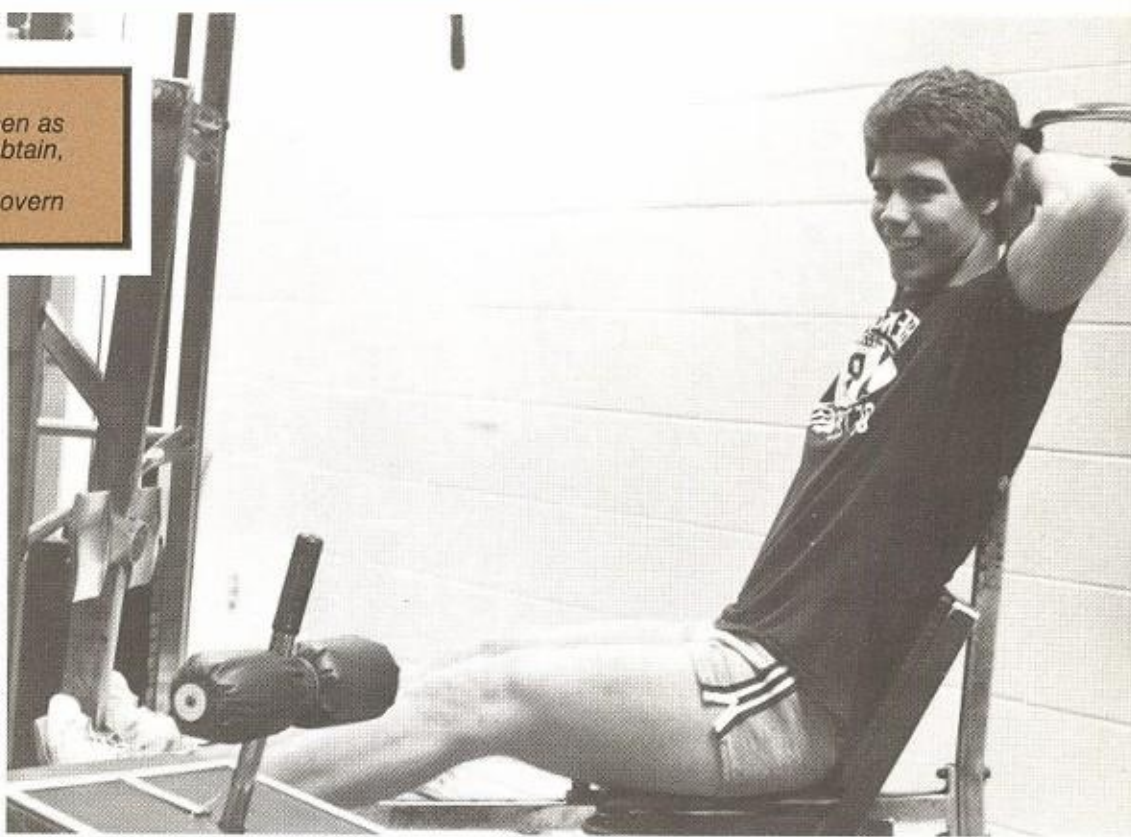

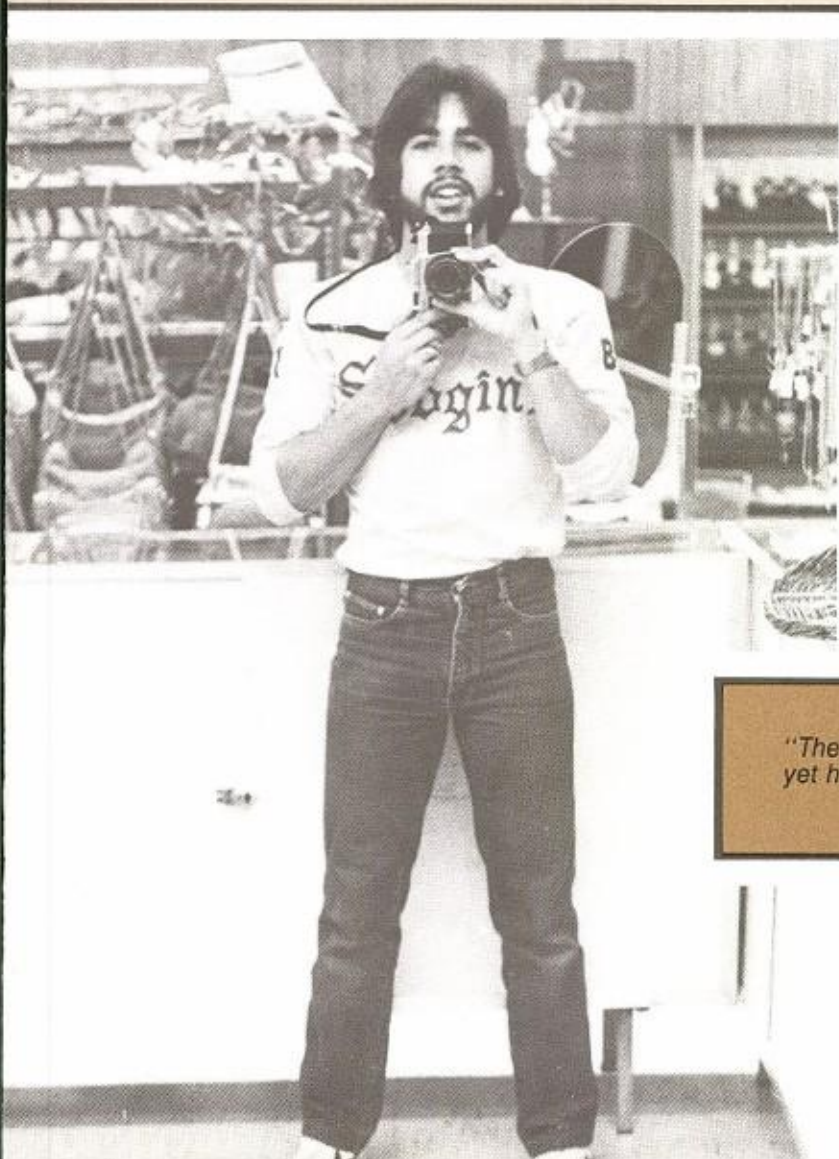

In her spare time Krystal loved being at the beach and being with friends. Her most embarrassing moment at school was having to stand up and sing "Tiny Bubbles" in front of all of Student Government. After graduation Krystal would attend the University of South Florida and major in medicine.

"My favorite senior activity was senior day because it brought everyone together and we forgot about making fools of ourselves and had fun."

— Krystal Sanchez

"One of the proudest moments in my life was being chosen as team Chaplain. To me this is the greatest honor I can obtain, standing up for Christ."

— Steve McGovern

Lifting weights is a breeze for Steve McGovern.

"The person I most admire is the man that does the most work and gets the least recognition, yet he still gives his best and doesn't complain."

— Thomas Preziosi

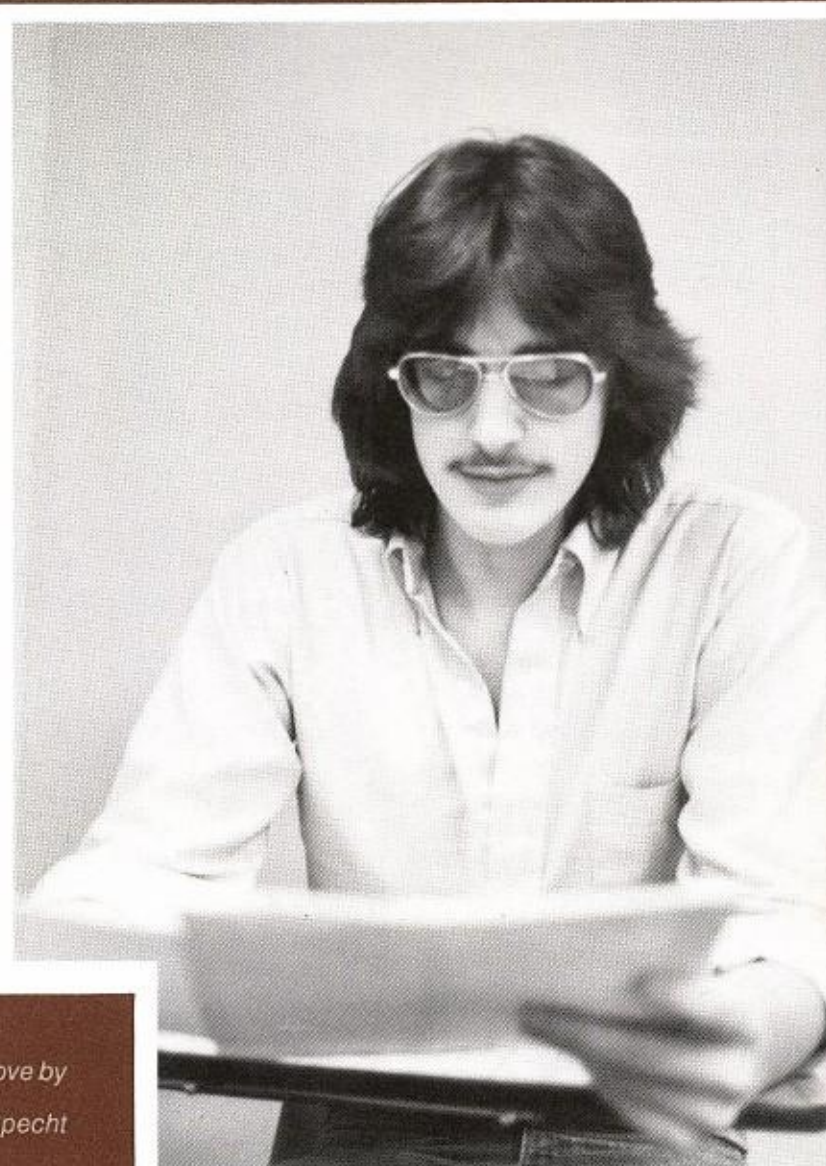

Teenboard member, Thomas Preziosi, smiles for his own camera.

Photography and building and repairing electronic components were some of Skipper Schmitt's hobbies. He served as Senior Class Vice-President and also was Key Club Public Relations Director, SAVOS Public Relations Director, Eagle Yearbook Sales Manager, and a three-year member of Orchestra. After earning a degree in electrical engineering, Skipper planned to go to work with his parents' company in Haiti selling plants and rubber. Asked what he would do if he had one year to accomplish anything in the world and be assured success, Skipper replied that he would develop a cure for Multiple Sclerosis.

Planning to attend the University of South Florida for two years and then go to Florida State University and major in law enforcement was Student Government's Recording Secretary, Donna Shuster. Donna was also in Girls' Interact, Concert Choir, and PTSA, in addition to being very active in her church choir and in a group called "Still Waters." In talking about her spare time, Donna said, "I sing, listen to the radio, build puzzles, paint, and work, work, work!"

"In my spare time I like to work on my films, go to movies, and sleep," Scot Specht said. Scott was a National Merit Finalist, the Historian of Interact, and a member of N.H.S., Beta, and Student Government Executive Board. Scott's own company, Spectrum Films specialized in making feature films. Although he planned to continue his education at the University of Florida where he would major in architecture, Scott's first plan for immediately after graduation was to "go to a party."

Future architect, Scott Specht, checks over his blueprints.

"My most embarrassing moment was when my driver's ed. teachers drove by after I had run my car into a telephone pole."

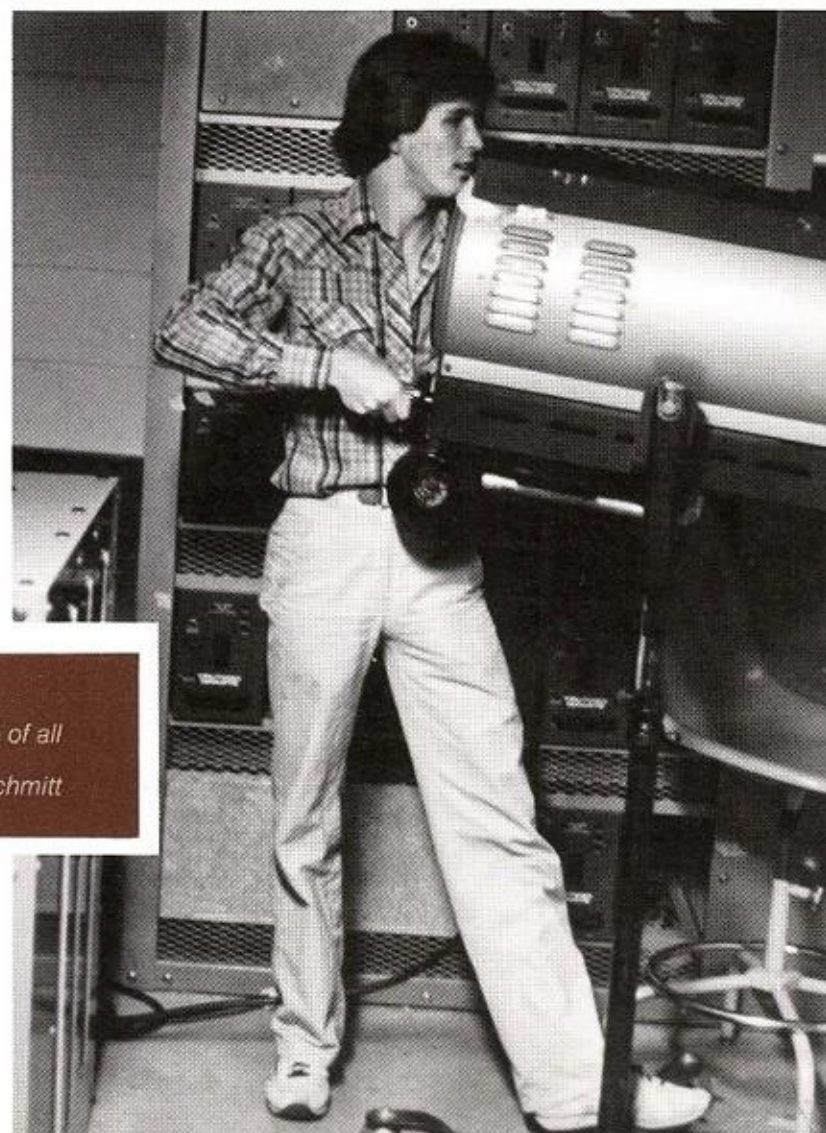

— Scott Specht

Always serving a smile, is Wendy's worker Donna Shuster.

"The funniest thing I did at BHS was when I was running through the commons and I turned to see who had just called out to me and I flipped over the ropes of the eagle."

— Donna Shuster

"I think attending the largest high school in the state is a great experience because of all the different activities and school spirit."

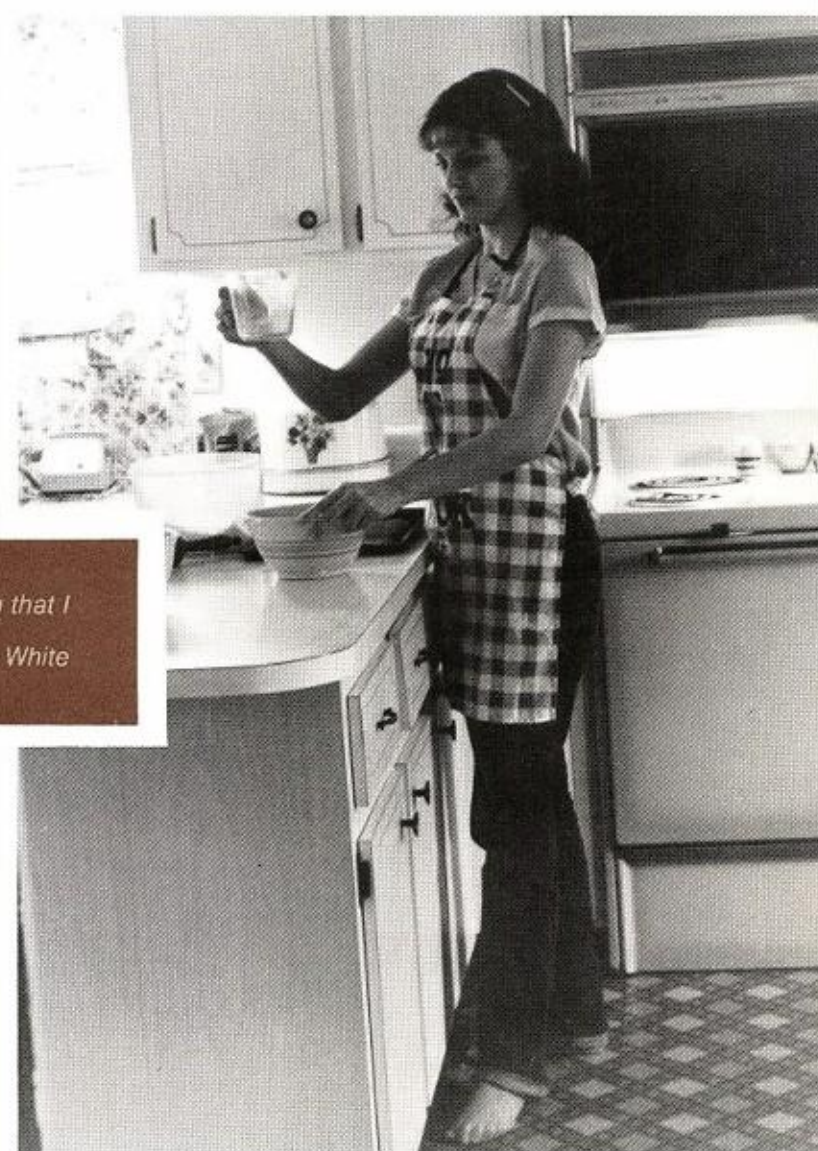

— Skipper Schmitt

SAVOS productions depend on Skipper Schmitt to aim the spot.

"Psych II can drive your crazy!" says insane David Thornhill.

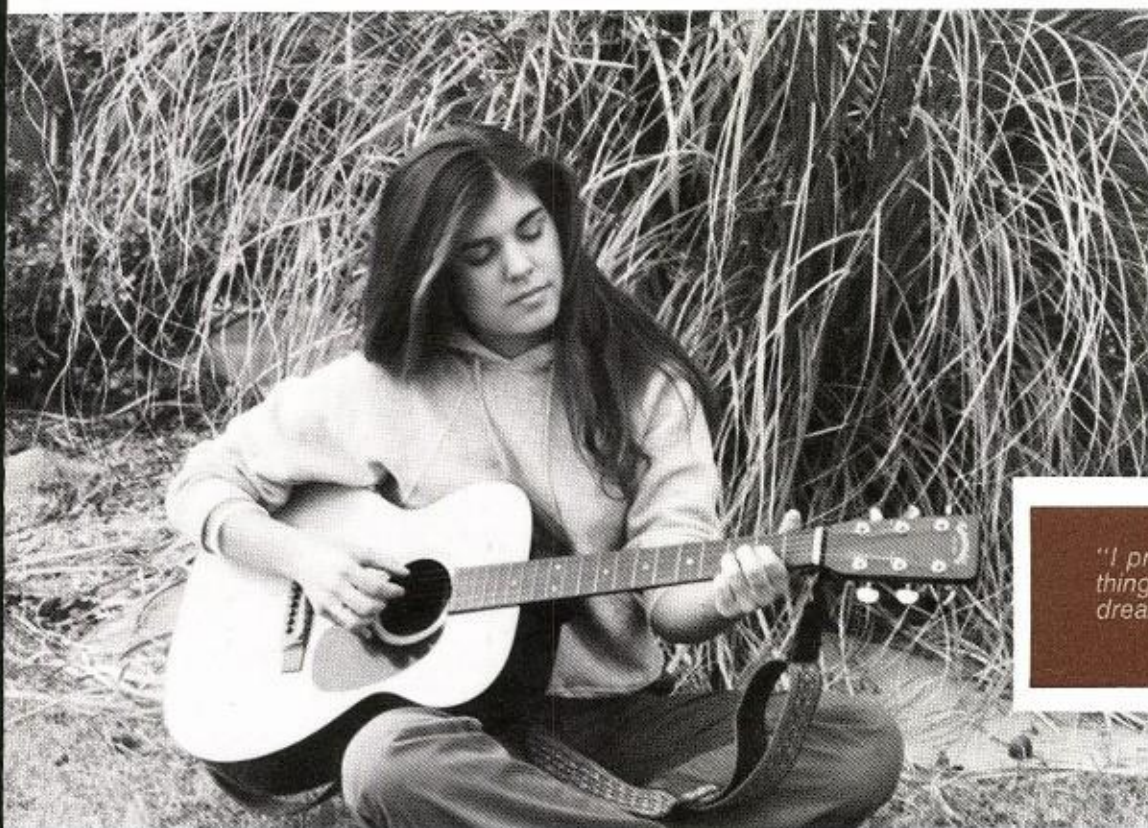

"In my spare time I like to go to public places and make scenes."
— David Thornhill

Saturday morning baking is a favorite hobby of Nancy White's.

"Most out of life I enjoy having independence and knowing that I am free to make my own decisions."

— Nancy White

Playing her guitar is very relaxing for Whitney Waddell.

"I predict by the year 2000 everyone will learn to do the simple things of life once again and learn to live with what they have. My dream — back to basic."

— Whitney Waddell

Included in David Thornhill's high school memories would be "riding down Fowler Avenue in the trunk of a car with the SG President" and also seeing friends drive by and wave when he had a flat tire on the way to school. David was Interact Vice-President, a Senior Director, and a member of CFS and Student Government. He planned to continue his education at the University of Florida and to seek a degree in marketing. During three summers, Whitney Waddell had done mission work in Ireland, Africa, and Surinam as a physical laborer. Her future plans included obtaining a B.S. in nursing and working with the needy in the Appalachian Mountains. Playing the piano and the guitar and singing were Whitney's hobbies, along with jogging, riding bikes, and performing aerobics. In her senior year she was president of both Girls' Interact and CFS, and she also served on Student Government Executive Board and was a Beta member.

Emblem Editor, Nancy White, planned to pursue a career in either journalism or public relations after receiving a degree from Florida university. While staying busy with her newspaper, Nancy also found time to be Brandon's Head Cheerleader, Kiwanettes' Vice President, FCA Secretary-Treasurer, Homecoming Princess, Cover Girl of the BHS 1981 Calendar, and a member of Quill and Scroll, Student Government, and Junior Council. Nancy loved shopping, bike riding, baking, reading, going to the beach, and going out with friends.

Honor for Excellence

There was one group at Brandon High that represented the educational and over-all goals of the school system. This group, a chapter of a national organization, was National Honor Society. The members of N.H.S. were respected by their classmates and teachers as outstanding students. The standard requirement for a 3.5 grade point average was challenging, but this was not the only criterion. The character, leadership and service of the applicants were also considered. The official induction included a candlelight ceremony during which each new member received a certificate. Those accepted into N.H.S. were given the honor they deserved for years of extraordinary performance.

MU ALPHA THETA — FRONT ROW: Paul Wagner, Karen Lindsey, Heide Norden, Darren Davis, Jill Hollingsworth. SECOND ROW: Annette Kouhlaris, Denise Duggan, Rene Szurecki, Darlene Duggan, John Choy, Bruce Irvin. THIRD ROW: Rhonna Szurecki, Sam Schubert, Paula Wade, Steve McGovern, Teri Mallory, Mike McKenna, Gordon Keegan. BACK ROW: Andrea Despiegler, Diane Calderone, Sabrena Romeo, Lonnie Simpson, Tommy Griffith, Bill Yonkers, Kevin Ward.

Excelling in their particular fields was what they were recognized for. These students were to be commended for their outstanding contributions to their respective organizations, Quill and Scroll and Mu Alpha Theta.

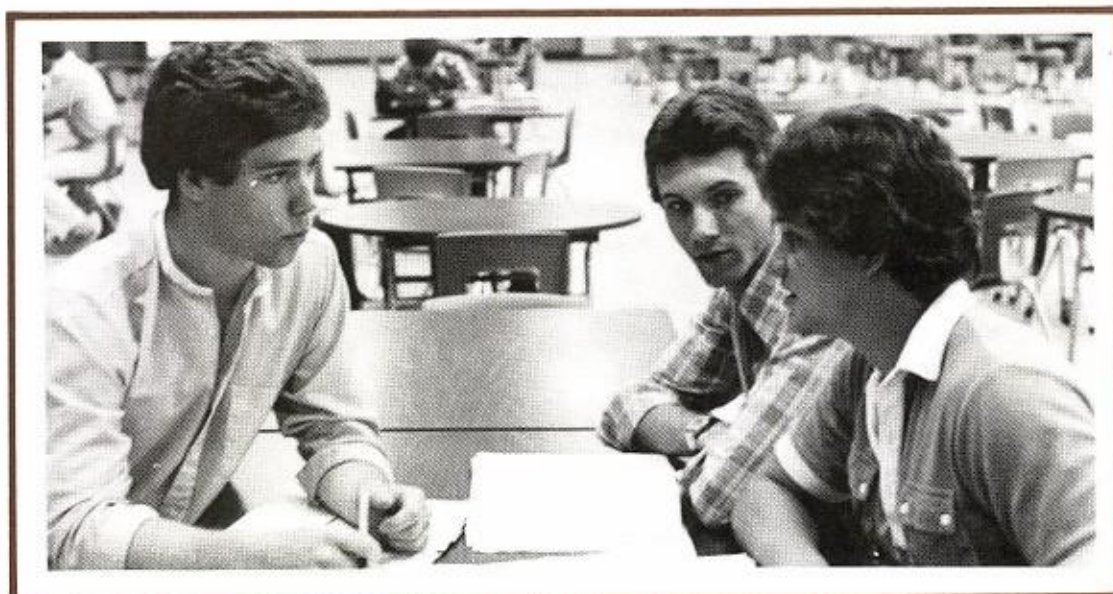

Skill in journalism came naturally for the dedicated people in Quill and Scroll. The organization was composed of hard-working journalists from the Eagle, Emblem, and Aerie staffs, who had excelled in writing, layout design, or photography. These people put their skills and talents together to help the BHS publications bring awards back to the Eagle's Nest.

Mu Alpha Theta was comprised of some of BHS's top mathematicians. Hours of practicing for contests, figuring out complex problems, sharpening their skills, and enjoying themselves while learning were spent each week.

Determination and dedication were common factors for these two honor organizations. They also shared another goal which was the most important one, aiming for perfection.

Hard Work and High Standards

David Moore, Cindy Miller, and Julie Hawkins study the script for an upcoming scene.

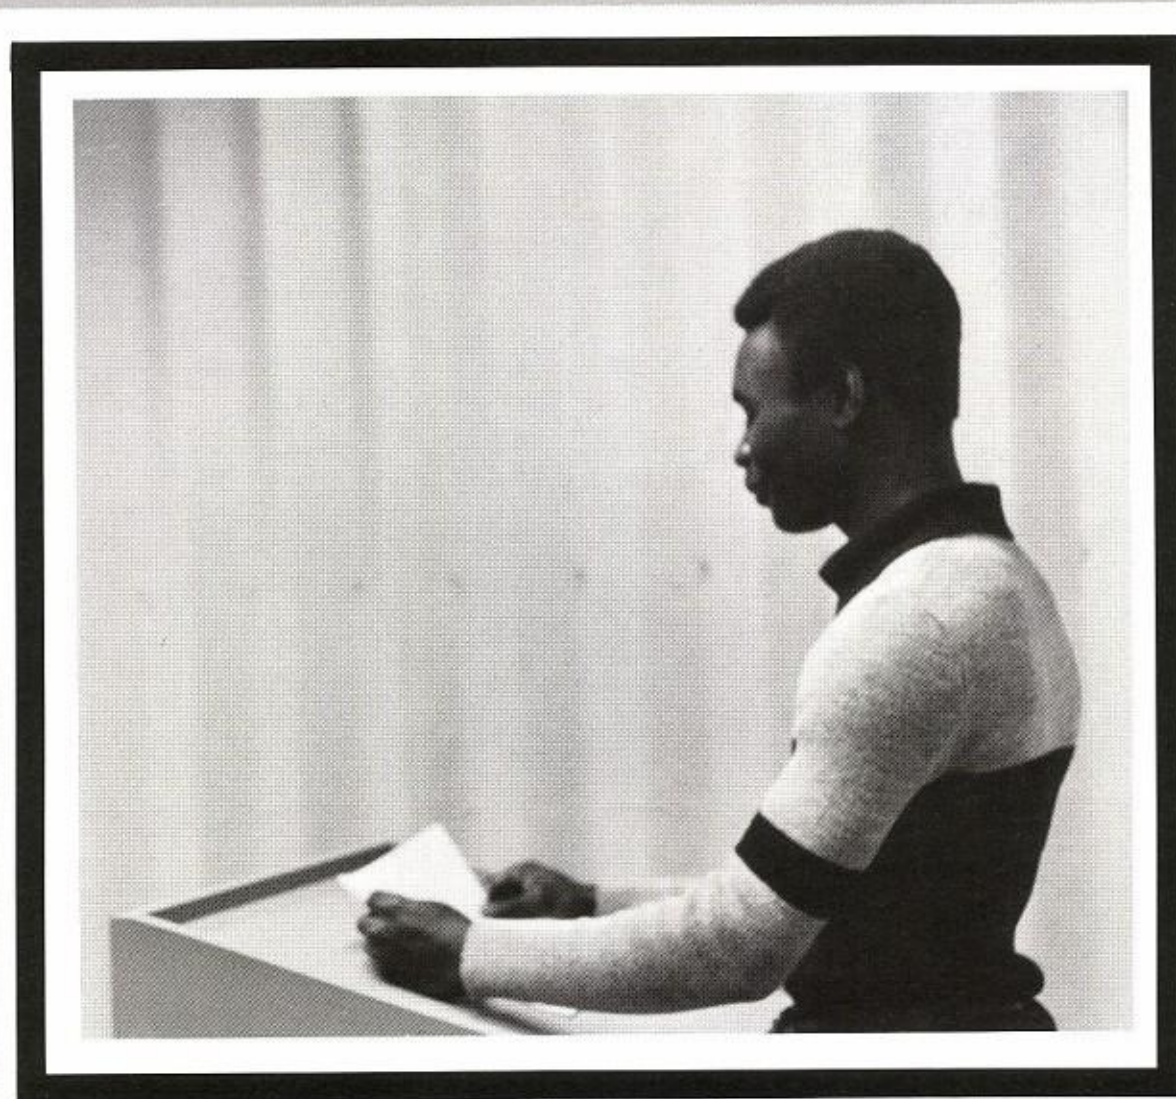

Cindy Miller rehearses while other members of Thespians watch.

Donna Lefebvre suddenly realizes she forgot her lines.

Members of two entirely different honor clubs had one thing in common — hard work. Thespians was an international honor group in which every member had to have at least ten points. Points were required by participating in any activity having to do with theatre, such as performing on stage, working backstage, or just watching a play. All members were eligible to attend district and state conferences, which consisted of acting out a scene from plays, musicals or pantomimes and workshops on make-up, costumes, and scenery.

Sabers had high requirements also. All members had to have an A average in R.O.T.C. and two other classes, and no less than a B average in their other classes. "We have accomplished, through perfect presentation, exemplary representation and recognition of cadets' academic achievements in R.O.T.C. and regular classes," said President Craig Putnam. Their goal was to have every R.O.T.C. cadet excel academically by providing initiative and setting an example of honor and fidelity for the corps and for the school. Both Thespians and Sabers set high standards and worked hard to achieve their goals.

178 / Spanish Honor Society

Jim Schiefelbein communicates very well in Spanish.

Students who'd maintained consistent high grades in French or Spanish, as well as in other courses, were singled out for membership in the honor organizations for the language in which they'd shown outstanding performance.

The French Honor Society benefited the school by their cultural activities. At meetings French Honor Society had guest speakers, enjoyed cultural programs about France, and sometimes entertained visitors from France. The group proudly represented Brandon at the state French Conference, at Hillbough County French Day, and at the International Dinner. Sponsored by Mrs. Suzette Thompson, the 35 members of French Honor Society were led by President — Chris Moore, Vice President — Jody Hooper, Secretary — Rosanne Rodriguez, and Treasurer — Gina Garcia.

Spanish Honor Society sold bumper stickers to help send students to local and state Declamation. They benefited the school by bringing back trophies and other awards from participating in those state and local declamations. At club meetings they planned events and places to go of Spanish culture. The Spanish Honor Society students were dedicated to the improvement of the Spanish language and to the observance of the various Spanish customs. They were very culture-oriented, while at the same time they enjoyed themselves. Mr. Malcolm Chandler was the sponsor of Spanish Honor Society, an honor club which held 43 members. Helping to keep the club organized were President — Lisa Hartly, Vice President — Gordon Keegan, Secretary — Kali Oliver, and Treasurer — Gloria Arina.

While membership in both FHS and SHS was earned primarily through classroom performance, each group, through interested leaders, had been turned into an active, productive part of Brandon high life.

Combining the academic achievement of an honor club and the dedication of a service club, Beta was unique among Brandon High's many organizations. For a person to become a member of Beta, he was required to have a cumulative grade point average of 3.5 and at least a "B" average in conduct. While maintaining these high academic standards, members participated in many activities such as a teachers' car wash and the club can drive. Actively involved in Homecoming, Beta proudly presented both a skit and an award-winning exhibit. Under the leadership of Teri Bartlett, this unique club clearly lived up to their motto: "Better Education Through Achievement."

Portraits

"Sit up straight, put your feet on the x, turn your knees to the left, put your hands on your knees ... no don't move your knees ... tilt your head to the right and back ... now smile!"

As each of us sat before the camera with smiles plastered on our faces, trying not to blink, we felt like contortionists as the photographer put us into position. Like in past years, seniors had to drive into Tampa to pose at Bryn Alan during the summer, while the underclassmen and teachers waited to be photographed in the auditorium at the beginning of the year. The underclassmen of the past used to be posed together by homerooms until about 1960, when the school became strictly high school and individual mug shots became the norm.

No matter where we had our pictures taken, we all felt the same; our own pictures were terrible, while our friends' pictures were perfect; however, this time in our lives would never come again, and so we posed so that we could remember each other in the years to come.

Over the years seniors have had their pictures taken in many outfits.

The leaders of the largest senior class in the history of Brandon High School had to shoulder a great deal of responsibility in the activities of the senior class. The senior officers oversaw the most successful record sale ever at Brandon High. The record sale proceeds of over $25,000 went to pay for buses to and from Grad Night at Disney World. The senior class officers had to appoint committees to handle Grad Night and Prom activities as these special occasions in every senior's life neared. The senior class officers showed their unity with a new twist in jersey styles as each officer had part of the motto "Let's Make It a Great Year" put on the back of his jersey. The Class of 1981 was led by President, Thomas Preziosi; Vice-President, Skipper Schmitt; Corresponding Secretary, Mindy Weinberger; Treasurer, Roxanne Wagner; and Recording Secretary, Renee Szulerecki.

They helped plan and keep track of how many records seniors sold in order to buy Grad Nite tickets. For one week, each day after homeroom, they counted and recorded the sales from their homeroom. Their decorating and decision making were a big part of Prom's success. Who were they? They were the 37 members of the Class of '81 who served as Senior Directors. They found many further demands for their help during the year.

A Year for Politicians

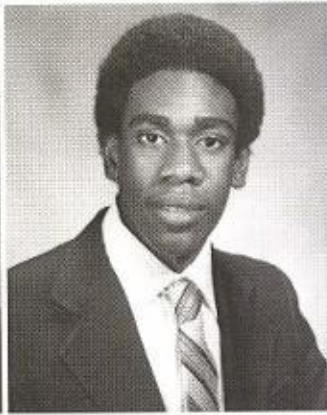

Making speeches at school is good practice for future politician Mike Cunningham.

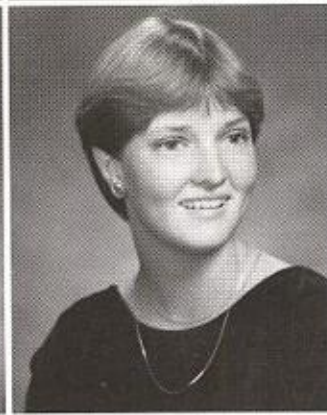

Pointing out one of the trouble spots of the African continent, Todd Disotell makes members of the Social Studies Club more aware of international politics.

All of us came through the November Presidential election knowing more about Jimmy, Rosalyn, Amy, Miss Lillian, Brother Billy, Ronald, Nancy, and the rest of the national political families than we'd ever cared to know. The Tuesday that Reagan was elected President was also the first time many of our seniors had ever cast a vote in any election. Interest in politics and government was intense thanks to all the media attention given the year's candidates. Among us were some students who actually were involved in politics as members of Young Republican or Young Democratic movements. The reasons varied from the hope for career in politics to simply a sincere desire to assist in improving the quality of local and national leadership. Those who most closely followed the political scene kept us all more aware of the importance of each person's vote.

Yes! They Do

Taking a really big step into life after graduation involved big responsibilities. One of the biggest responsibilities was marriage. While many students had not thought about it yet, there were some others who'd already given it some thought, and still others who'd already walked down the aisle. One of those students was Arnitrice Goff Hunter. Arnitrice married Derick Hunter in September 1980. While Arnitrice was finishing her last year at Brandon, Derek was in Kansas recruiting for the Air Force Reserve. Arnitrice loved being married and thought it was the greatest thing that had happened to her. She didn't mind being around her single peers and their problems with their boyfriends and girlfriends. After graduation she and Derek planned to move to Dallas and build their life together.

Daydreaming about graduation, Arnitrice Goff Hunter thinks about being with her husband Derek Hunter and their plans for the future.

A big step for college-bound seniors was the Scholastic Aptitude Test, otherwise known as the S.A.T. Students who wished to attend college during the upcoming year were required to take the exam and meet the specifications of the college they wished to attend. In most cases this meant that students must at least have scored an 800 out of a possible 1600.

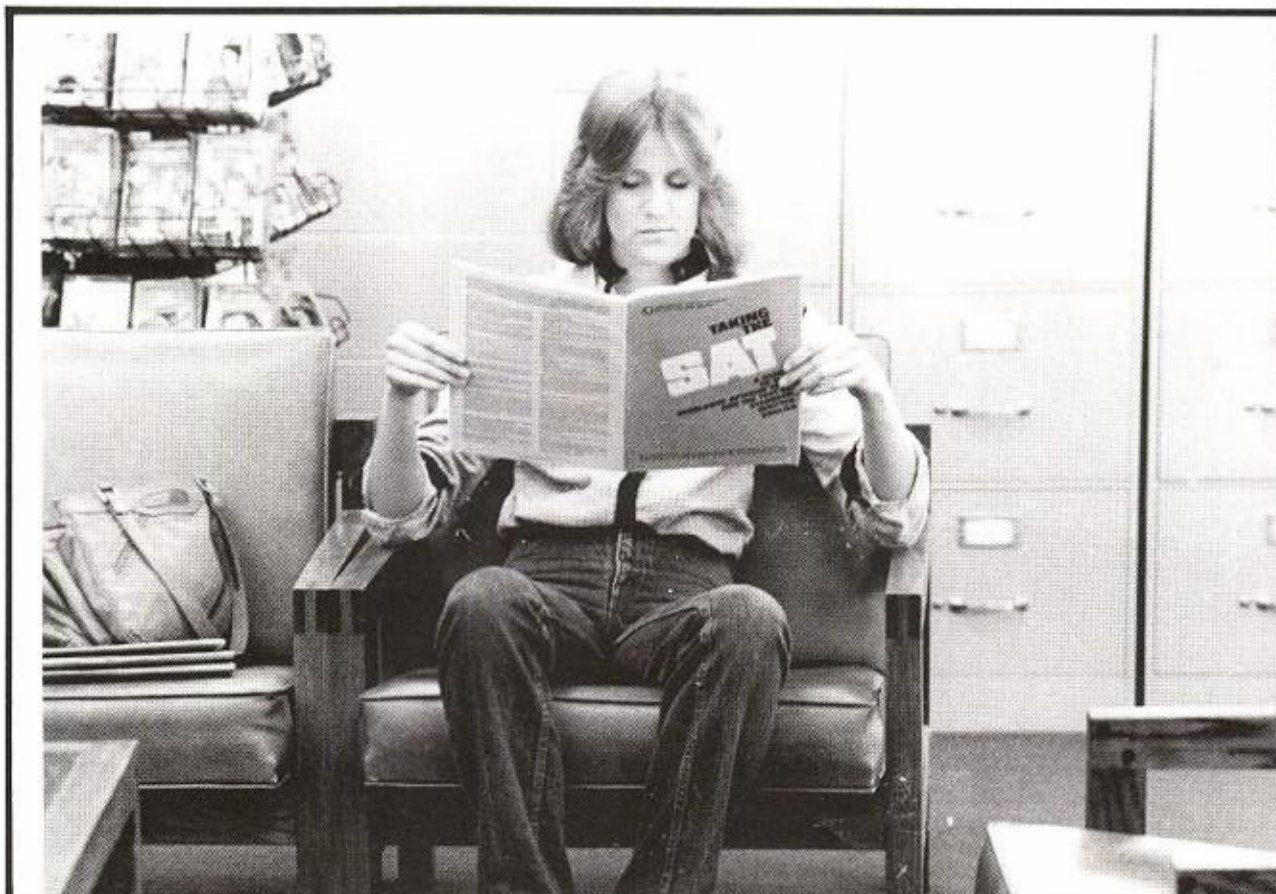

The S.A.T. took at least 3½ hours to complete. It consisted of six sections of twenty-five to fifty questions. Each different section of English or math took thirty minutes to complete. Most students took the exams at either University of South Florida or University of Tampa, and were there from 8:00 until 12:30.

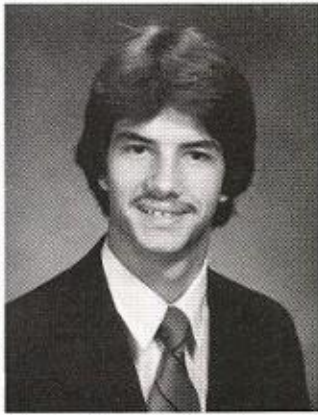

After the exams were completed and students had exhaled a sigh of relief, the waiting began. For six long weeks seniors waited anxiously for their test results. Would they have to retake the S.A.T. or had they succeeded in making the grade?

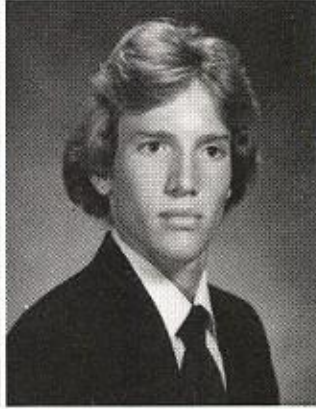

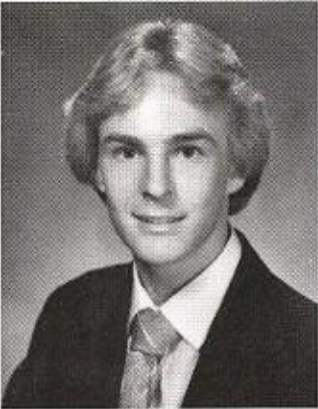

To prepare for the S.A.T., Lori Felker gets a booklet from the guidance office.

Best of Over a Million

Over one million students enrolled in about 18,000 secondary schools nationwide entered the 1981 Merit Program by taking the PSAT/NMQST in 1979, when most participants were juniors. The semifinalists represented the highest scores in each state. In addition to being honored publicly, semifinalists were identified to colleges and universities in hope of increasing their educational opportunities. The semifinalists named in every state represented the top half of one percent of the state's high school senior class. Over 90 percent of these semifinalists were expected to advance to finalist standing by meeting further requirements — which included being fully endorsed and recommended for scholarships by their seconddary school principals, submitting records that confirmed high academic standing, and substantiating their high qualifying test scores with equivalent scores on another examination. The selection process was a subjective one in which each finalist's academic record, self-description, achievements outside the classroom, two sets of aptitude test scores, and the high school principal's recommendation were evaluated. There were 15,000 semifinalists competing for about 4,500 Merit Scholarships to be awarded. Among them were eight from Brandon High: Andrew Cherry, Todd Disotell, Robert Gendreau, Ronald Irvin, Mary Johnson, Russell Kaplan, Christine Lisman, and Scott Specht.

Problems of American Democracy

At graduation, as the seniors receive their diplomas, there was one thing they had in common. They all had been required to pass one semester of Problems of American Democracy. This was one class that was dreaded by most.

P.A.D. had an important significance. A deep knowledge of our government and how it is run was essential as students reached their eighteenth birthdays and became eligible to vote. Students were introduced to the different business cycles and how the American economy was run. They also became knowledgeable about the socialist way of life.

Even though the class had its advantages throughout the semester, most seniors were relieved to turn in their little blue books.

Far From Home

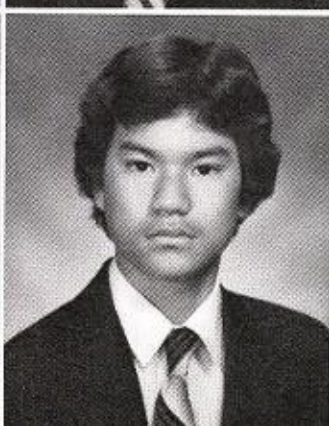

FRONT ROW: Katsuya Ishizeki, Angie Immink. BACK ROW: Mark Weber, Mari Ozawa, Monica Navarro, Jens Holm, and Marjan Vissler.

"You're a foreign exchange student?" "Where are you from?" "How do you like it here?" These were a few of the questions asked by curious Brandon High students. The victims of those frequently asked questions were Marjan Visser, of Holland, Monica Navarro — Colombia, Mark Weber — German, Katsuya Ishizeki — Japan, Mari Ozawa — Japan, Jens Holm — Sweden, and Angie Immink from Switzerland. They came here to learn the language, learn the culture, and experience the American way of life. Coming from much smaller schools, they were amazed with Brandon's large size. Monica's graduating class in Colombia was an unbelievable 20 seniors! One can imagine the change to well over 1,000. On their return to their countries, they would bring back many fond memories of their experiences here, and our lives would be improved from having known them.

What!? NO more room?

The joy of finding out that they would no longer have to make the long walk from the junior parking lot was soon tempered by fighting the traffic to get in and out of the senior parking lot for the Class of '81.

The lot was full by 7:00 A.M. each morning and stragglers found themselves frantically driving up one row and down the next in hope that just one place might be left.

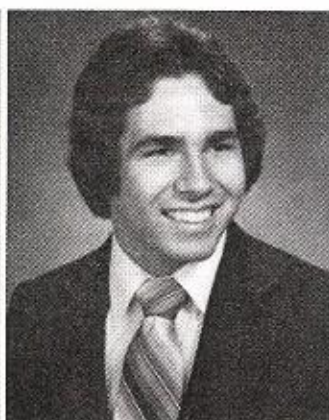

The 12:05 dismissal bell was the signal for mass chaos at both exits into Victoria Street.

Even with the problems and frustrations of parking however, the Seniors enjoyed the honor of having their own parking lot and parking next to the school.

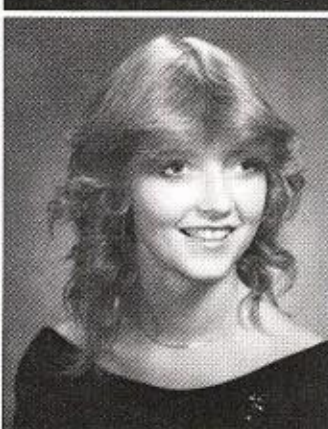

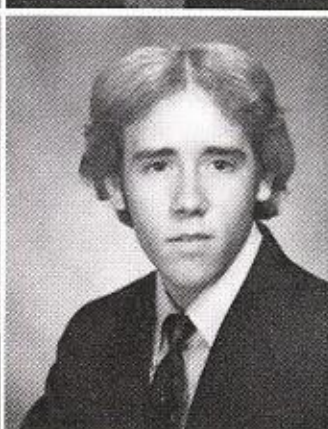

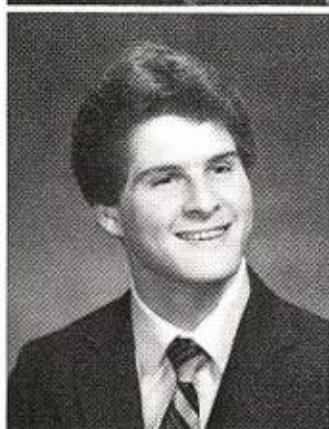

An early arrival to school tries desperately to find a space in the already crowded parking lot.

In an attempt to relieve the unfavorable counselor — student ratio and heavy demands which made one-to-one assistance with career development between student and counselor virtually impossible, the Guidance Department had introduced Discover. Discover was a computer that helped meet the need for additional career guidance on an individualized basis.

Discover stored vast quantities of information about occupations, colleges, technical — specialized schools, military programs, financial aid, apprenticeships, and local jobs which could be retrieved and updated. Discover provided assistance in all these areas:

- self-information, including values, interest, and competencies
- exploration of occupations in a systematic way
- teaching and low-risk practice of decision making
- informational assistance with implementation of choice.

By working with this computer and following it through the various modules, a student could eliminate his weaknesses and focus in on his assets which could be helpful in his choosing a career.

Kelly Huey and Whitney Waddell experiment with Discover as Mr. Robert Feeney supervises.

Working For Today Preparing For Tomorrow

RIGHT: Because of the high cost of her senior year, Whitney Waddell takes on a job at Publix, even though she is highly active in the activities of her senior year.

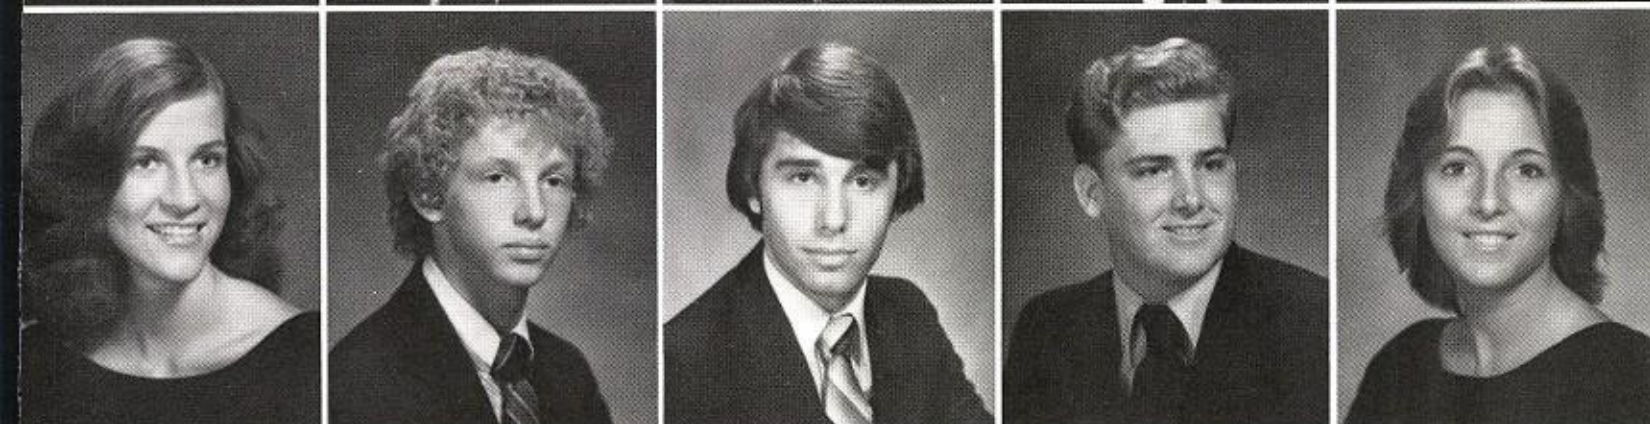

A busy schedule! That's what the seniors had to deal with this year. They had to attend school, go to work, do their homework, and participate in their various club activities. The double session had its advantages and its disadvantages for people with jobs. One advantage was that most students would not have been able to work if they had not been on double session. A second advantage was that double session allowed them to work more hours since being out of school at 12:05 allowed them to work all afternoon. A disadvantage of the double session was that many who were employed had to work late at night and then get up early the next morning to go to school. A second disadvantage was that having worked all day, they would be too tired to study for a test the next day by the time they got home. The last disadvantage was that they hardly had any time for recreational activities outside of school. For some, life became an endless routine of get-up-early, go-to-school, go-to-work, do-the homework, go-to-sleep. An endless schedule! If there was one thing that the seniors definitely learned this year, it was how to regulate their time.

As she awaits her turn to vote, senior Michele Hanis reviews detailed instructions.

Voting proves to be a longer process than Michele had anticipated, as she chooses candidates for president, vice-president, local offices and various amendments.

In 1971, legal voting age was changed from twenty-one to eighteen in the United States. Becoming actively involved in politics was a new experience to many eighteen year olds. Thanks to the League of Women Voters, who came to Brandon High to register seniors when they were seventeen and a half, many were able to vote in the 1980 presidential election. Weighing the promises of the candidates in so important an election was a challenge to these first time voters; yet, on November 4, upholding the basic principles of Jeffersonian Democracy these seniors were proud to have cast a vote of their choice.

Once upon a time the State Legislature decided that all eleventh graders in Florida should take a test called SSAT. The problem for Brandon was what to do with the seniors while the juniors took the test, and Mrs. Peggy Hill had the solution — SENIOR DAY. While juniors sharpened their #2 pencils, the class of 1981 crowded into the gym and spent their morning in such serious endeavors as Crazy Bat, Sleeping Bag Roll, Hoola Hoop, Cone Heads, and the Applesauce Race. Nobody won prizes or awards at Senior Day, which really made no difference to the participants, they were perfectly content to be there instead of in class.

Tarzan, better known as Sam Schubert munches on a banana while Kelly Huey as Jane instructs seniors on how to play "Applesauce Race."

First chair musicians Stephanie Ford (top), Greg Bellotte (right), and Denise Williams (left) set an example for all to follow with their exceptional styles and techniques.

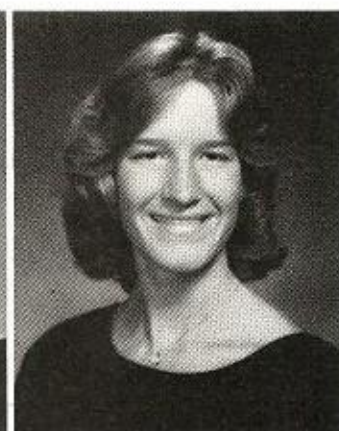

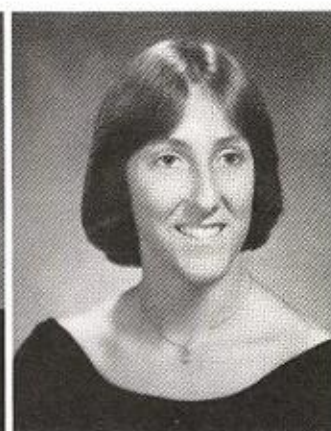

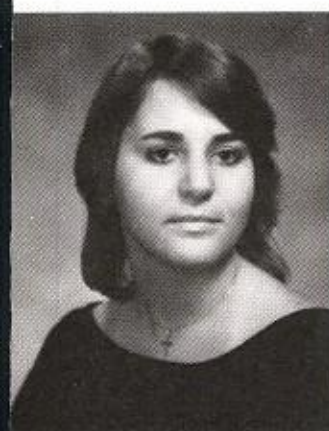

First Chair — Hot Seat

The responsibilities one takes on when becoming the first chair player in orchestra are great. All eyes are upon him; the audience, Miss Groh, and every other person in his section is watching, waiting for him to jump in at the same exact moment.

Stephanie Ford, first chair violinist, Greg Bellotte, first chair string bass player, and Denise Williams, first chair clarinetist, had all been in the B.H.S. orchestra for their entire three years here. All agreed that their experience with the orchestra had given them sensitivity, confidence, and leadership abilities. The goals they wished to accomplish after Brandon were varied. Stephanie planned to major in music and her ultimate goal was to play a duet with violinist Heifitz. Greg planned to go to U.S.F. and major in electronics while minoring in music. Denise planned to go to Florida State and then teach music. Her ultimate goal was to play with the New York Philharmonic.

Getting Their Act Together

For the service clubs at school, helping in the community was a very real commitment. Each organization had special projects. Girls' Interact was bringing happiness to the residents of Lowe's Nursing Home. Each month when the group visited, they planned or helped out with some special event. Halloween at Lowe's was complete with a Haunted House. A treasure hunt delighted residents another month. One of the most unusual events was the November bed race. The Christmas program presented in December was a special highlight of the year. Not only did the girls make their monthly visits, but they also really got to know each of Lowe's residents. Theirs was just one of many useful projects being conducted by Brandon High's service clubs.

Guys and Girls Interact helped prepare residents at Lowe's Nursing Home for the treasure hunt.

During the course of a day, Janice Spradling interviews many people at Eastlake Mall for Walker Research.

Sneak Preview?

Each year since 1972, Brandon High had had a program which allowed students, in lieu of class attendance, to work with an executive sponsor in the community for one semester. This program was called the Executive Internship Program. Placements for the Executive Interns were available with such individuals and groups as governmental officials, social agencies, newspapers, television stations, and chambers of commerce. The students received no pay for their experience, but they did receive high school credit. Those who chose to become Executive Interns spoke highly of the opportunity they'd received to catch a sneak preview of life in the world of business. Many felt that they had also missed some of the fun that went along with being a senior on campus.

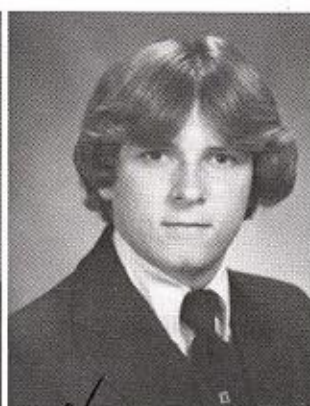

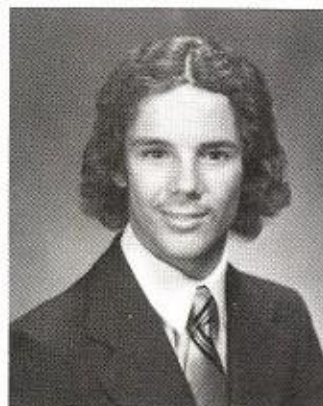

Another One Bites the Dust . .

With this popular song echoing throughout the crowded gymnasium, rowdy seniors showed their spirit by clapping along with the beat. The cheerleaders did their part by performing skits in which they defeated that day's opposing team. Seniors once again won the prized spirit stick, and proudly marched around the school. Senior Day was the day seniors really got involved. Events such as tug-of-wars, three legged races, and a shouting contest heightened the day's excitement. An enthusiastic group like this was proof enough to say this senior class was the best yet.

Let's Make It a Great Year

As they wandered individually through Commons wearing their white-lettered red jerseys other students stared and probably said, "Now that's dumb! Who would put 'Let's Make It a Great Year' on a jersey?" When they lined up side by side the message from the Senior Class Officers was suddenly clear. Their uniquely fashioned method of promoting school spirit and unity in the Class of '81 and throughout the school was to tell everyone with the writing on their backs, "Let's Make It a Great Year!"

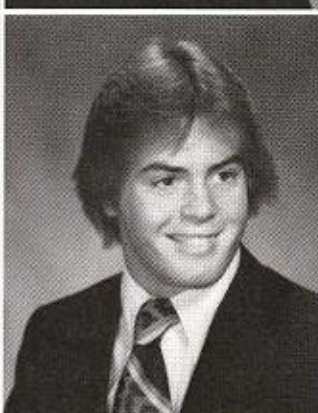

The Senior Class Officers display their unique jersey design.

Not an Easy 'A'

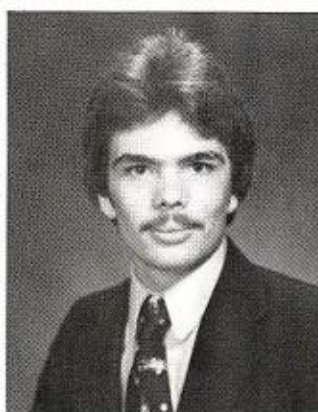

They graded papers and ran errands. "They" were the student assistants. Every teacher was allowed to have as many as three assistants, and most teachers found them to be a great asset. Student assistants performed many time-consuming duties. This left the teachers with more time for the students.

Being a teacher's assistant was half a credit. If some students thought it was an easy "A", they were in for a surprise. Teachers relied on their assistants rather heavily. Typing, recording grades, and correcting papers were just a few of their many duties. For those who assisted, the rewards included gaining valuable clerical experience and learning more about the teaching profession.

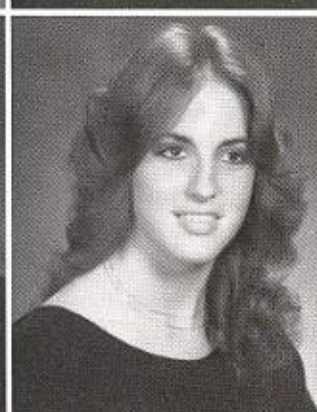

Jane Alfriend watches curiously to learn the duties of a student assistant.

Learning for Today And Tomorrow

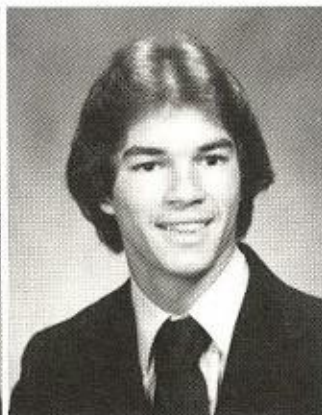

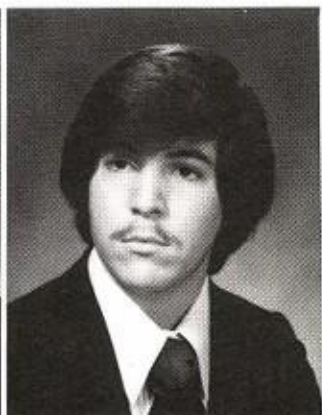

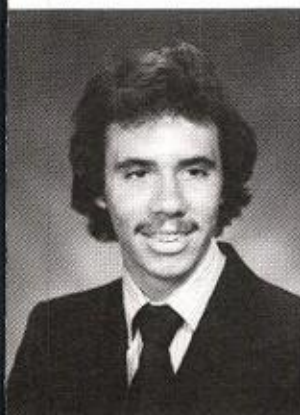

Scott Specht, Chris Moore, and Olive Thompson comprehend future homework.

Brandon High had one of the finest advanced Placement programs in the county. Honor students were able to take higher level courses and receive extra credit for doing so. Taking honor courses also meant taking advanced placement tests. If students did well on these exams they were eligible to bypass as many as two years of college in the subject in which they excelled.

Extra credit also meant added hours of study. A.P. classes were geared to prepare the students for college courses. Advanced English, calculus, physics, and chemistry graded students on a college level. This taught them what to expect in the years ahead of them.

College textbooks in hand, Elaine Newell leaves Brandon for her gerontology course at USF.

Stepping Ahead

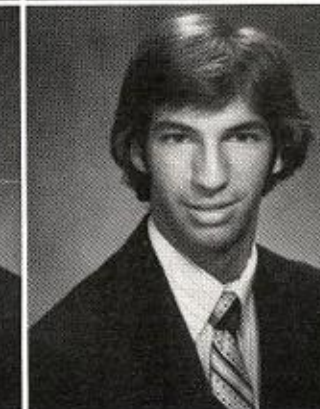

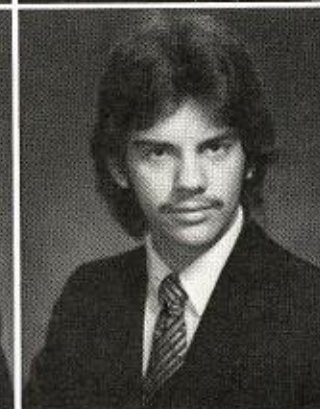

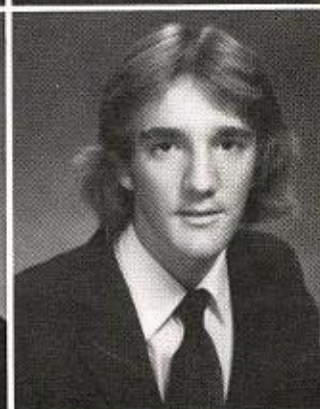

While some seniors could hardly wait until that day when they would finally be out of school forever, there were others who just couldn't seem to get enough of school. Not content to live out 1980-81 as high school students, they enrolled in courses at local colleges and began earning credits toward their college degrees. One such person was Elaine Newell, who left Brandon at noon every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday to head for USF, where she was enrolled in gerontology and anthropology classes. She was able to do that by being registered in individual classes as a special student. The advantages for students who chose to begin college while they were still in high school were that they could get a step ahead in earning college credit and they could still enjoy the activities of high school's senior year. The disadvantage was the extra studying required to make it all work.

SENIOR SALES SOAR

Brandon High Senior Sales soared 1980-81 to an incredible 25,000, even though the original goal had been set at 15,000. The senior class officers encouraged seniors to sell at least three records to insure their admission to Grad Night held in May every year at Walt Disney World. If a senior wanted a second Grad Night ticket for a date or friend, he had to sell five records. Other prizes such as T-shirts, mugs, and blankets were given out. Sales were slow at first, and the class officers made daily pleas over the intercom for seniors to get with it and sell their quotas. Whether their pleas convinced people to get out and sell or whether seniors suddenly feared having to miss Grad Night, the result — the best sale total ever for a Brandon senior class — convinced most members of the Class of 1981 that they were the best Brandon senior class ever.

Audio And Visual Work Is Their Speciality

Brandon High School was one of the privileged schools having knowledgeable, talented seniors in SAVOS. SAVOS stood for Sophisticated Audio Visual Operators Staff. The senior members of SAVOS were Greg Bellotte, David Stone, Skipper Schmitt, Marty Springer, and Ed Kleinhample. The sponsors were Mr. Barry Bunn, Mrs. Joy Stafford, and Mrs. Carol Covington. This club was in charge of operating all of BHS's lighting and sound equipment in our auditorium and gymnasium.

The president of SAVOS was Greg Bellotte. He planned to major in electrical engineering. He also planned to get a job as a disc jockey or as an audio technician. Other SAVOS seniors either planned careers in fields related to A-V work or simply enjoyed tinkering with sound and lighting equipment. Our auditorium and gymnasium were used almost daily as meeting places for large school and community groups. Every time a group like that met, members of a unique club, SAVOS, were on hand.

"Testing one, two, three," remarks Greg Bellotte.

It's What Life Is All About

Seriously thinking about the future, Arthur Simmons wonders what is ahead for him.

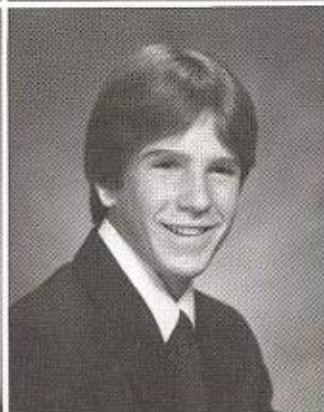

The students of Mr. Jim Sumner's Family Life classes found that there was much more to learn about at Brandon High School than the ordinary day-to-day book work learning. In Family Life, students studied the person, how to know themselves, dating, marriage, problems within the family and how to handle them, and how to manage money matters. The main objective of the class was to prepare students for life and to teach them how to cope with everyday things that would be encountered in everyday life, not only in their present lives, but in their future lives also. The significant foundation of this ever-so-popular and interesting class was that situations were discussed, but not on a personal basis. One way that was used for practicing this type of communication was the role playing situation. Through these tactics, students learned that the more corrections that were made in themselves and their lives, the better type of person they would become.

The students who took part in Mr. Sumner's Family Life classes learned about common, yet very important facts about living, while at the same time, they really enjoyed the class.

The Finality of Finals FOR SENIORS

Did the word EXAM bother you? Well the phrase "Final Exams" didn't bother most seniors because if they had three quality points for the semester in a course, they weren't required to take its exam.

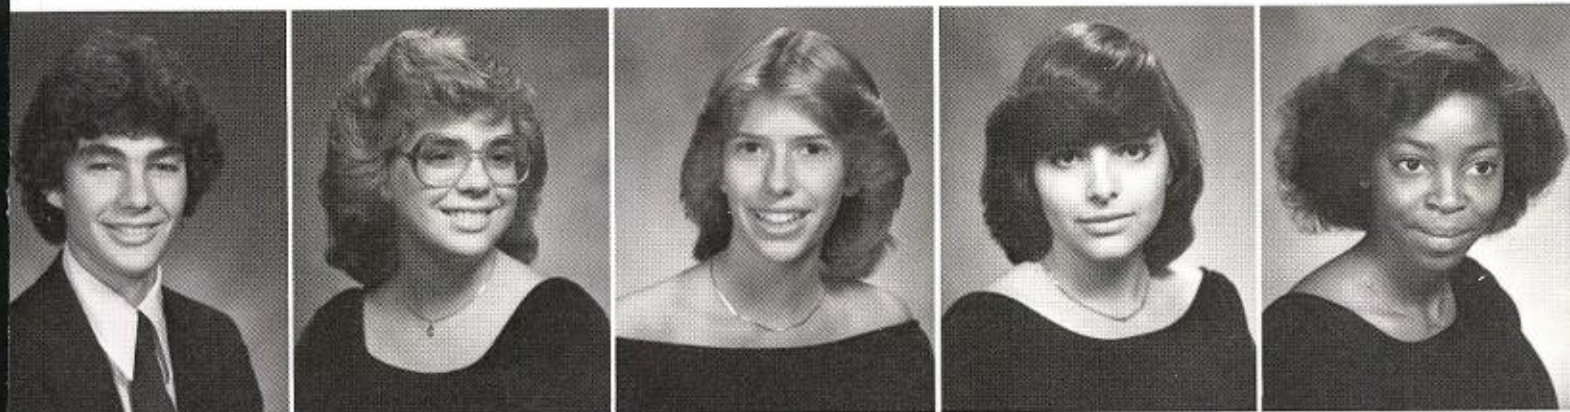

For those seniors who had the dreaded disease senioritis, or skipped school, or just didn't care about making the grades, found opportunities to sweat through finals. And they were always available. For the second year in a row, Hillsborough County sent all its exempt seniors home on the day before finals began; and while the rest of the students sat at school trying to bubble the right answers on 1 — 100, most of the Class of '81 headed for the Gulf beaches to begin their summer.

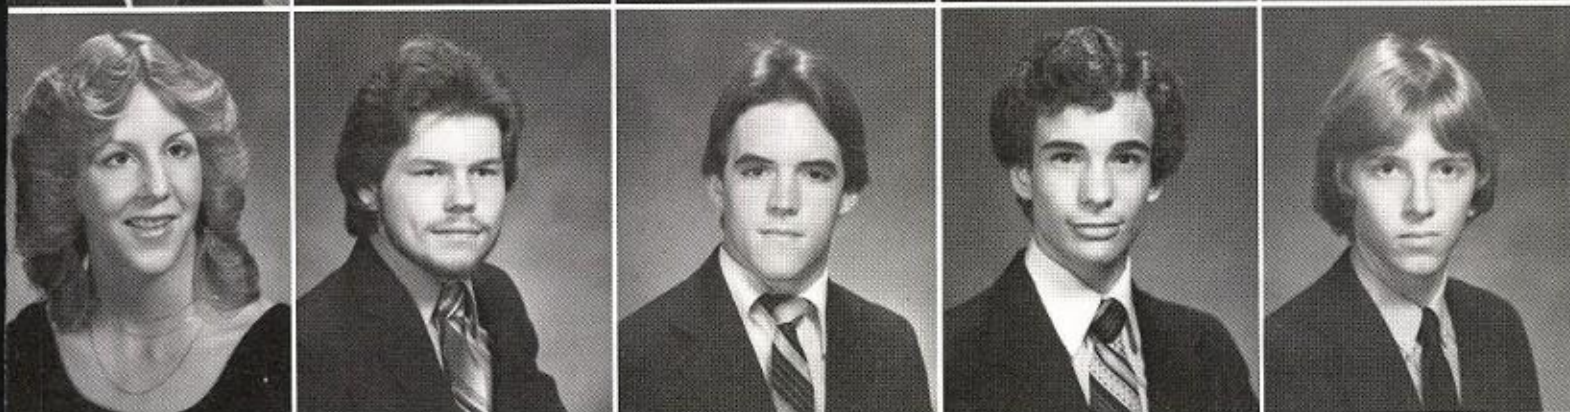

This group of Juniors were found in the auditorium, taking their exams.

David Henry will not be taking his exams because he is studying hard to pass his classes.

Cami Bristow, Head Colorguard, earns the privilege of leading her group each week by maintaining a good record in the classroom.

Bench or Field? Eligibility Decides

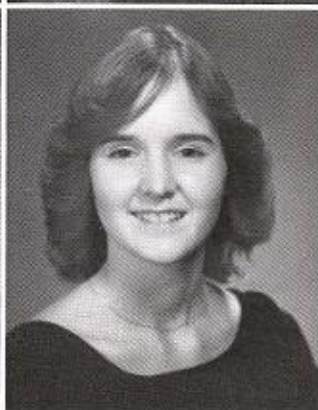

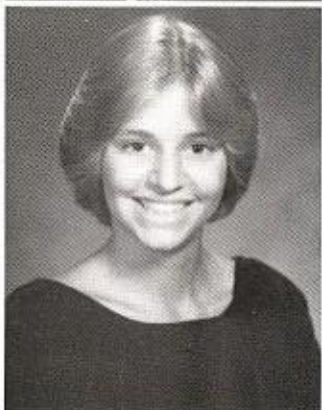

Once upon a time students were able to participate on sports teams, in band, in orchestra, and in other organizations such as Colorguard and Dancerettes by simply having made the team. Then, along came the eligibility card. Each week, every team participant had to turn in to his coach or sponsor a card on which his teachers had recorded his most up-to-date academic grades, conduct grades, and records of attendance in class. The card was very important to each participant because what was recorded on each week determined whether he would play or be benched for the week. The existence of eligibility requirements put extra pressure on team members, but most admitted that it also encouraged them to study harder, behave better, and attend class more regularly. When a student appeared in an event over the weekend, we knew that he was a person who was also living up to high standards in the classroom.

Painting The Town

After studying for seven tests scheduled for Friday, making sure we stayed on our toes by following the rules, keeping up with all our absences, listening to the every day assignments by our teachers, doing our homework, and fighting the heavy traffic of the halls, it sure was fun to get away from it all by going down to Brandon Boulevard and sloshing paint on business windows, and each other, during Homecoming Week. As people passed by the Chamber of Commerce they saw Brandon High's service clubs working together to show their spirit. Assorted eagles, fight slogans, and shades of maroon and white brightened the windows of that strip of offices and spread the word to passing motorists that they had arrived in Eagle Country.

Nancy White paints the town for Homecoming.

With Paint On Their Fingers . .

With paint on their fingers, Art Club members screened T-shirts (designed by Mark Coon) for all seniors as a remembrance of Brandon High School. Students were able to recognize who were seniors and who were not by the Senior "81" on their shirts. These T-shirts were worn for Senior Day. T-shirts for Homecoming "81" were also screened to help show off our school spirit for the big Homecoming football game. As a matter of fact, around school there seemed to be T-shirt screenings for almost every occasion. While sponsors of the screening enjoyed receiving the profits, T-shirt owners were pleased to have added another '81 moment to their collections.

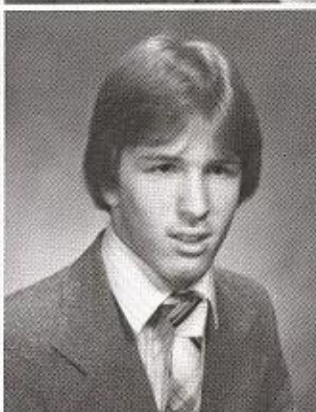

Linda Penhale screens T-shirts for the Homecoming game.

In November the State PTA Convention at the Holiday Inn in Tampa drew crowds of interested participants from all over Florida. One group of delegates who really attracted attention were the four students from Brandon High School. Their presence there was unique because only seven students from the entire state attended, but even more closely noted was their participation in platform and active bylaws discussions. By the end of the proceedings, adults at the convention were convinced, by the conduct of the Brandon group, that students could make valuable contributions to such a gathering.

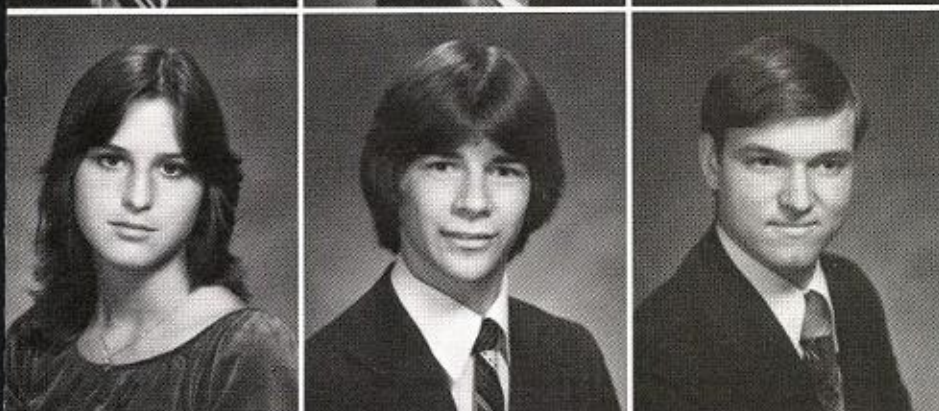

Attending the state PTA Convention are: Charlene Bennett, Gordan Keegan, Senator Pat Frank, Jim Schiefelbein, Kathy Barnes, Mrs. Katie Keene, Fla. PTA Pres.

"Cats? Oh, no! Are you serious? Cats?!!!" The reactions of the weak-stomached to Mr. Tom Edwards' AP Biology cat-dissection lab were predictable. They had made it through worms and frogs, but the idea of examining the insides of what they normally considered common household pets was somewhat more perturbing. Yet, for most, once actual dissection began, the scientist's natural curiosity took over. Students in the course were earning college credit for their efforts. Many in the class would go on to enter the fields of science or medicine. From this lab experience, they gained the kind of knowledge that neither the best teacher nor the best textbook could impart.

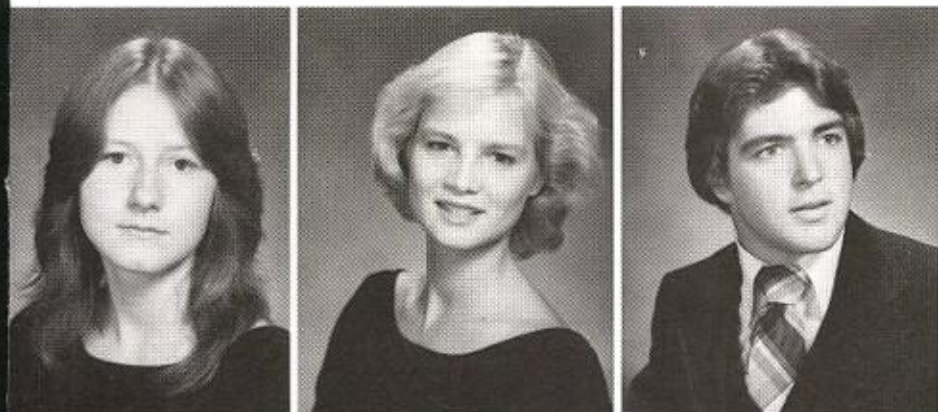

Learning About The Body Cat

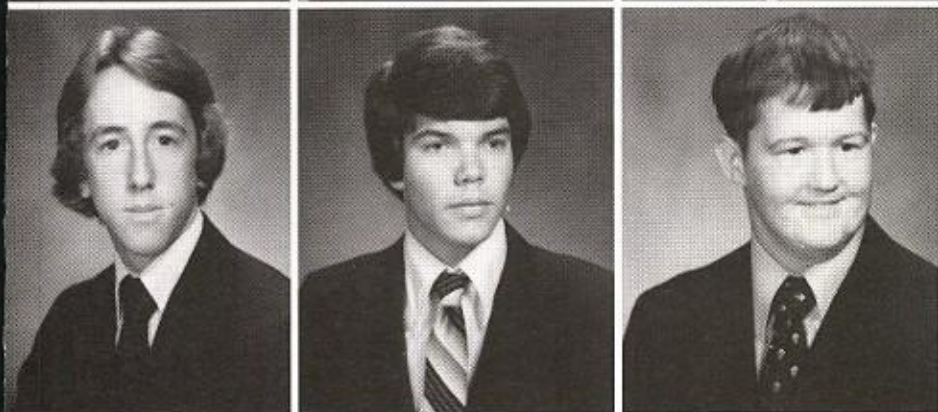

Kerrie Lavija and Ron McMullen prove that cats weren't made just for dissecting.

To be nominated as a Senior of the Month was a great honor accomplished by only a handful. To be a Senior of the Month the requirements were to be dedicated to Brandon High School and to be involved in many activities in both the school and the community. The few seniors who achieved this had to be nominated and then voted on by a committee of ten members from Guy's Interact. Once selected the Senior of the Month's picture was displayed on the bulletin board in the commons area, and also an article about him appeared in the Emblem. The entire honor was a small token of appreciation for all of the time these people had given.

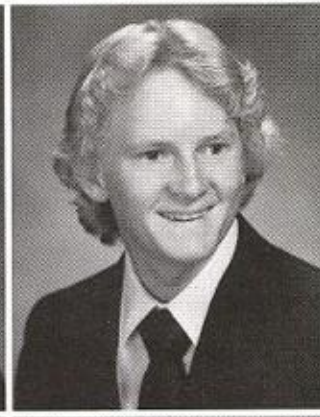

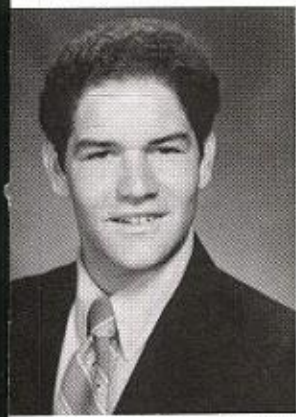

Cheryl Green shows why she was chosen as senior of the month.

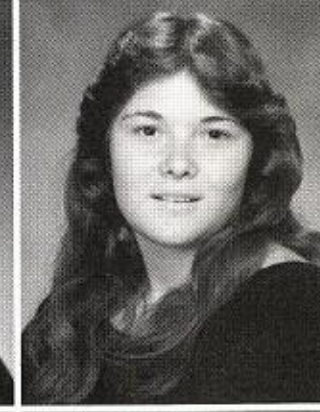

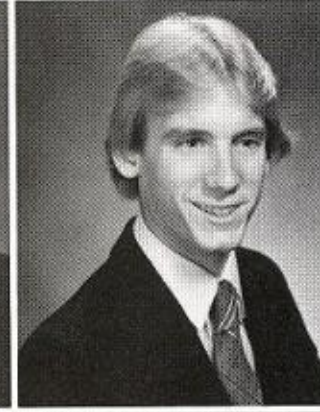

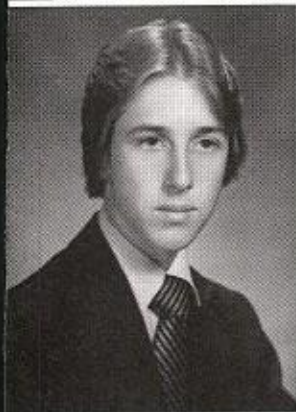

A familiar sight in the commons was the Interact Seniors of the month board.

We Get Senioritis

What was senioritis? When students were asked, they replied that from what they'd observed, the disease seemed to strike only those students in their last year of high school and the symptoms of the disease — laziness, daydreaming, and lack of interest in all classes — were the most noticeable during the months from January through May. Did the disease affect all of us?

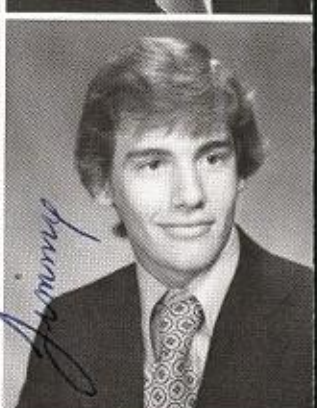

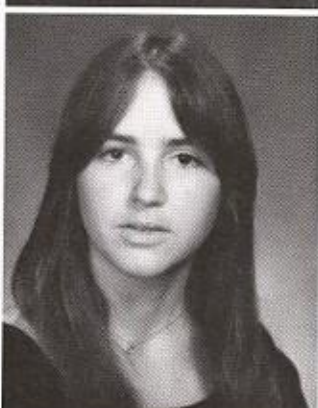

Showing the symptoms of advanced senioritis, Robert Benscoter dreams of his high school days, friends and fun.

It's not Just a Job It's an Adventure!

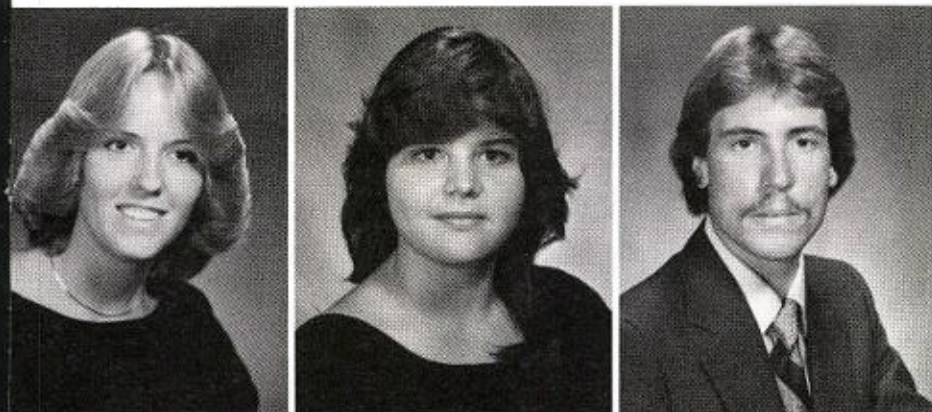

Opening the door to the future, Kevin Amos goes to sign up with the Air Force.

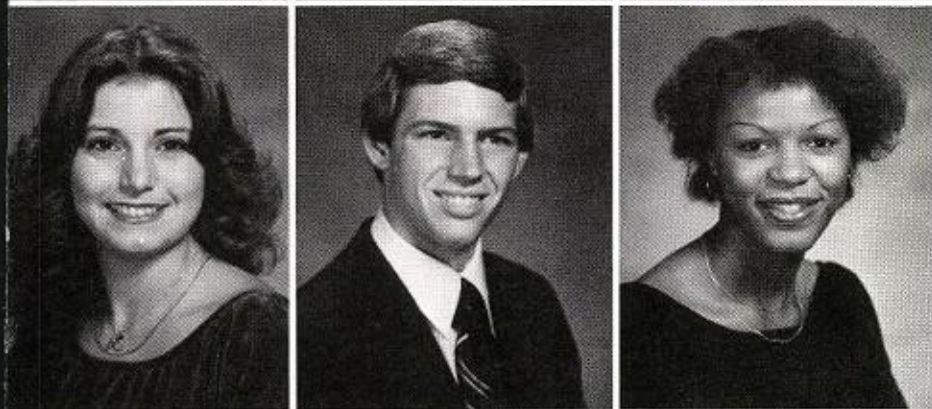

"What do you plan to do after high school?" asked many teachers, parents, and friends. Many seniors had already answered this question. Their decision was to join the armed forces.

Military service gave students a chance for travel, excitement, and educational opportunities while serving their country. Most seniors had the advantage of the delayed entry program. This program enabled students to spend an enjoyable summer before boot camp in the fall. It took a person with a strong desire to succeed, one who was ready to work hard and to take advantage of service opportunities.

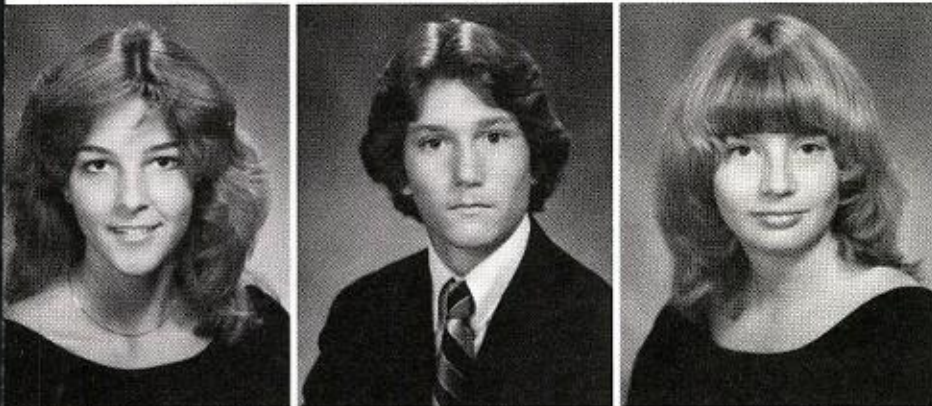

For those who met those qualifications, military life beckoned.

Eighty-one days before the last school day, many teachers walked into their classrooms to find only a few students at their desks. This day was often called Senior Skip Day although there was no such legal holiday. As graduation neared many seniors became impatient for the long awaited end, and on that particular day many dared to take a break from the normal routine. Even though they were warned that stiff penalties would follow if they were caught skipping, many brave students did not show up for school on that tempting day recognized only by seniors.

On a day often called Senior Skip Day, Kellie Fitzpatrick finds herself alone in an empty classroom.

If you were given a million dollars to use any way you wanted to, what would you do with it?
Gloria Sandy: "Give it to charity and put a sum back for my education and personal expenses, buy a new house."
Jeff Mason: "Move to Melbourne by a new surfboard, bring all my friends and start a commune."

Don, it's been great knowing you this year. I'll always remember the times at the football games and after the games. You had me didn't you? I love you. I couldn't miss this summer. (685-9753)

Class of '82 Soars to the Top

Leading the class of '82 is Beth Creed, Andria De-Spieglar, Mike McKenna, and Melanie Stoner.

The class of '82 had an eventful year. They had a chance to purchase class rings while they also planned for their Senior year.

The Junior class officers were in charge of raising money to use in their Senior year. They managed the candy sale in March along with putting the Christmas tree up in December.

Returning officers from the sophomore year were Andria DeSpieglar — President and Beth Creed — Secretary, while Melanie Stoner — Vice President and Mike McKenna — Treasurer were the newcomers.

Still Going Strong

The Junior Council kicked off their third year with two new sponsors, Ms. Marlene Hammock and Ms. Jan Neal. Junior Council members were elected by the entire class to assist the class officers with their responsibilities. The Junior Council accomplished many things during the year. They were responsible for buying and decorating a Christmas tree, helping with the class ring sales, and raising money for the class of '82's senior prom by selling candy. The Junior class officers and the Junior Council worked together to lead the Class of '82.

Kevin Ward adds the final touch to decorating the Christmas tree.

Junior Council secretary, Beth Creed, places an ornament on the Christmas tree.

'The Long and Winding Road'

Anxious students attempt to escape the rush by leaving first.

Crowded conditions make parking a challenge.

A brisk hike to begin and end the day.

Many exclusive senior privileges were anxiously awaited by envious underclassmen. As juniors trudged through the rain and mud up the winding path toward the distant high school, they counted the days until they could have rights to the Senior Parking Lot.

Some daring renegades even risked the consequences by parking in its back rows, attempting to construct counterfeit eagle stickers, or adorning their cars with "Senior" and "Class of '81" emblazoned on bumper stickers. These devious schemes often ended in a visit to the dean, a strict remonition, and a return to counting the days until they, too, could park in a real parking lot.

What was the worst movie you've seen this year?

What was the best book you ever read?
Lisa Husslein: "Change of Heart"
Kathy Dorsey: "Wifey."

Service clubs had been active at School for a number of years, and through their numerous projects in the school and community, they'd earned the recognition and respect of many. It naturally followed that many students wanted to belong to one of these clubs — more students than the clubs had room for. Because membership slots were limited, the service clubs conducted rush each year. During rush candidates for membership were invited to meet with club members and to answer questions which could help the service club decide who should fill the vacancies on the club roster. Some candidates came away disillusioned by being so put on the spot. Others considered the same situation a challenge to be met. When lists of new members were announced, reactions ranged from glee to disappointment. Whether a person ended up as a member or not, though, all would add rush to their lists of unforgettable high school memories.

Kathy Snyder, Tracy Williams, and Jane Fleegal were a few of the girls chosen to become members of Cupidettes.

Morning Has Broken . . .

Waking up with a smile isn't easy for Tom Grady.

Arriving at school in the early morning hours was a first for many of us, as was getting up before the sun rose. Adjusting to this schedule took time, but as the year progressed we adapted to waking early. As sophomores we had the entire morning to prepare for school, as juniors only a short time considering school started at 7:15. Some students found themselves waking up during first period, catching a few winks if ever possible. Each morning students could sit in the auditorium and listen to rock music or attend CFS devotions, while others congregated in the commons and lunchroom area. Many students considered morning session better, because that way they could hold afternoon jobs or go to the beach with friends, among other various activities. Although dragging ourselves to school in the early morning was a new experience, we learned to enjoy the afternoon fringe benefits.

Brandon Strikes Back

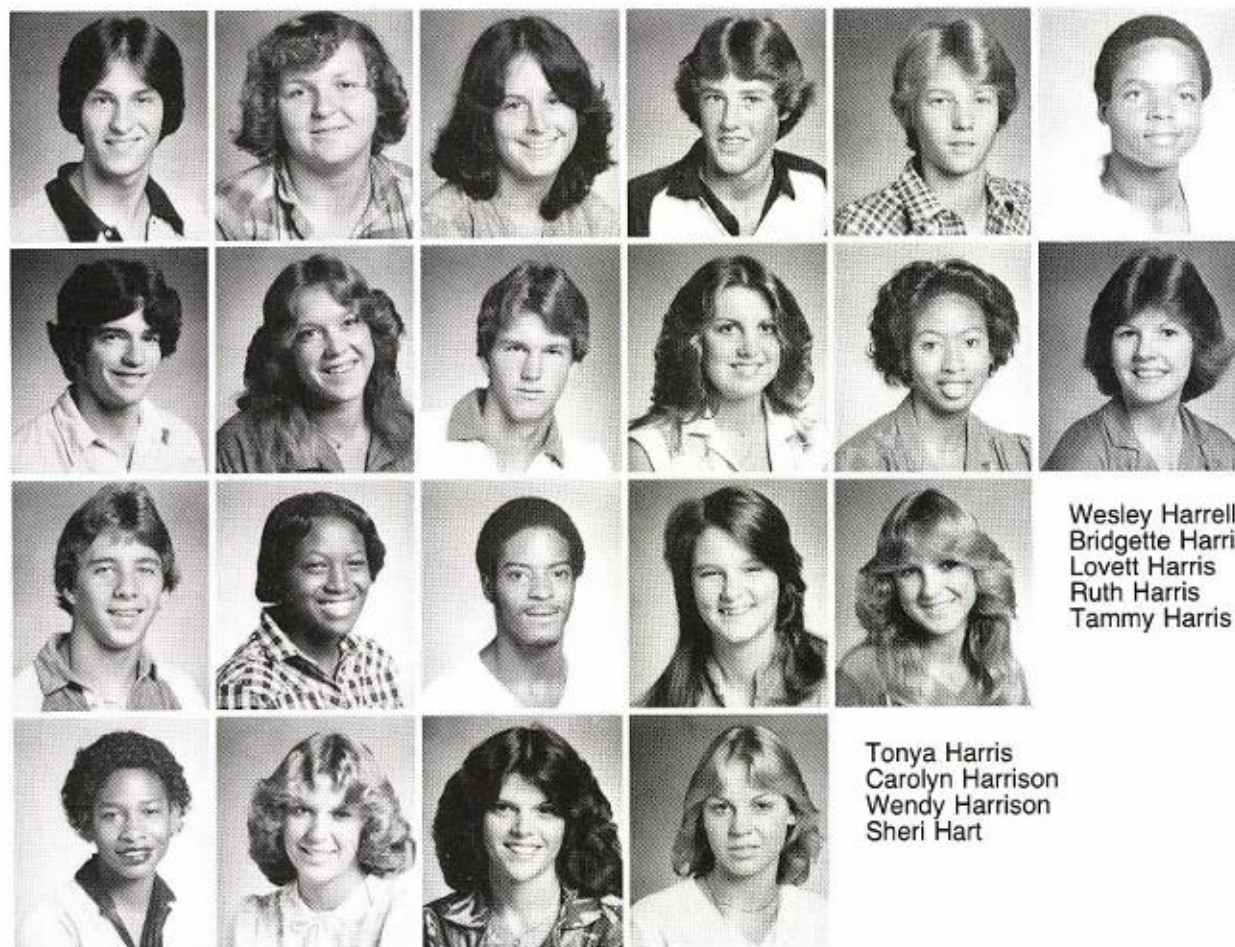

Brandon High juniors were movie-going students, taking in movies very often and usually so they could laugh. The favorite kind of movie was undoubtedly comedy. Horror films and love stories ran very close in second and third for favorite types.

The juniors went to the theatres about twice a month, and most had a favorite movie. Near the end of the first semester, the movie chosen the favorite the most often was The Empire Strikes Back. The movie was a favorite because of the constant action and superb special effects. Other Popular films were Cheech and Chong's Next Movie, Urban Cowboy, The Rocky Horror Picture Show, The Blue Lagoon, Smoky and the Bandit II, and Terror Train.

Going to the Theatre was surely a pastime of juniors at Brandon, and their tastes were scattered to include all kinds of films.

Brandon Theatre brings first rate movies to Brandon High movie-goers.

Live Rock at B.H.S.

It was considered unnatural, even un-American, not to like music. Most of us could click off a list of popular rock groups effortlessly. While most of us listened to and danced to the music, some of our more musically talented friends actually learned to create their own rock music. Discovering that their sounds were pleasing, they sometimes joined with other musicians and formed bands. One such group was Equus.

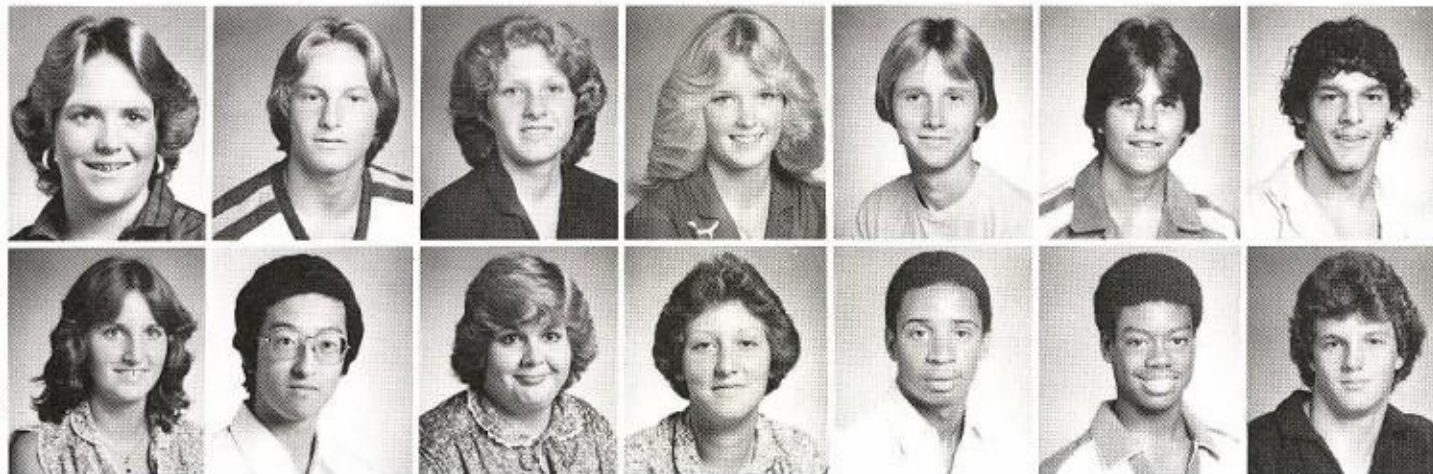

The band Equus was made up of four members who were Todd Smith, who played the drums; Danny Booher, the keyboard player; Scott Prather, Base player; and Wes Dearth, lead guitarist.

Equus had played at BHS for Senior Day in 1980 and at a talent show where they received a standing ovation, but most of their playing was done at parties.

In order for Equus to have been able to play everyone's Rock favorites by professional groups such as Molly Hatchett, Styx, Rush, AC/DC, Led Zeppelin, and the ever-popular song "Freebird" by Lynyrd Skynyrd, they put in many hours of painstaking practice. Each member practiced on his own instrument for about two weeks, and then the band came together to add their finishing touches to produce a final result of an electrifying Rock-n-Roll band performance.

When asked why he enjoyed playing the drums and being in a band Todd Smith's reply was, "The drums are a physical instrument. They require everyday dedication to practice." Todd also said that having played in front of a crowd of people was the most fantastic and natural high that he had ever experienced. This was why Todd planned to go on to college to major in music and hopefully to pursue a career as a professional drummer.

Blue Jeans Never Die They Just Fade

Brandon students show the style of the times.

Even with all the new styles of designer jeans such as Jordache, Sassoon, Gloria Vanderbilt, and Calvin Klein there were many students who preferred to wear their old blue jeans — the kind of jeans which we had for at least a year and a half, the ones that had barely any blue left in them, the ones which made us feel comfortable and more relaxed at school. How could any of us have lived without our old jeans? Most of us never knew because we wore them at least once a week. Our old jeans were truly good friends which we could have never lived without.

Shape Up Shape Up +Down

Most people are naturally concerned with their looks. Nobody wants to be out of shape. Remarks such as, "I've got to lose five pounds," or, "I've started jogging again," were common as students and teachers alike devoted hours to shaping up the old bod. While local health spas and racquetball clubs did a booming business, many people got busy with physical improvement in Brandon's gym, in the weights and conditioning room, or outside on our tennis and volleyball courts. Sweat-suits had become high fashion items, and everywhere around school people tried hard to make themselves fit the "body beautiful" image.

A Whole New World

Getting a driver's license opened up a whole new world — a world of cars, dating, being able to get that first job. But it wasn't all just fun and games. A lot of responsibility was involved with a license. A prospective driver had to have one full year of practice with a licensed adult before he could drive on his own. After all when we got out on the streets not only our lives, but the lives of others were in our hands. Studying the driver's manual and taking driver's education courses were helpful. It was a lot of hard work, but well worth it. A whole new world was opened up by the driver's license.

Deep, Dark Depression = January

After the freedom of Christmas vacation, returning to school was a depressing thought. During the month of January we took final exams which added to the gloom and agony of the month. Knowing that there would only be one more time that we would have a break from school before summer vacation, which seemed like a long way off, put us into a state of despair. Even the usually terrific Florida weather could go bad in January. A cold snap sent us all looking for clothes to keep warm in and gave us all the sniffles. January, Excessive Misery, had to be endured. January was definitely the pits.

The January blahs begin for Shelby Clemons the first day back after Christmas.

RINGING IN THE CLASS OF '82

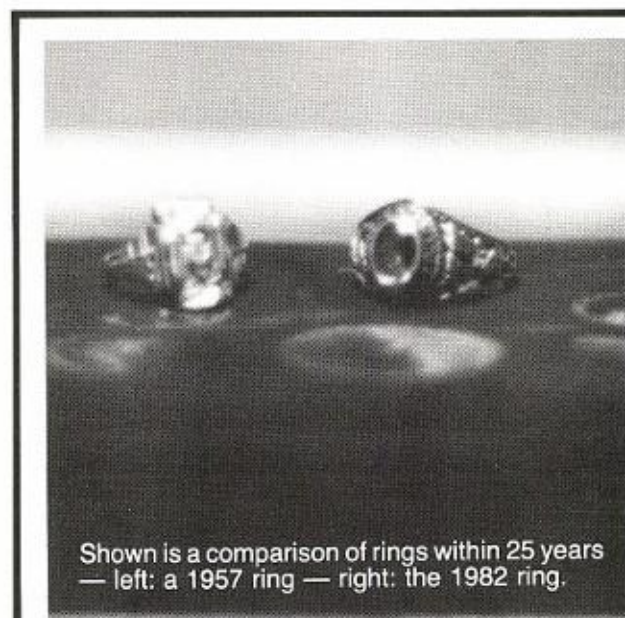

Posed here are the girl's style ring, and the boy's style offered by Herff Jones.

One of the exciting privileges of being a junior was ordering class rings. A representative from Herff Jones was sent to Brandon High to explain the different styles of rings that were offered by them. The students took the pamphlets and order forms home, filled them out, and brought them back with a deposit for the ring. Then there was a long period of waiting and imagining what a good feeling it would be to finally slip on the ring. Finally the announcement appeared in the daily bulletin: "Rings will be delivered on December 17." We paid the balance due, took our precious purchases, and went out to show the whole world that we were the Class of '82.

Which national figure would you choose as the 1980 Man of the Year?

Understanding the Teenagers

"Grossed me out!" Julie Thompson exclaims to Richie Soule after seeing the dissected cats.

"Killer." "She's dizzy." "Burn out." "Mean threads." "Let's go parking." "Stick it." "Dra." "Ragged out." "Arem." "To the max." "Forget it baby." "You're a trip." "Go for it." "Far out." "Crazy man." "Hunky dory." "That's cool." "Like wow." "Freak out." "Let's cruise." "Busted." "Fried." "Space cadet." "Mellow out." "Ya honkhead." "Scuzzy." "Gross." "Grody." "Getting the munchies." "Wolfi-bles." "Munch out." "Pig out." "Heavens to Betsy." "Great Caesar's ghost." "Check it out." These were some of the slang expressions that the students of Brandon High used to express their feeling during the year of 1980-1981. Since most adults did not really understand what these slang expressions meant, we, like the teenagers of years past, had our own special language. With our language we built the memories of our young and carefree high school days.

As the long lines of cars pulled into the parking lots before school, the only thing students concentrated on was the slow moving bumper to bumper ahead of them. If you wanted to find out a little about the driver, you read his bumper sticker. Cars were stuck with flashy slogans and cute sayings that added personality, flare and a touch of class. You could always tell a cautious driver if his sticker was in bold face print. This kept curious drivers from getting too close to his rear. They ranged from religious to favorite radio stations and humorous to warning stickers. One thing for sure was Brandon students didn't go around with their bumpers bare.

Many bumper stickers show students' preference in people.

What do you consider to be our worst national problem?
Wasson Epps: "INFLATION!!"
P. Cargile: "Drugs."

Some of us often thought about our grades; some of us often thought about our looks; some of us often thought about good times and parties; all of us constantly thought about our stomachs. What we put into our stomachs ranked very high in the order of important things in our lives. Tops on our list of preferences was pizza. (No red-blood American teenager would have dared to say that he didn't especially care for pizza.) Lasagna, spaghetti, steak, and hamburgers also got our votes. In addition, we had weaknesses for Doritos, M & M's, Cheetoes, and most other junk food delights that tided us over the between-meal-munchies. It was not true, however, that we would eat anything. We stayed away in droves from spinach, squash, and liver. We knew that later in life we might expand our tastes to include some of the delicacies our parents found so enchanting. For the time being, though, we treated our stomachs to the foods we loved the most — pizza, M & M's, lasagna, hamburgers, Doritos, cookies, ...

Part of the fun of home ec cooking classes, for Diane Rose, is being able to sample some of the special munchies being turned out in the kitchen.

Guess Who??

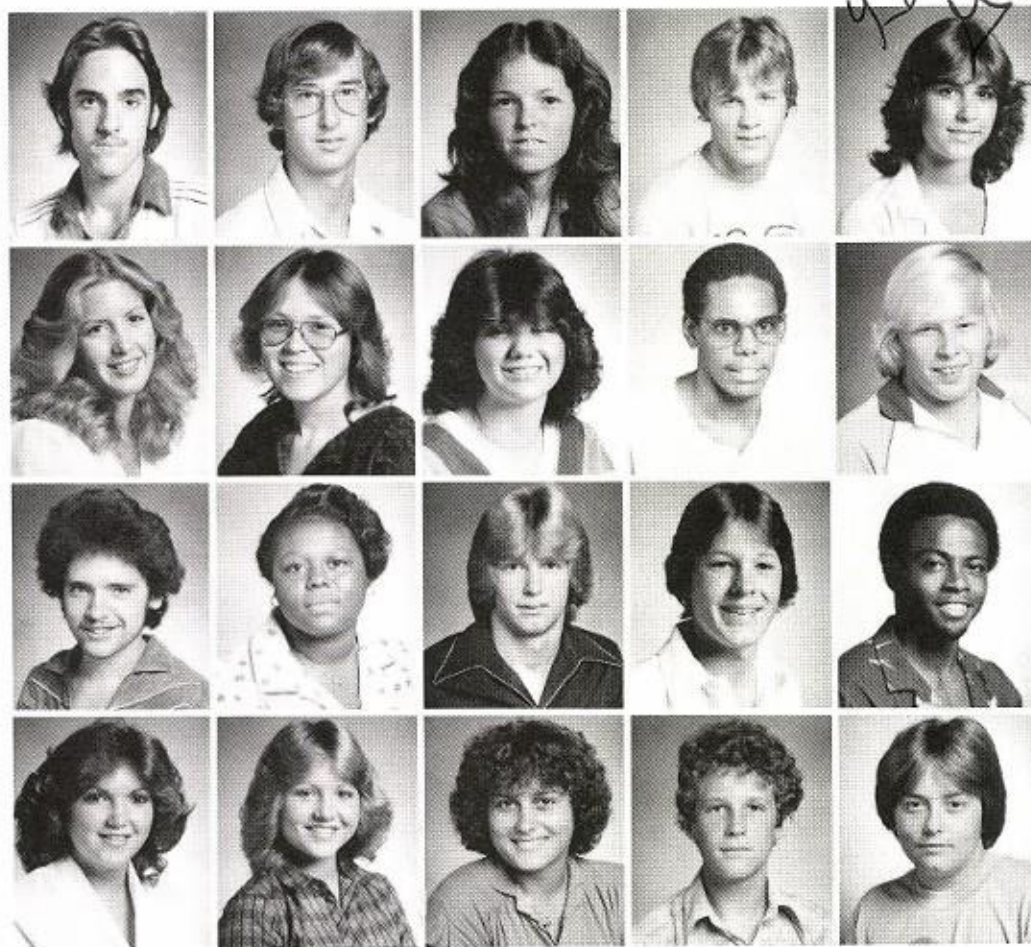

One of the signs that a secret pal has visited is a wrapped locker.

Girl's Service clubs, Hospitality Hostesses, and Leadership had secret pals. Those who had secret pals might have even guessed who their pal was, but no one knew definitely until the end of the year.

Being someone's secret pal meant hiding that secret, defending it against any enemy who could reveal it. Secret pals delivered food and presents and some even decorated lockers to look like birthday or Christmas gifts.

Each pal wondered how much longer he could keep this secret, knowing it couldn't last much longer. But in the end, during the final days of school, pals and the recipients of their good will had the pleasure of going back over what their year of secrecy had meant.

The Sopho-elite

The class of '83 showed their presence at Brandon High almost immediately. Brandon was the largest school in the state of Florida, and 1366 of its population consisted of sophomores. Their sophomore year was one of new experiences and growth. The first step was starting high school. Orientation went well, with the sophomores getting a taste of high school life. One of the decisions that had to be met by each individual concerned his involvement in his school whether through athletics, clubs, or student government. Another decision which had to be made by the sophomore class was who would lead them. Elected in November to guide the Class of '83 were President — Paul McDowell, Vice President — Trae Meason, Jenny Davis — Treasurer, and Mandy Langford — Secretary. Although attending school from 12:05 to 5:00, after the juniors and seniors had gone home for the day, kept sophomores somewhat isolated, class members showed from the very beginning that they meant to make Brandon High School their school, too.

Paul McDowell gives the thought for the day to the Sophomore Class.

Mandy Langford takes the minutes for the meeting.

What's your opinion of the 1980-81 locker policy?

Yvonne Aubel: "We need more lockers."

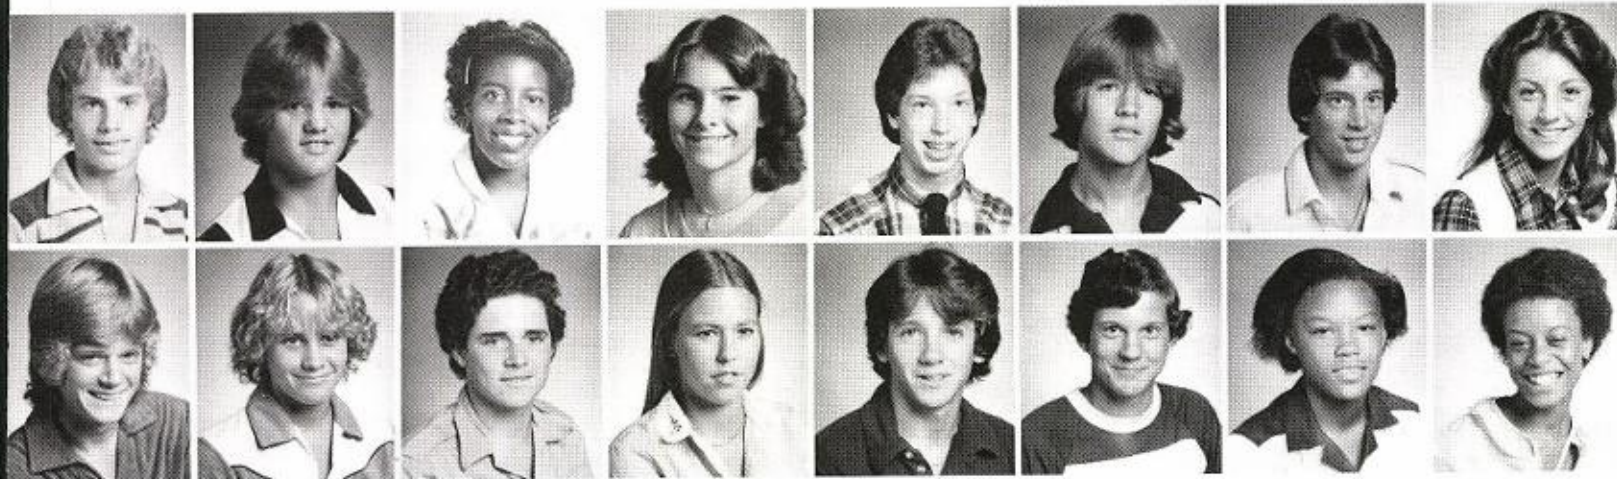

Byron Greenlee: "It wasn't worth fifty cents."

Greg Neuschwanger: "Sophomores should get first pick."

Serving the class of '83 are Sophomore Senators — Brian Davis, Paul McDowell, Adair Valdespino, and Ron Coler.

"Nobody ever listens to the sophomores!" had been the complaint of every tenth grade class since double sessions had relegated them to the twelve to five shift. In an effort to give the Class of '83 a stronger voice in Student Government, the first Sophomore Senate was established in the fall of 1980. The primary duty of these new senators was to represent the wishes of their classmates to S.G. They also worked hard in all Student Government activities to show the school that forming their group had been a smart decision of SG's part.

Hello! Welcome to Brandon

"Hello! Welcome to Brandon. I'm sure you'll like it here; over here we have . . ."

No, it wasn't the first day of school for all sophomores — just for a few new ones being welcomed and shown around by one of their fellow sophomore classmates. Being a new student had advantages that we "old" students didn't have. We had no one to show us around and to tell us where everything was; nothing was as thoroughly explained to us as it was to new students by a special group of sophomores. This group of students was headed by Administrative Assistant, Hubert Brantley. This group was made up of six students who were actively involved with Brandon's many clubs and organizations.

The group included Paul McDowell, who served as the Sophomore Class President and whose interests included wrestling and Student Government; Tracy Mason, who was the Sophomore Class Vice-President; Adair Valdespino, who was involved in Student Government and served on the Sophomore Senate; Brad Kimbro, who was actively involved in the Marching Band, Orchestra and Student Government; Easter Sarnecki, who represented Student Government and Student Advisory Committee; and Eva Peragowski, who was working as a Hospitality Hostess. This group of students had no particular name; they were just a group of students whom new students looked to, to ask for help. Most new students seemed to enjoy the special attention they got from the welcoming committee.

How would you describe your first year at Brandon?
 Makeba Gardner: "Scary!"
 Julie Davis: "Great! A big improvement from McLane!"
 Angela Stergasis: "P.C. Pretty cool."

WELCOMING COMMITTEE: Adair Valdespino, Eva Peragowski, Easter Sarnecki, Paul McDowell. Kneeling: Trae Mason. (Not pictured — Brad Kimbro).

Who would you pick to be Woman of The Year for 1980?

Students depart buses in anticipation of an exciting day at Brandon High School.

292 / Sophomores

Most students rode the bus eagerly yearning for that glorious day when they would arrive at school in the lap of luxury, or even in their best friend's jalopy. Many considered riding the school bus quite a chore. They rated their afternoon and evening rides right next to pulling teeth.

But not all students found bus-riding intolerable. There were those devoted students who were glad for the free transportation to and from school. Whether students grumbled, made faces, or simply accepted the free ride, they made it to school on time . . . most of the time.

What do you think of the proposal to make McLane Jr. High a tenth grade center?
 Dennis Mock: "I like it."
 Dennis Zolna: "It's not a good idea."
 David Mishler: "I don't care."

Around the age eight or nine we didn't worry so much if our newly-sprouted permanent teeth didn't line up evenly in our mouths. Then one day Mom, Dad, and the friendly neighborhood orthodontist got together and said, "Let's make this kid's life MISERABLE; let's fill his mouth with metal and rubber bands." For the next several years we suffered the humiliation of wearing silver railroad tracks and being called "Tinsel Teeth" and "Brace Face." As the dentist solemnly explained to us that we could eat NOTHING predominately sweet, we faced the possibility of gradual starvation. The only good thing about the whole experience was that great day when everything came off, and Behold! Beautiful, Straight, Even Teeth!!!!

For the reward of beautiful, straight teeth next year, Shana Rowe, Mark Boyce, and Joanna Chubbs don't mind putting up with a little extra metal in their mouths.

What's the funniest thing you've seen at school this year?

John Greene: "Chris Schwaller getting hit in the head with a soccer ball."

Wendy Cole: "The senior auction."

Diane Oxley: "Sam Schubert in a dress."

At first it was just a rumor. People thought, "Naw, it'll never happen!" But then one day, some unsuspecting P.E. student walked into the locker room and BAM!! He smacked right into a Coke machine. But before he could cry out in agonizing pain, he recognized the towering monument as his conquering hero! At last, relief from his torturous activities on the basketball court with his fellow students. Could he keep this wonderful thing a secret? Without delay, the answer to his question came; troops of students stormed in with change in their hands, pushing and shoving their way to get a Coke. His secret was no more. Almost everyone, from that day on, could be found mooching change off each other to get their daily carbonation refill.

Students from Mrs. Cunningham's science class exit when the fire alarm begins to sound.

Part of being a sophomore was getting used to hearing the fire alarm sound at almost any time of the day. Many students did not realize the importance of learning how to exit the rooms in a quick but safe manner. When the alarm sounded, the students were to leave the room and follow the directions that were posted in the room. They were to go to their destinations with their teacher and wait for a bell to ring to signal that everything had been checked out and was fine, and then they were to return to their classrooms and continue with their work. At the first of the school year, the sound of the alarm sometimes sent confused sophomores into the front driveway instead of into the west parking lot; but fire drills, like other phases of life in the big building, soon became part of the routine.

If someone gave you a million dollars, what would you do with it?

Neil Ashton: "I would buy a good race car and put the rest in the bank."

Billie Fay English and Meredith Jones enjoy spending the day together.

Sophomores had the problem of earning money for their first year in high school. Since most of them were not old enough to work at regular part time jobs they had to earn money by doing odd jobs around the neighborhoods such as babysitting and lawn mowing. These jobs were an important part of their lives since they gave them a little experience for the day they turned sixteen and could join the ranks of the employed. Meanwhile, for the sophomores of 1980-1981 babysitting and lawnmowing were the first steps on the ladder of success.

Those Amazing Sophomores

The mighty "Baby Eagle" defense closes in for the tackle during the game against Plant City.

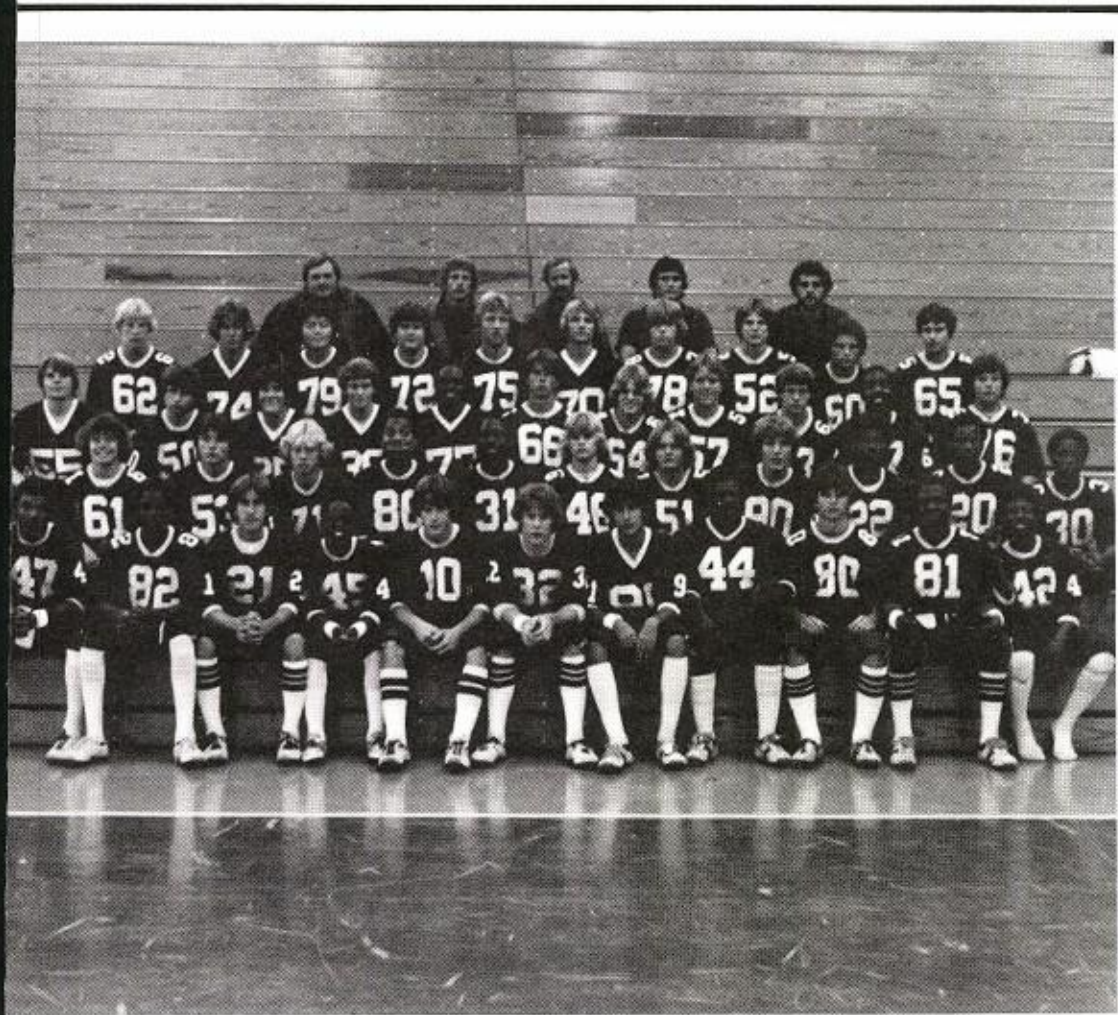

The Sophomore class had reason to be proud in 1980-81. For the first time ever in the history of Brandon High athletics, all-sophomore jayvee football squad were undefeated. Brandon's "Baby Eagles" won all six of their games with the only challenge coming from arch rival Plant City which fell 23-6.

The offense was led by quarterback Mike Carter and backs Andre Darby and Scott Parrish. The 48-member team took instructions from Head Coach Jim Graves. Along with Coach Graves, Tony Ippolito, Sam Ferlita, Doug Davis and Robert Goeb directed the team as assistant coaches.

All in all, the 1980-81 school year was a great one for sophomores as they cheered their amazing "Baby Eagles" to victory.

What do you most like to do in your spare time?
 Sandy Shannon: "Horseback-riding with friends."
 Jeff Williams: "Going hunting."

The jayvee football squad went undefeated all season, being the first all-sophomore team to achieve this goal.

What is your favorite television show?

Each year, at Homecoming, sophomore boys vied for the title of "Super Eagle." Participants carried around a milk jug into which students donated money. The sophomore with the most money was named "Super Eagle" and had the privilege of leading the football team onto the field and sitting with the cheerleaders during the Homecoming Game. Winner the 1980 Super Eagle title was André Da by, whose $23.09 total edged out all other competitors. Asked for his reaction to his evening as Super Eagle, André replied, "It was really nice, quite an honor. I was even interviewed by a newspaper."

After hours of grueling practice, many boys wondered just how much more they could take.

With the start of Soccer many Sophomores flocked to the practice field to try and get a position on the soccer team. It was hard, but they stuck it out. Those sophomores chosen for the team had to get their schedules changed and get used to getting up at about 5:30. For Sophomores, it was hard but dedication made work. There was a certain special excitement in getting into soccer. Unlike all other sports at Brandon, soccer was just beginning. Traditions and customs were yet to be established. Juniors and seniors on the team were just as new as the sophomores. Those sophomores who made the team had an equal part in setting the standards for the whole future of soccer at Brandon.

What is your favorite sport?

Sophomore Class picks: "Football, Soccer, Swimming, Boy Watching, Girl Watching, Baseball, Chess, Basketball, Fishing, Horseback Riding, Gymnastics, Volleyball, and Stock Car Racing."

And the Beat Goes On ..

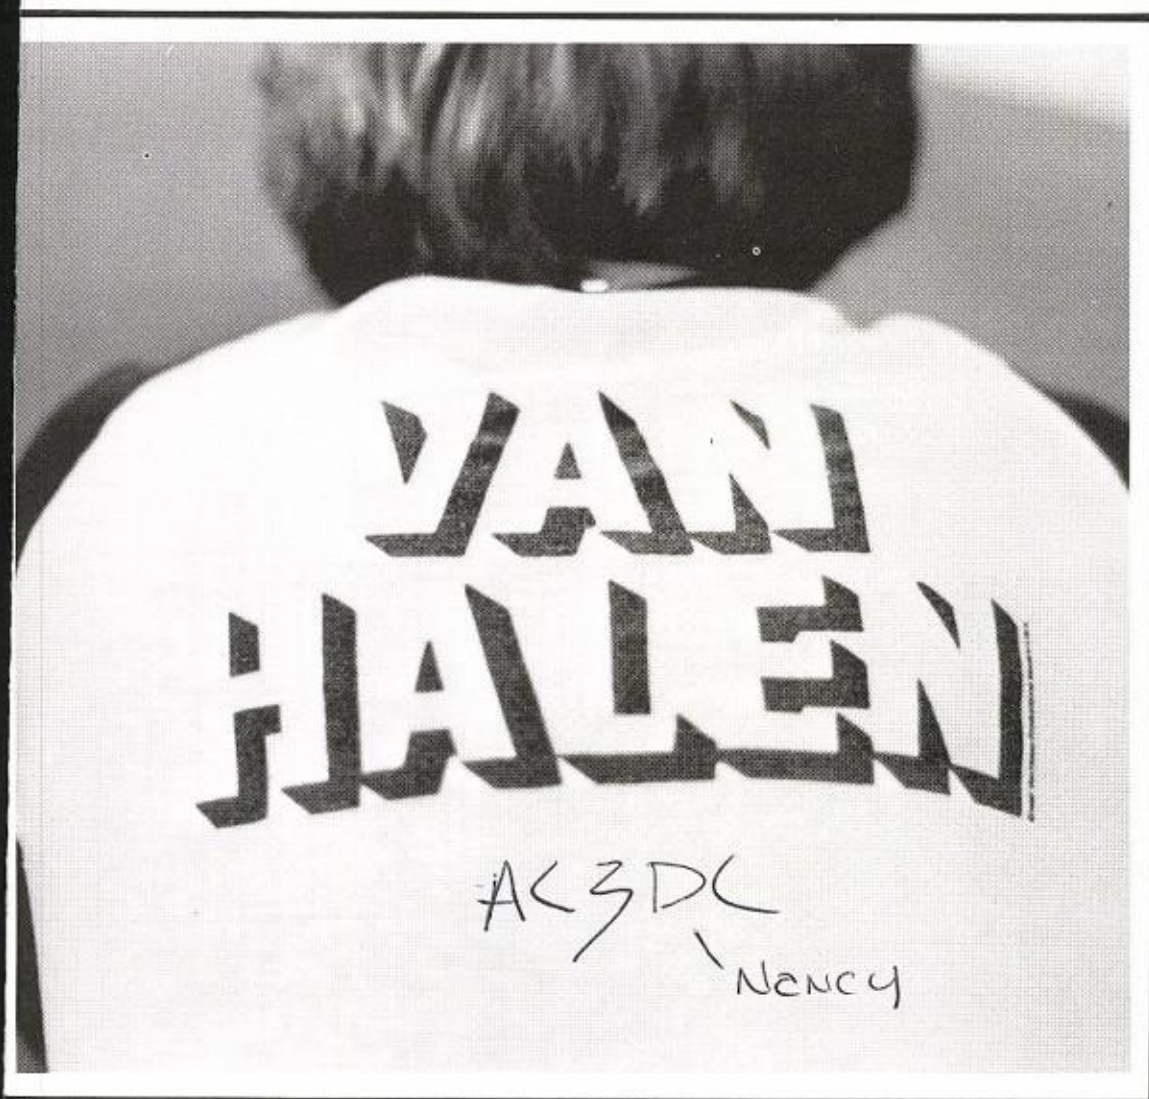

The arrival of a rock concert in town was obvious around the school as the rush for tickets and gossip of the group's latest hit song sprang up. A number of popular rock groups staged concerts during the year such as Kansas, Styx, Pat Benetar, and Bruce Springsteen. The Lakefield Civic Center and Bayfront were where many of the rock groups performed. Being sophomores made it easier on us to attend these concerts because a number of them lasted long into the night on a school day. Usually the day after a concert, jerseys of all kinds and colors could be seen by loyal rock fans. The recent interest in new wave music and country and western didn't worry rock fans; they were sure of rock's firm foundation in the music world. The death of former Beatle John Lennon was a great loss and terrible tragedy to many. Although changes occurred in some people's taste in music, rock lived on, as proven by the popularity of rock concerts.

If you couldn't live in Brandon, where in the world would you pick to live?
 Dean Hawkins: "Hawaii."
 Alicia Schmitt: "Alaska."
 Joe Baker: "Missouri."

Moving to the South

What do you think is every teenager's favorite food?

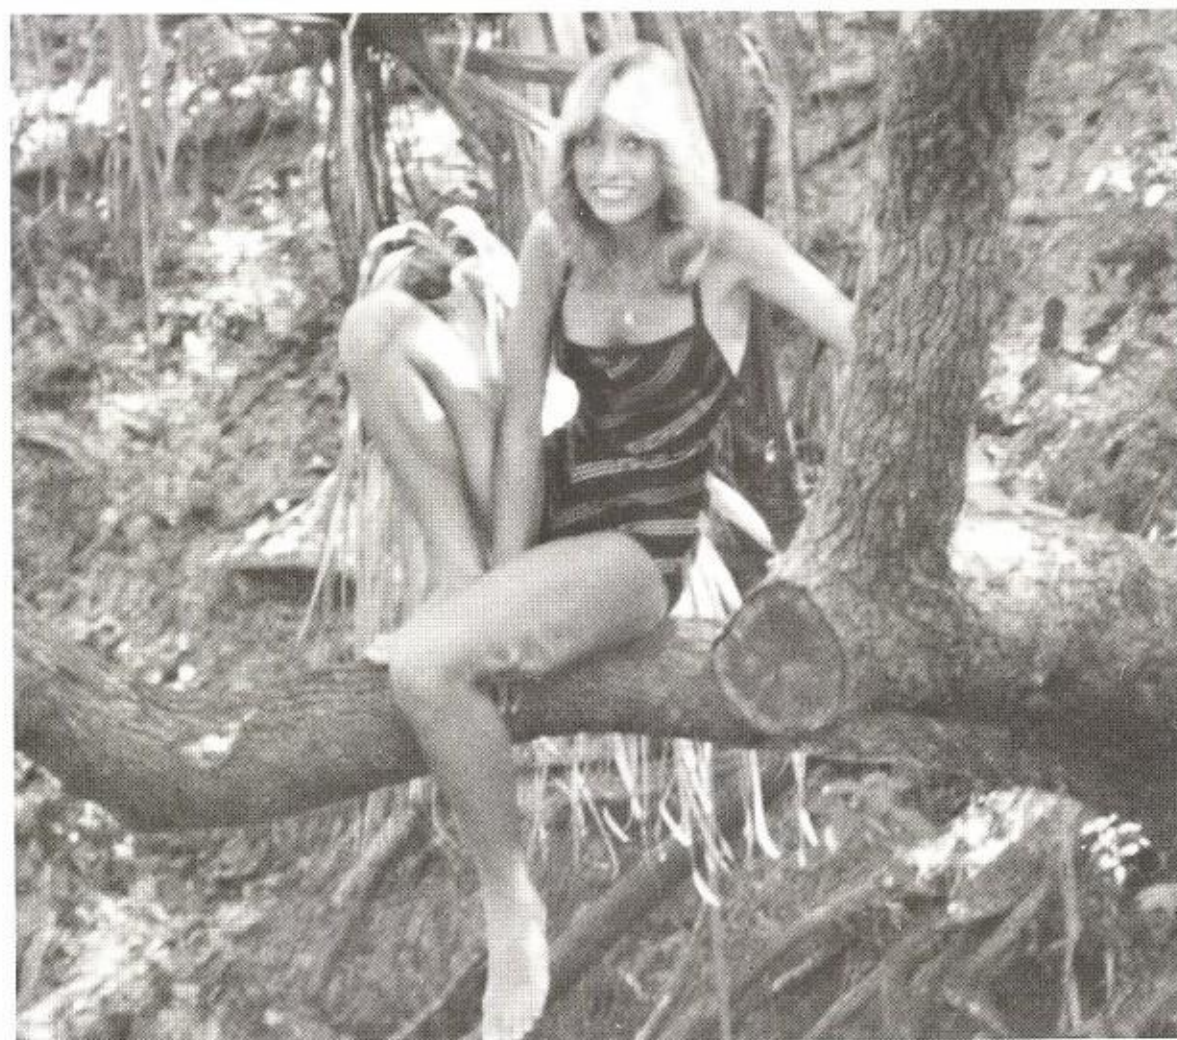

Ronnie Loaiza: "Pizza and M & M's."

Gary Williams: "Hamburger and french fries."

Peggy Ryan: "Pizza."

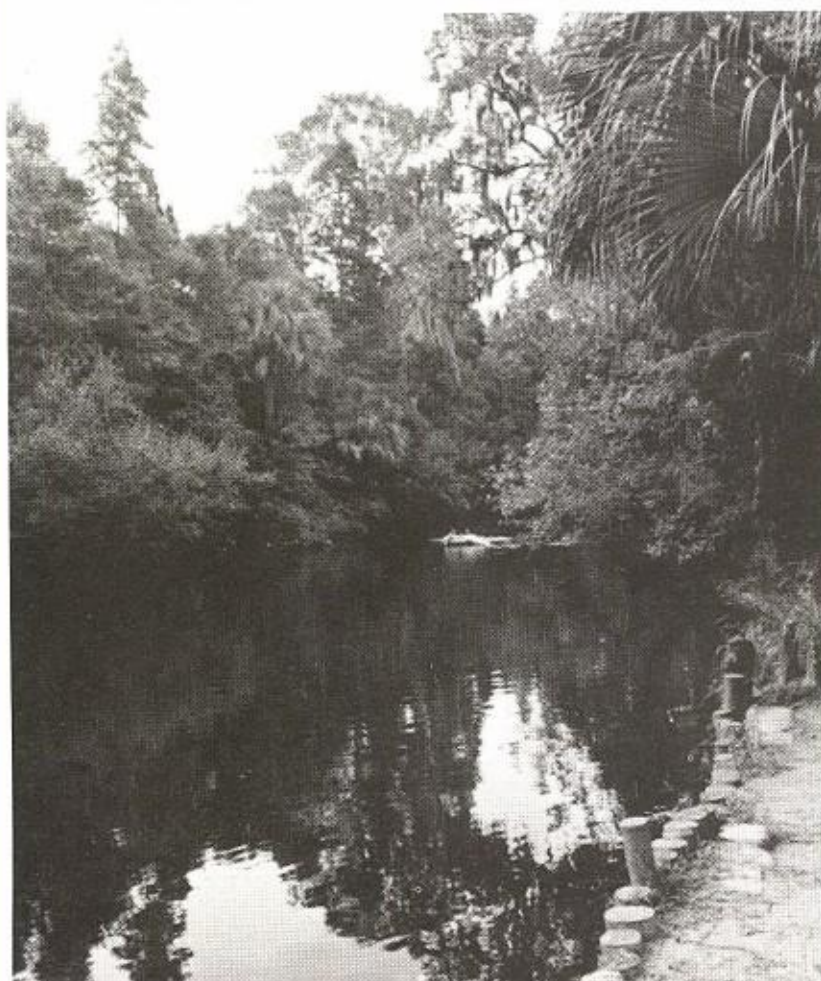

The Brandon Community grew rapidly, and at least part of the increased population was made up of families who'd had it with cold weather and had headed south. Students moving from northern states to southern ones found it kind of easy to adjust to our atmosphere, the beautiful weather, and nice warm days.

Most guys described the south as having the nicest looking girls, and they enjoyed the football season. The girls liked the beaches most for getting a nice dark tan and for the gorgeous guys they found there. Some transplants from the North missed seeing the leaves turn in the fall and having snow on the ground at Christmas, but most had little trouble learning to love Florida's year-round greenery and casual, outdoor way of life.

Enjoying the nice weather in Florida is June Thompson.

Tubing down the river on a Sunday afternoon is just one way to take advantage of a sunny Florida day.

An unpredictable situation occurred with underclass pictures in the fall. Usually, we had lined up, turned in our brown envelopes, posed for our pictures, and been through with picture-taking for the year. Our pictures were taken the first time in September, but one camera temporarily malfunctioned, and a hundred people were called back for retakes in October. Once was not enough! And then came the clincher; twice was not enough. One of the two cameras used on the October retake day had not worked at all, and those who'd posed for that camera would have to pose still another time. Needless to say, some students and teachers began to feel the cameras were jinxed. So did the Bryn-Alan photographers. As it turned out, three was the lucky number, and thanks to the concern shown by Bryn-Alan Studios, our pictures were still completed in time for yearbook deadlines.

Which rock group do you think is best?
Easter Sarnecki: "Led Zepplin."
Mandy Sanders: "Van Halen."
Alison Cunningham: "Molly Hatchet!!"

We were pretty things. We loved to look at ourselves in the mirror and refix this strand of hair or flash a smile to see those pearly-whites sparkle. And then one day the face crazies would set in. Some beautiful person would squint his eyes, wrinkle his nose, curl back his lips, and turn his whole face into a Frankenstein.

Once one person started it, everybody else had to outdo him with silly faces, sad faces, mad faces, and crazy faces. Most of the time we were very grown up and very sophisticated — until we were attacked by a little case of the face crazies.

What is the world's best car?

The sophomores pick: "Maserati," "Lamborghini," "Corvette," "Pantera," "T-bird," "Camaro," "Trans Am," "Laguna S 3," "Porsche."

Put It on Your Chest

Sophomores show off their T-shirts while waiting for school to begin.

Letting everyone know exactly how you felt was one of the reasons people had fun wearing T-shirts. Another was to show support for a rock group or organization.

Among T-shirt messages observed in the school hallways during the year were "When God made man She was only kidding," "I love to hate J.R.," and "Expensive ... and worth it!"

So instead of getting it off their chests, people were putting it on their chests and telling the world about it.

Three sophomores admire each others' shirts and discuss their meanings.

'Both My Job and My Hobby'

The chief administrator of the largest high school in the state of Florida, Mr. Orlan Briant, proved his job extended much farther than the door of his office at Brandon High School.

Mr. Briant was an active member in such organizations as the Brandon Rotary Club, the Brandon Chamber of Commerce, the Reserve Officers Association, the Florida Association of School Administrators, the National Association for Secondary School Principals, the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, the Hillsborough County Association of School Administrators, and the First United Methodist Church of Brandon.

Having belonged to so many different organizations, an ordinary work week for Mr. Briant started on Monday and continued through Saturday. He attended meetings and Brandon's sporting events, which took up a great amount of his time during and after school hours, along with evaluating an average of forty teachers a week and keeping appointments with teachers, parents, and students.

It seemed as if his involvement in all of these activities would not have left Mr. Briant much time for anything else, but somehow, he managed to find time to continue working toward his Doctoral Degree, which he hoped to have completed by the summer of 1981, and to serve as a Lieutenant Colonel in the U.S. Army Reserve. Mr. Briant also received the honor of being chosen as the chairman of the High School Principals Council.

When asked what he did for fun, Mr. Briant replied, "Brandon High School is both my job and my hobby." He also said that he was very thankful to have a family that was so very supportive and understanding of his responsibilities in being the principal of Brandon High School.

Most students and adults would have been totally exhausted if they'd tried to keep pace with Mr. Briant during a typical week, yet those who had dealt with him always came away with the same impression — despite his demanding schedule, Mr. Briant always made visitors to his office feel welcome and always seemed willing to listen and to help.

At a Welcoming Committee meeting, Mr. Briant sits by Easter Sarnacki, along with other sophomore Welcoming Committee members.

Mr. Briant proudly displays a sailfish that he caught.

Christy, Mr. Briant's youngest of five daughters, loves to ride her rocking horse that Santa Claus left her on Christmas.

The Briant family — Pam, Christy, Mindy, Mrs. Jerry Briant, Mr. Orlan Briant, Laura, and Debbie — find that Christmas is a happy time for all of them to be together.

Working over the phone and in his office takes up a portion of Mr. Briant's time on an average day.

The administration of a school as large as Brandon High required more than one man at the top.

Each of the three assistant principals was individually in charge of certain programs and activities. Mr. Patrick Gregory, the Assistant Principal of Management, was mainly responsible for club and extra-curricular activities and the A.P. program. Mrs. Janelle Wade was the Assistant Principal of Curriculum, which involved supervising the entire guidance and testing programs. Mr. John Owens served as the Assistant Principal of Administration, whose major duties included acting as the Athletic Director and overseeing the custodians and building maintenance.

Mr. Hubert Brantley was Principal Orlan Briant's Administrative Assistant, a job which consisted of helping the principal and vice-principals whenever possible. Mr. Brantley was also in charge of interns and school safety, also was attending college part-time to obtain his E.D.S. degree in Education.

Our Community School Administrator for Brandon High's Adult Evening Program was Mr. Gary H. McBride. He had received his Master's degree in Adult Education from the University of South Florida and had taught English at Dowdell Jr. High before coming to Brandon High in 1971. Over 600 students were enrolled in evening program, which offered adults the opportunity to receive a high school diploma, basic educational skills, community instruction, and paraprofessional classes and activities. Students could also attend to prepare for the G.E.D.

Our four deans displayed a variety of backgrounds and experiences, but all stood united on the purpose of their job. Each felt his responsibilities to include not only disciplining students, but also maintaining an atmosphere conducive to learning for the entire school.

The two morning deans were Mr. John Burgess and Mrs. Ruby McDonald. Mr. Burgess, a graduate of the University of Florida, had previously taught at both Leto and Plant High Schools. Mrs. Ruby McDonald managed both a career and a family, whom she felt had been very supportive of her job.

In the afternoon session, Mrs. B.J. Stelter and Mr. W.T. Campbell served as the deans. Mrs. Stelter had taught exceptional children for many years before coming to Brandon. She had received her Master's in Education from the University of Tampa. Mr. Campbell, new to Brandon in 1980, had received his B.S. and Master's degrees from Florida A. and M.

Always willing to help and counsel students whenever necessary, these "mighty eagles" kept B.H.S. running smoothly.

Asst. Principal of Curriculum proves to be a time consuming title as Mrs. Wade must supervise the entire guidance and testing programs.

Assistant Principal Gregory discusses the technical aspects of a club fund raiser.

The Mighty Eagles

One of the more unusual specimens of his hat collection is displayed by Dean Burgess as he searches for a seat at the football jamboree.

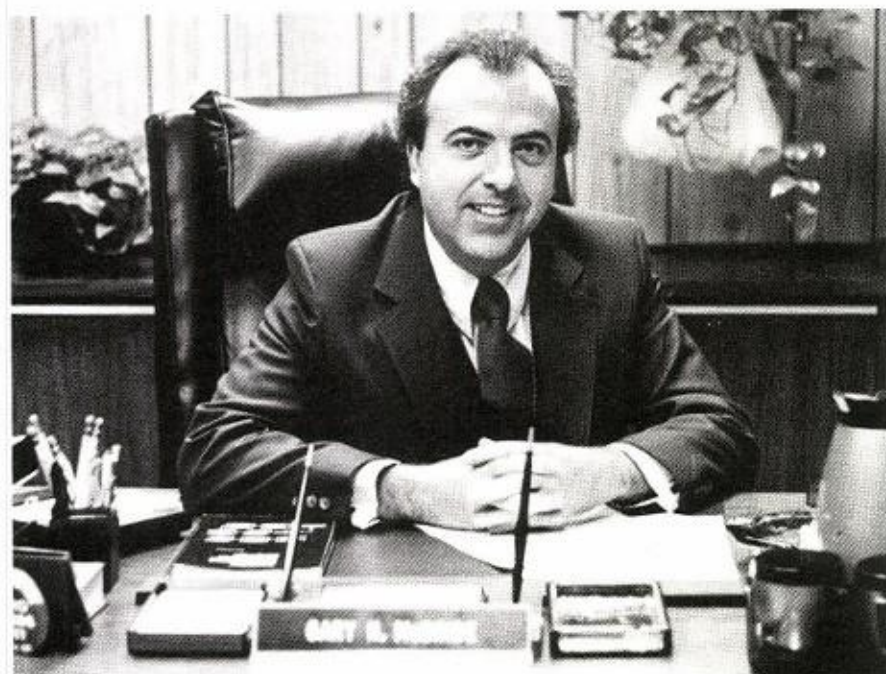

The job of Dean Burgess involves not only conferences and counseling, but also keeping records and paper work in order.

Dean Stelter treats her job with enthusiasm, believing its purpose is not merely punitive but preventive.

Discussing various school policies with concerned parents often falls into the hands of Dean McDonald.

Mr. McBride's year is quite full as Brandon High's Adult Program contains the highest enrollment since its inception.

Dean Campbell finds his first year at Brandon High to be both enjoyable and challenging.

During the school year students were constantly doing reports, research papers, and just reading books for enjoyment. Many were unfamiliar with the Media Center, especially sophomores. To assist the students in their struggle to find books, there were the Media Specialists. Mrs. Claire Jones, Ms. Ola Primus, Mrs. Joy Revels, Mrs. Carol Covington, and Mrs. Joy Stafford were all very helpful to students puzzled by the maze of materials available in the Media Center. The Media Specialists instructed students on how to find books in the quickest possible way and on how to use the materials when they found them.

Other equally vital jobs of the Media Specialists were operating our well-stocked audio-visual equipment office, video-taping special presentations for various departments and organizations, maintaining county A-V files and processing requests for materials, and keeping our periodical room up to date. The Media Specialists were an all-around big help and aided students in their research endeavors.

Another group of people that assisted students were the Guidance Counselors. The Guidance Counselors helped students in many ways. They instructed students in which classes were best for them, and they were there when the students had a problem with their classes. Each student was assigned a counselor and could go and talk with him at almost any time. Figuring out a schedule was, for many, a tedious task. The counselors had a knowledge of each course and could explain it to the confused student.

Guidance also provided invaluable services to Brandon students in disseminating college information, bringing college recruiting groups to the school, keeping students informed on job opportunities and available scholarships, and providing detailed counseling for certain special problem areas.

The Resource Officer, Deputy Tom Allyn, was at Brandon to direct students morally and legally. Although he was available on campus to act as an officer of the law in certain situations, Deputy Allyn's primary duty was to provide materials and to conduct classes on subjects such as drug abuse and legal liability.

For students interested in health related areas, Brandon had its own Health Occupations teacher, Mrs. Barbara Redenbo. Mrs. Redenbo taught classes dealing with health, such as Health Service Aide I or II and the Fundamentals of Health Occupations. She was a registered nurse, and she taught some of her nursing skills to the students. The Health Occupations classes provided a great service to Brandon's students.

Guidance

As students, we might not have always known what preparations had to be made in order for our daily lessons, weekly tests, and all the elements that our courses were composed of. In order for the curriculum to run smoothly, there was a teacher in charge of each department.

Department Heads had a great responsibility. They had to work closely with and supervise their teachers. Making sure that students had the essential equipment necessary to pass courses such as textbooks, workbooks, protractors, cars for Driver's Education, Physical Education equipment, and much more was also a big task for Department Heads. Extra hours of work each day, attending various meetings, evaluating teachers, ordering sufficient supplies, while working with a budget, were all in the line of duty for these very dedicated workers.

As if just handling these leadership duties weren't enough to constitute a full time job, most department heads also taught either four or five classes each day. A big thank you was due for the fine job our department heads did.

Creating and collecting craft objects is the hobby that keeps Mrs. Barbara Anderson happy.

Those who believed that the typical Brandon teacher spent his entire life outside of school hours in scholarly endeavors like paper-grading and test-writing, simply didn't know their teachers very well. When polled as to their hobbies, our faculty responded with a massive list which included boating, dancing, camping, gardening, sewing, hunting, fishing, working with crafts, traveling with their families, and playing or watching every imaginable sport. Some of the most unique responses came from Mr. James Duffy, who enjoyed making stained glass creations and drag racing; Mrs. Ann Aley, whose hobby was catering parties; Mrs. Carmel Cone, who enjoyed raising orchids and arranging flowers; Mr. Glenn Churchwell, whose interests included driving semi-trucks and participating in stock car racing and tractor pulls; Mr. Frank Crawford, who enjoyed woodworking for relaxation; and Mrs. Claudeen Boyd, whose idea of fun was climbing into her own plane at Brandon Airport and taking off into the sunset. Brandon's faculty was, indeed, made up of busy, active teachers.

What?! Teachers Are Human, Too?!

After a hard day's work, Mrs. Claudeen Boyd likes to head for the sky.

Around school there were many extra jobs to do for which no pay was offered. The teachers who voluntarily assumed responsibility for getting these jobs done were extra-special individuals. Operating Post and Found and maintaining a highly accurate textbook inventory were jobs that Mr. Bob Rankin had handled for a number of years. Mrs. Helen Duncan was the overseer for the coke and candy machines in the faculty lounge. At almost every school event, Miss Betty Blake was on hand to supervise the Hospitality Hostesses. After locking the doors of the Media Center in the afternoons, Mrs. Claire Jones, and other Media Specialists, often found themselves still on duty to tape some special TV program or to help arrange AV equipment for a banquet or performance. Devoting many free hours of their time to health-related activities such as the Blood Drive and Health-O-Rama were Mrs. Barbara Pedenbo and Mr. Ed Luckner. Sponsors of our special interest and service clubs logged many extra hours helping out at car washes, competitions, and the like. Rare was the teacher whose work at school was limited to meeting teaching requirements. The only extra pay these volunteers ever received was the thanks from the students they helped.

BELOW: Mr. Bob Rankin keeps up the textbook inventory records while Mrs. Helen Duncan reviews the records for the faculty fund.

*Best wishes for a happy and successful future!
Mrs. Hawkins*

Our teachers were not of the wallflower society. Many of them left school in the afternoon to pour their energies into their other interests in the community. Mr. W.E. White, Industrial Arts Department, headed to Tampa Bay Tech at night to teach adult drafting. Volunteering his after-school time to work with underprivileged children was Mr. John Sherman, Health Department. Ms. Patricia Fussell, E. Department, who sponsored the Cancerettes, Majorettes, and Colorguards at school, also was actively involved outside her school hours as President and Producer of the Miss Brandon pageant, Chairman of the Florida Bandmaster Association — Twirling Division, and as an Official Miss America Preliminary judge. Serving on the Evolution vs. Creationism Committee and on the Board of Administration at First Methodist Church were special to Mr. Thomas Edwards, Science Department. He also found time to work as an official at sporting events. Mrs. Carolyn Crow, also of the Science Department, was the author of an environmental science book which had been adopted by the Hillsborough County Public School System and was used in all county high schools. Among the most active of all the women in the Brandon community was Mrs. Linda McAdam, English Department, who, in addition to her teaching duties, was the sponsor of the Emblem, Jaycettes, and Quill and Scroll at school. Mrs. McAdam was president of Junior Woman's Club of Brandon, vice president of Presidents' Roundtable, and an active member of many other community groups.

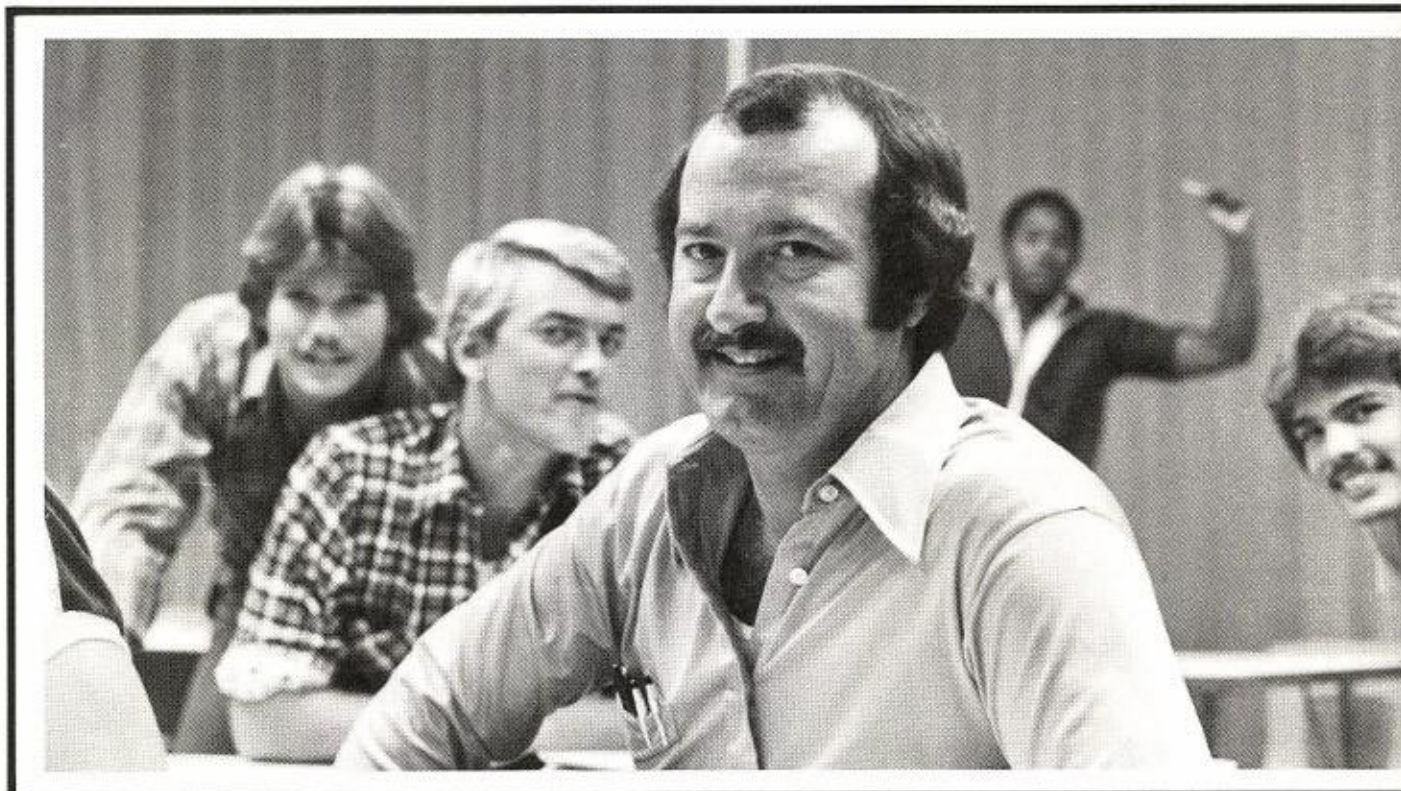

Many teachers were actively involved in their churches and in various civic groups. Still others attended classes at USF and Tampa U. working toward their Masters or Doctorates. Brandon's teachers were definitely busy, involved individuals.

Mrs. Peggy Osborn thinks of how Brandon used to be.

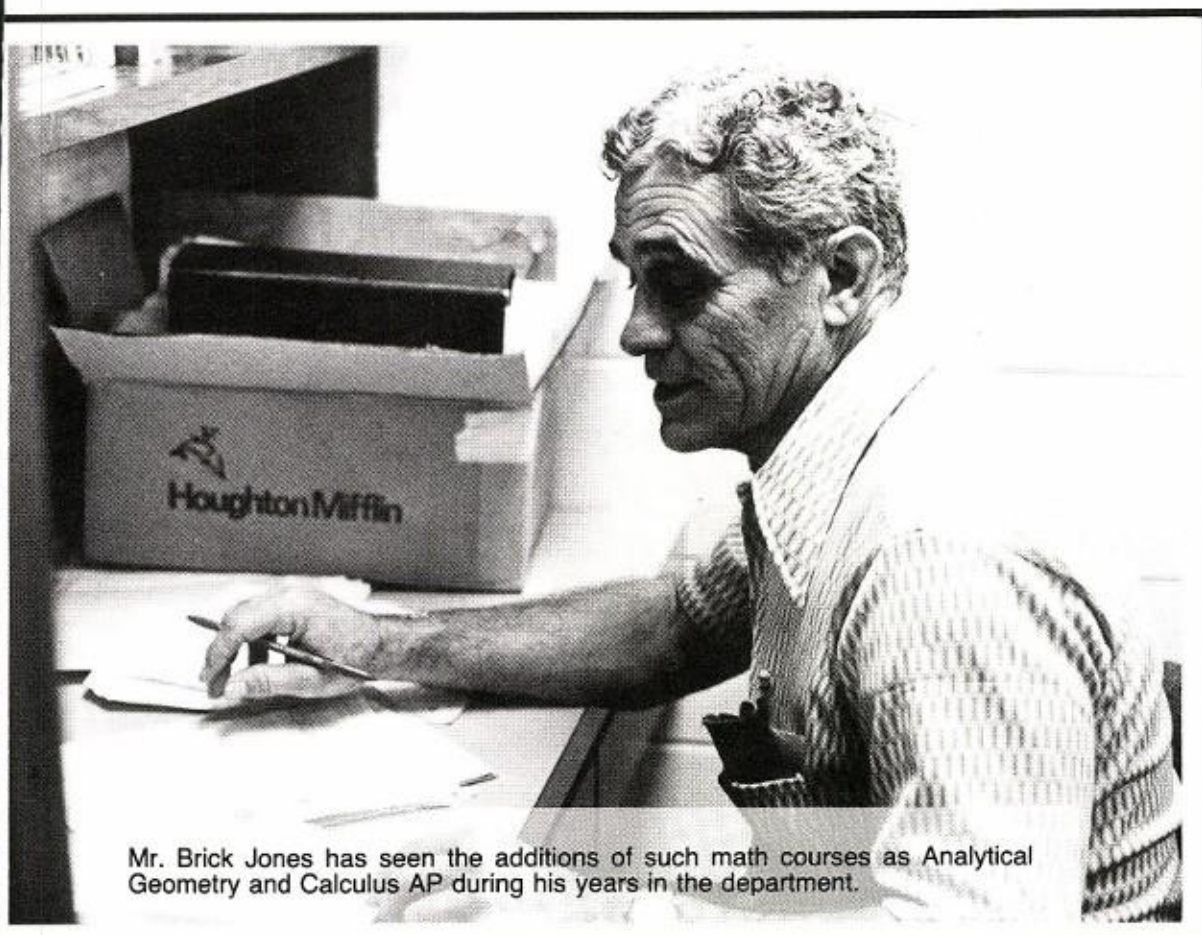

Testifying from firsthand experience on how the growth in enrollment has affected Guidance is Mrs. Carole Valdespino.

As a graduate of Brandon High School, Mr. John Jelsovsky feels a personal pride in our progress.

As head of her department, Mrs. Mercedes Hernandez personally influences the curriculum in Science.

Mr. Brick Jones has seen the additions of such math courses as Analytical Geometry and Calculus AP during his years in the department.

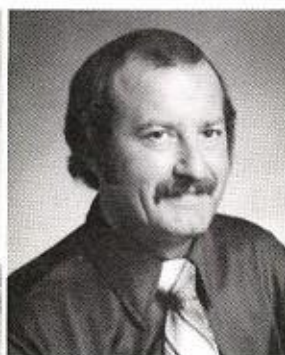

In a year of counting our successes and rejoicing in our reputation as a fine school, we were fortunate to have among us a group who might have been called our "historians". They were the teachers who had been at Brandon High School fifteen or twenty or more years and who could report firsthand on how things used to be and how they had changed. Among them were Mr. R.C. Jones, Mrs. Clara Crabb, Mrs. Peggy Osborn, Mrs. Mercedes Hernandez, Mrs. Carole Valdespino, and Mr. John Jelsovsky. Among the major changes the group had seen were the new school building and its addition, double sessions, the community's changing from rural to urban, the improved courses and course offerings, the growth from 35 teachers to over 190, and the huge growth of enrollment. All agreed on the same fine points of Brandon, such as, Brandon "has the best teaching atmosphere in the county," "I love the community and the students," and "I wouldn't have traded Brandon for any other school in the U.S.A."

Showing his school spirit, Deputy Tom Allen punks out!

Homecoming night Mr. John Burgess dresses up in his stylish hat.

At a glance, one might have wondered exactly what the requirements for becoming a faculty member at Brandon High School actually were. It was not unusual to hear uncontrolled laughter burst suddenly from a room, and students always looked forward to that certain period of the day when they knew they'd receive a good joke or story.

Down in room 333, Dorothy, from the land of Oz (Alias Mrs. Peggy Hill) could be found teaching leadership. In the school Resource Department the officer on duty was caught "punking out," and some Social Studies teachers were even known to sabotage each others' desks!

It could never be said that teachers at Brandon were dull or lacked school spirit. These instructors became an endless source of amusement, amazement and encouragement for their students. They became a part of our school years that would not, and could not be forgotten.

Going all out on Punk Day is Mrs. Patricia Hawkes.

Preparing lists of new additions to the Media Center is part of Mrs. Louella Daniels' job.

Sitting with perfect typing posture is Mrs. Betty Dinis from the Deans' Office.

Experience Has It

There was no doubt about it. Brandon High School was the most efficiently run high school in the county. That things ran so smoothly at Brandon was due in no small part to our clerical staff, four of whom had been there more than fifteen years. Mrs. Virginia Cornett, secretary to Assistant Principal John Owens, led the staff with thirty-two years of experience at Brandon; Mrs. Joelle Skinner, secretary to Principal Orlan Briant, was next most experienced with nineteen years. Both boasting seventeen years of service to Brandon were Bookkeeper, Mrs. Gloria Smelt, and Data Processing Clerk, Mrs. Marian Capitano. These four ladies had started work at Brandon when the school was much smaller and had adapted skillfully to their increased work loads as both the school and the community increased in size. Mrs. Cornett said that when she first came to Brandon High there were fewer than 1,000 students and the school held grades one through twelve. Mrs.

Smelt, who handled all the financial transactions for the school, said her work had tripled during her years here, but added that she loved her work and being at Brandon. Brandon's secretaries made it all look easy. Not only did they run their operation without mix-ups, they also could find time to help a student or a teacher with one of those special requests that seemed to be a part of every day in a school of over 4,000.

Night School enrollment records occupy the attention of Ms. Dorothy Pritchett.

Working To Serve You

Making sure each room was cleaned and organized and that the lunches were well-balanced were the jobs of the custodial and cafeteria staffs.

Cafeteria Manager, Mrs. Nina Lucas, arrived at 9:52 A.M. to begin preparing lunches for the approximately 400 students and 100 teachers who chose to purchase lunch at school. These meals were all homemade and were thoroughly enjoyed by the students and faculty.

Keeping every room and hallway spotless was the tremendous job tackled by the custodians. Under the direction of Mr. Bud Pitts, head custodian, each member of the staff performed his duties with ease. The jobs varied from day to day, but the staff completed each task easily. In addition to vacuuming every room, the chalkboards were washed and chairs neatly put into their places.

Whether it was picking up paper in the halls or serving a nutritious lunch, the custodial staff and cafeteria staff put forth their best effort to serve you, the students of Brandon High.

Manager Nina Lucas counts the day's total.

Academics

Proving to Candace Cherenko that grammar can be fun, Mrs. Gibson points out one of the funnier sentences in Warriner's as Jeffrey Carter watches.

Over the 66 years of our existence we had seen many changes: a new school building, new courses, new teachers to teach the courses, and, as the need arose, about anything new necessary to keep the largest high school in the state running at its peak.

At the beginning of the school year approximately 230 were a part of the staff of this huge, smooth-running machine. These people all had some part in the implementation of a curriculum which came close to offering something for everyone. Required courses for graduation included three years of English, two years of math, a science course, and history. These were each made available at four different degrees of difficulty — Compensatory Education for those who needed remediation to meet state requirements, Basic for those who desired a simplified version of the course, Regular for the vast majority of the school population, and AP for gifted students who wished to earn college credit for their efforts.

Much more than just required training was offered to us, though. From Science to Auto Mechanics to Social Studies, throughout every department of the school, we had opportunities for detailed study in the areas which we felt would be of the most use to us as individuals.

Brandon High School's Media Center provided many services to the students and faculty. The center served as a resource center, a learning center, and a recreational reading center. New students and all sophomores received instructions on how to use their center efficiently and correctly through an interesting orientation and presentation.

In addition to finding a book from the more than 30,000 volumes on the neatly organized shelves, many students found additional information by listening to audio tapes, viewing video tapes, watching slides, or finding information on microfilm. Our Media Center was well equipped with many types of audiovisual equipment and materials. The staff assisted teachers and students in making their own presentations, whether it was a simple slide presentation, a videotape of a project, or a more sophisticated sound-slide presentation. In addition to these services, photocopying, laminating, and binding equipment were available.

Brandon High School had five full-time Media Specialists to provide the students and the faculty with any assistance they needed in making full use of their multimedia center.

In the English Department a new program, developed for sophomores, was called the Reading Lab. It was used to develop not only the students' reading ability, but also self-awareness, independence, commitment, and responsibility. Also four new English teachers, Mrs. Letta Edwards, Mr. Jerry Thompson, Miss Chrissy Ignatuck, and Mrs. Terry Meiser, brought the English staff total to twenty-nine. English continued to offer such specialty courses as speech communication, fantasy literature, creative writing and advanced placement English for which one could earn college credit. Brandon students scored high in communications skills on state and national tests, a reflection of the fine program being offered in English.

Drama, a branch of the Fine Arts Department, consisted of two phases: Classes and productions. Classes taught students to act, pantomime, read plays, apply makeup, and learn about costuming. In the past few years, Drama had limited their performances to classroom presentations. In November, 1980, Mr. James Rayfield, Drama Coach, returned our budding actors and actresses to the center of the community's attention with their spectacular production of "M.A.S.H."

The Media Center, English Department, and Drama had come a long way since the beginning back in 1914; and Brandon High was very proud of those departments.

Computers, calculators, and compasses were used by the students in Brandon High's math classes. Courses included Algebra I, Algebra II, geometry, trigonometry, computer math, college review, and calculus. These classes, and others, taught students the necessary techniques to further their mathematic abilities.

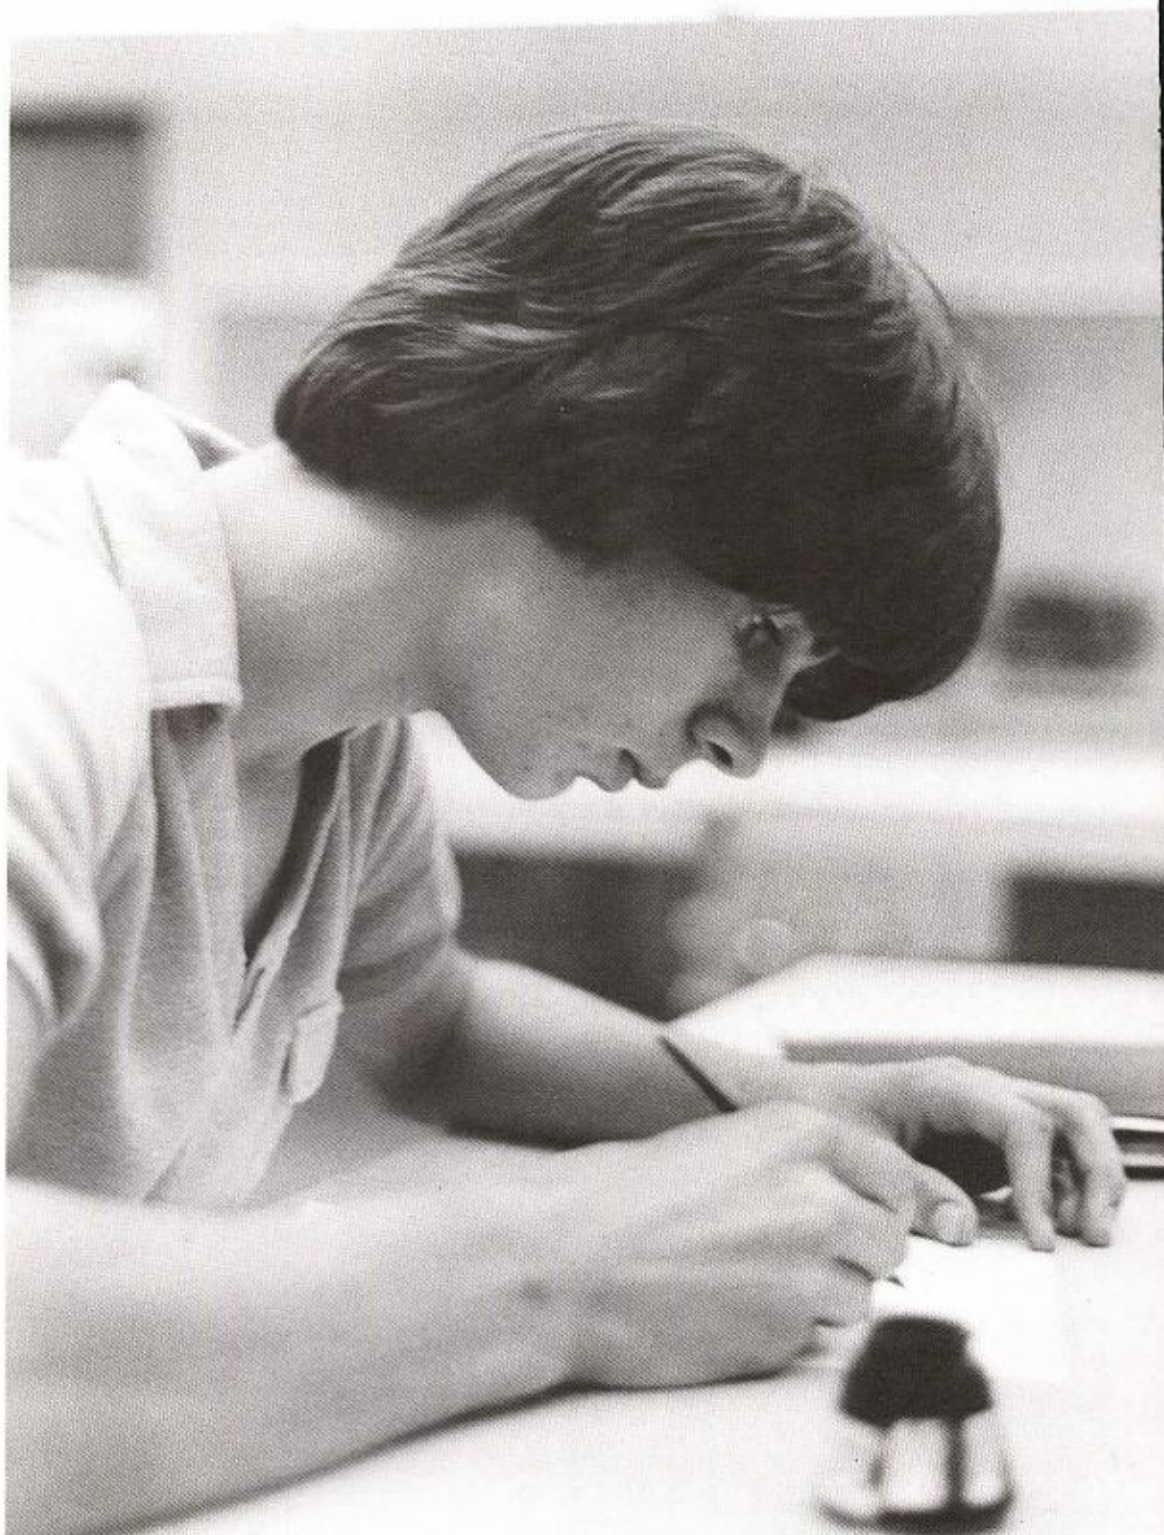

This year art played an important role for our creative students. Through classes like ceramics, arts and crafts, and fine arts, students learned to apply the basic principles of design. This was the first year at Brandon for two new teachers, Mrs. Linda Lilly and Miss Michelle Russell. Mrs. Lilly taught the regular art classes and was sponsor for the art club. Miss Russell taught ceramics and the arts and crafts classes. Both teachers brought new styles and methods to us which proved helpful.

At Home and Abroad

As we grew older we began to realize the complexities of our world and to recognize the ways we look at our world. Foreign Language and Social Studies provided us with two different approaches to seeing and understanding the people of the world.

Because two years of a foreign language were required to attend some colleges, many students took Spanish or French, but some more daring students tackled German or Latin.

Some students became involved in the language and took more than the required two years. Spanish was offered for five years, as were German and French. Latin was offered for four years. Portuguese was also offered, but there were no takers.

Latin, for the first time in many years, was available not only in the morning, but also in the afternoon session and boasted an enrollment sufficient to justify the creation of an additional class.

Spanish, the most popular in terms of enrollment, achieved special recognition at state contest when BHS students placed 7th, with 1 Bueno, 5 Superiors and 10 Sobresalientes, the highest award of all.

The French Declamation went equally as well with the students placing 8th.

French and Spanish both offered conversational courses which taught the basic language.

Some BHS students' families opened their homes this year to foreign exchange students. One of these students was Beatrice Trexler from West Germany, who liked it so well in Brandon during the summer program, that she decided to stay and complete her junior year at Brandon. Beatrice was staying with the family of Jonna Stack.

The Seniors at Brandon had the opportunity to learn about democracy through the required P.A.D. course, preparing them for their adult responsibilities.

Other classes such as law studies, which dealt with all aspects of the law, and Family Life, which dealt with the problems and solutions to our way of life, were also offered as social studies credits.

Many history teachers took advantage of the political debates, which were abundant during the 1980 election year, to demonstrate democracy and to help clarify our political system.

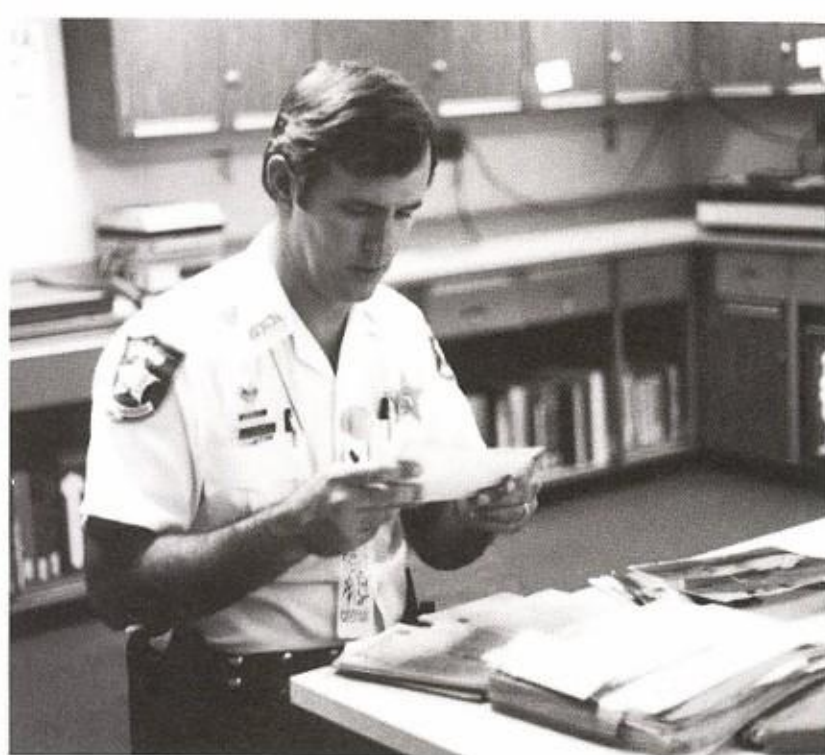

Deputy Tom Allyn, school resource officer, frequently spoke to Social Studies classes about the problems of child abuse, teenage delinquency, drugs, and various other topics.

Some of the teachers held special events to make their classes more interesting. For example, Mr. Mike Impe supervised an archeological dig at Brandon High on September 17 with a group of students from his classes, and they discovered many interesting objects.

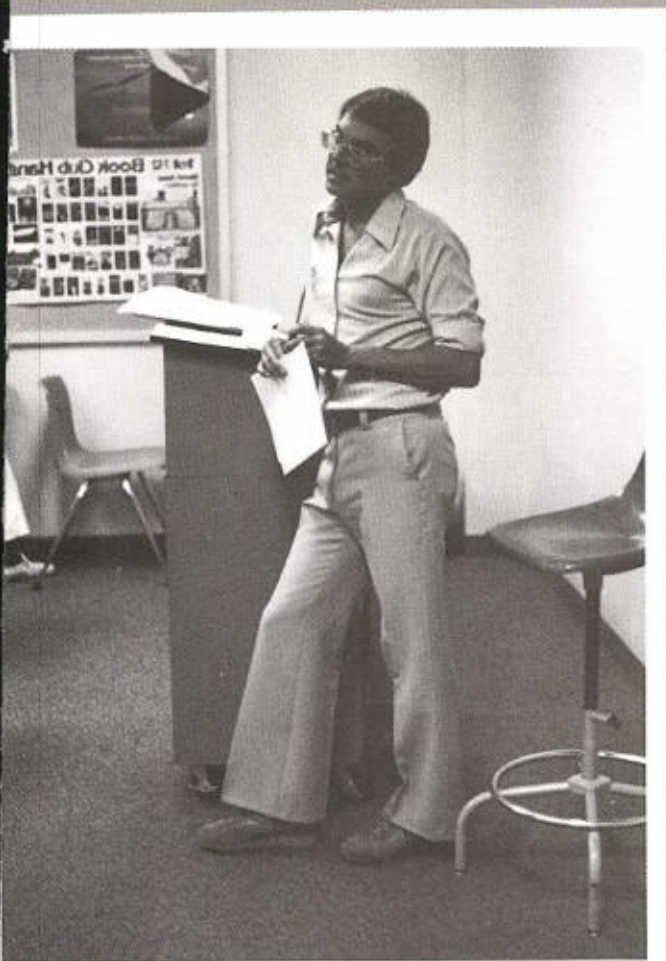

Whether we were comparing word origins or economic systems, whether we were deciphering the language of another nation or the language of politics, we gained from the two departments knowledge which would enrich our future lives.

Another crop of inquisitive botanists and physicists supervised test tubes of bubbling concoctions and peered into microscopes to discover the secrets of cellular structure. Out on the drill field, future military scientists applied their knowledge of precision to a marching routine. Careful attention to detail characterized the operations of both Science and ROTC.

The Science Department, headed by Mrs. Mercedes Hernandez, welcomed newcomers to the field to Eagle Country. The newcomers were Mr. Pete Knox, Ms. Jessie Tanner, Mr. Jeff Farber, Ms. Susan Johnson, Mr. Thomas Levija and Mrs. Judy Mann. Advanced photography, AP biology and AP chemistry were just a few of the specialty courses offered. The biggest addition to the Science Department was a TRS-80 computer which would save the teachers many hours of endless nights grading papers. The Reserve Officers Training Corps unit at Brandon High was designated as an Honor Unit which ranked in the top twenty percent of all units in the United States. Selected cadets performed duties in personnel, leadership, security, operations and training of all new cadets. Brandon was noted for its outstanding drill team, colorguards and rifle teams. The ROTC unit had a National Rifle Association Chapter and a scholastic honorary club (Sabers).

Whether he wanted only to complete a requirement or whether he sought detailed knowledge, any Brandon student could expect thorough instructions from Science and ROTC.

Tuning And Toning

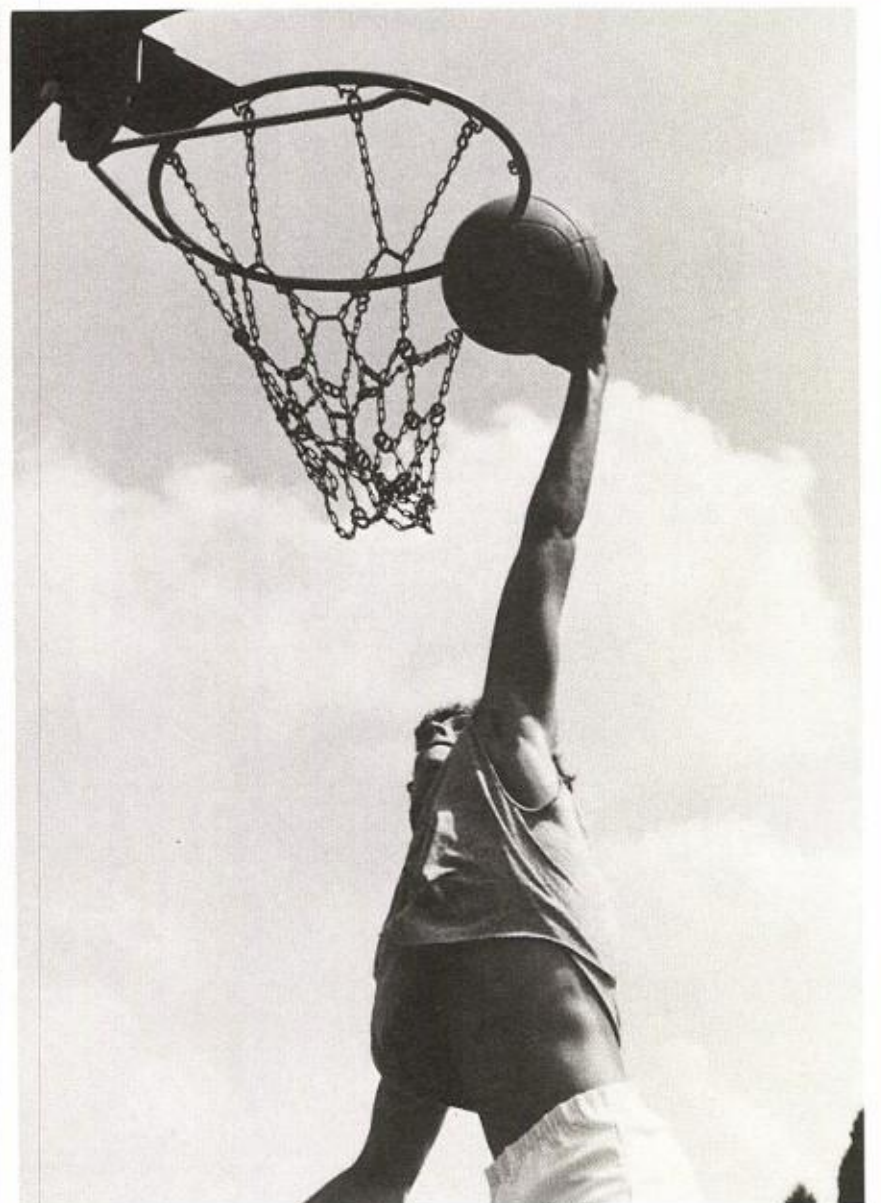

They rehearsed for hours trying to perfect their musical talent. They practiced marching in the scorching sun every day. They earned superior ratings in contests throughout the state of Florida. Who were they? They were the many students who were involved in Concert Choir, Band, Orchestra, Aquilla, and Stage Band of the Brandon High School Music Department. This year the Concert Choir presented many concerts among which were Junior High Night, PTSA Christmas Concert, Brandon High School and King High School Concert Night, and a concert with East Bay High School. Junior High Night was a concert in which all area junior high school choruses participated in the concert. The PTSA Christmas Concert included the Brandon High School Concert Choir and the Orchestra. This year the guys in the Orchestra wore tuxedos in their performances. Superior in all performances, the Orchestra was invited to play at many school and community events such as the Calendar Couple Contest and the state contest at Winter Haven. In addition to planning and performing halftime shows at football games, the Band also participated in other activities over the year. Some of these were the Gasparilla Day Parade, The Strawberry Festival Parade, and a Joint Concert with Chamberlain and Leto High Schools. Although the schedule in Music was hectic, the students, led by the talented and experienced Music Department staff, made the work look easy.

The Physical Education Department also had a variety of things to do and a variety of reasons for doing them. A person taking PE could participate in football, volleyball, tennis, softball, basketball, and track. Students participated in PE because it was a requirement for graduation, because personal physical improvement was their goal, or just because they enjoyed participating in various types of sports. There were also special classes of gymnastics, weight lifting, and conditioning. At Brandon, as well as across the nation, the increased public awareness of the value of physical fitness had made us more aware of the value of PE instruction.

Whether students were perfecting their talents or just fulfilling their requirements, Brandon High School offered the best curriculum possible in music and in physical education.

Coach Jeff DeCola instructs students on their driving skills.

We sometimes took driving an automobile for granted, but the Auto Mechanics and Drivers' Education Departments helped us to appreciate the automobile. Drivers' Education taught students the fine art of maneuvering a car properly and safely. Under the watchful eyes of Coaches Jeff DeCola, Taylor Stokes, Frank Vining, and Mr. Ray McCoy, we learned how to drive expertly.

If a problem arose, Auto Mechanics was sure to solve it. Diligent students learned correct ways of maintaining and repairing the automobile. Mr. James Duffy directed students in understanding the car, lending a helping hand if needed.

A great deal of patience was learned in these two departments as was new knowledge. Most of all, Drivers' Education and Auto Mechanics brought us into a better perspective with the automobile.

Preparing For Possible Careers

From down the hall one could hear a range of noises coming from the industrial arts classes. If he investigated, he'd find a room full of noisy machines. Both the wood and metal shops had similar machines. In these classes, the students are taught about the different materials, processes and machines. For example, students learned how to use the lathe for processes like knurling, center drilling and shaping. This past year a vertical band saw was added to the metal shop. Printing was one of our most important means of mass communication. Tom Oyales was in charge of Brandon's print shop where he taught students the fundamentals of the press, basic off-set printing, type setting, and the dark room procedures. This course prepared students for possible careers in the printing industry.

For personal knowledge and for possible use in future careers, the training we received in Home Economics and in Health Occupations was extremely valuable. Mrs. Barbara Redenbo and Mr. Ed Lucker provided the instruction in Health and, in addition, were the coordinators for school health-related activities such as Blood Drive and Health-O-Rama. Students looking forward to becoming dental, laboratory, and veterinary technicians, along with those wanting to be nurses, medical artists, and respiratory therapists, took health classes as they prepared to enter the field of medicine. In addition to classroom instruction, students got a taste of on-the-job experience as they routinely took blood pressures for cosmetology customers and faculty members and as they performed various functions as a part of Health-O-Rama. The general public had traditionally considered home economics to be a course for girls who planned to be housewives when they grew up, but modern home economics offered much more. The practical homemaking techniques were still taught, but to boys as well as to girls. At Brandon, students were now offered the detailed study of nutrition along with the practice of actual laboratory work in foods. In a course called Housing and Home Furnishings, we learned about the structure and cost of a house, the elements and principles of design in housing and home furnishings, and the various careers and job opportunities available in the housing industry. Still another popular course, Family Economics, offered a study of economics as it related to all aspects of family living. Students graduated from Brandon High School well prepared with knowledge of good home and health practices.

Education . . . Night and Day

For those with special plans for their futures, Brandon offered courses from 7:15 A.M. until 9:00 P.M. when the first class of morning session began to the last hour of Night School.

Did you think that all high school students were teenagers? Not true at Brandon High. The students that attended the Night School Program included some teenagers, businessmen, housewives, and even grandmothers.

Night School at Brandon High gave adults an opportunity to earn an adult high school diploma or just to gain extra knowledge. The program offered many courses in different fields of study. One very interesting course was prenatal care. The students were soon-to-be parents.

A most important class, G.E.D. (General Equivalency Diploma) refresher, prepared students for taking the G.E.D. exam. If the student passed the exam he would be awarded a high school diploma. A variety of other courses were offered, including English as a Second Language (E.S.L.), bookkeeping, Spanish, current world affairs and personal shorthand, just to name a few.

The Night School Honors Award was given to those graduating seniors whose grade point average was 3.0 or better. The Night School Principal's Award was given each semester to the most outstanding graduating senior.

Many students concentrated on specific career plans while still in regular high school.

Business Education offered some out of the ordinary classes. A very unusual class was clerical office practice. It was a course for students already skilled in typing, who were preparing themselves for careers in the business world. As the students became skilled in using the typewriter, adding machine, and transcriber, they began a company and set the room up like an office. The company was called Project Invest. The students sold insurance to the Driver's Education students. The student that sold the most insurance would be given an award from an insurance company in the community.

Both Business Education and Night School left us better prepared for what was ahead.

FASHION FLAIR IS HERE...

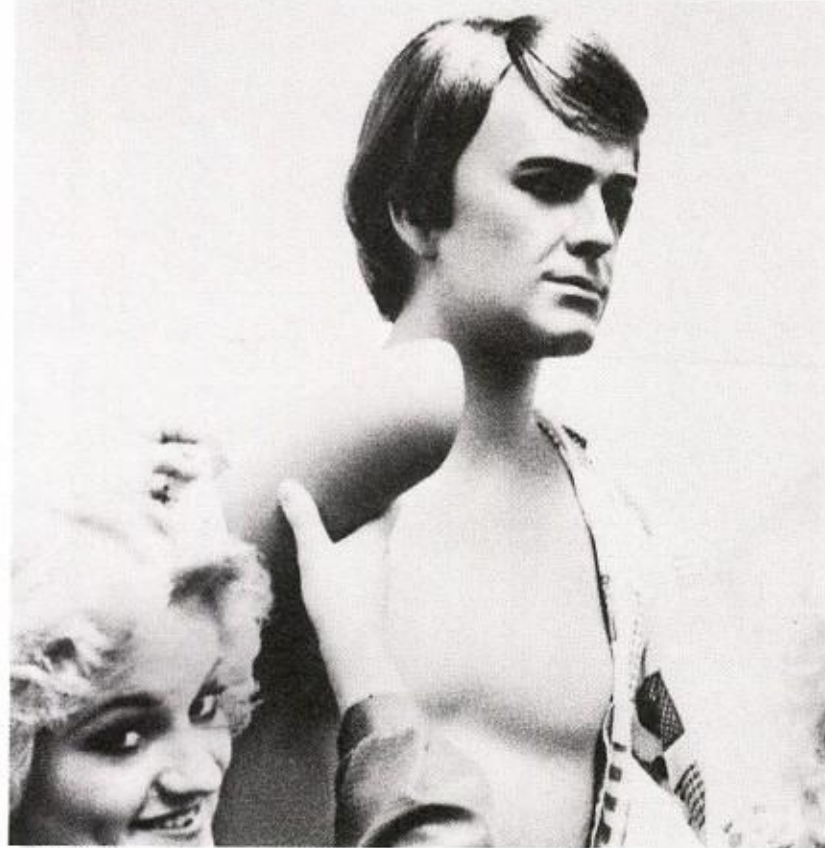

Fashion Marketing was another class which prepared students for careers.

Elaine Miller, Jeannie Petis, and Debbie Muley practice using the adding machine and typewriter.

Principal Gary McBride watches as Linda Aibel, Debbie Carter and Coral Gonzalez study.

Kenneth and Kaye Tate and Randy and Mary Beth McNeil prepare themselves for the times when their babies arrive.

Learning English as a second language takes plenty of practice as Nga Vo Thi, Marta Mangia and Maria Ballester demonstrate.

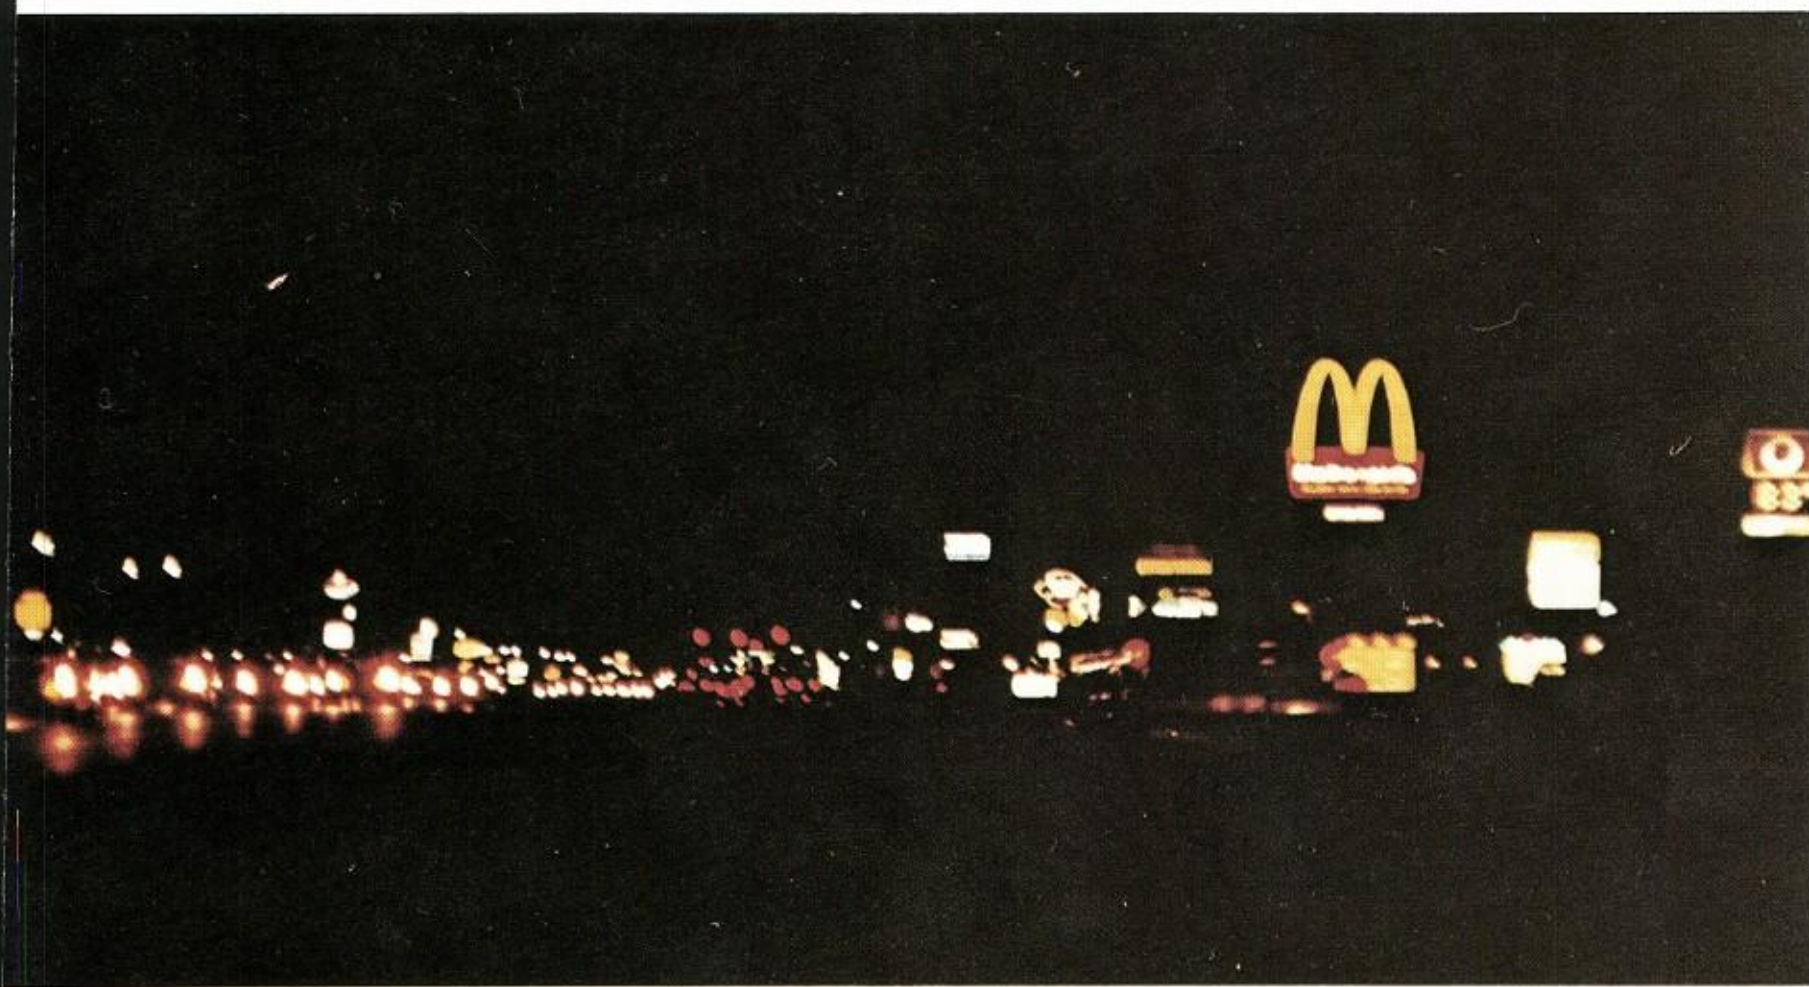

Mrs. Janet Hammon explains Spanish to students wishing to learn another language.

gins and Julie Dearth finish a "thick crust" at a local pizza restaurant.

Bright lights and lots of life are typical of Brandon at night.

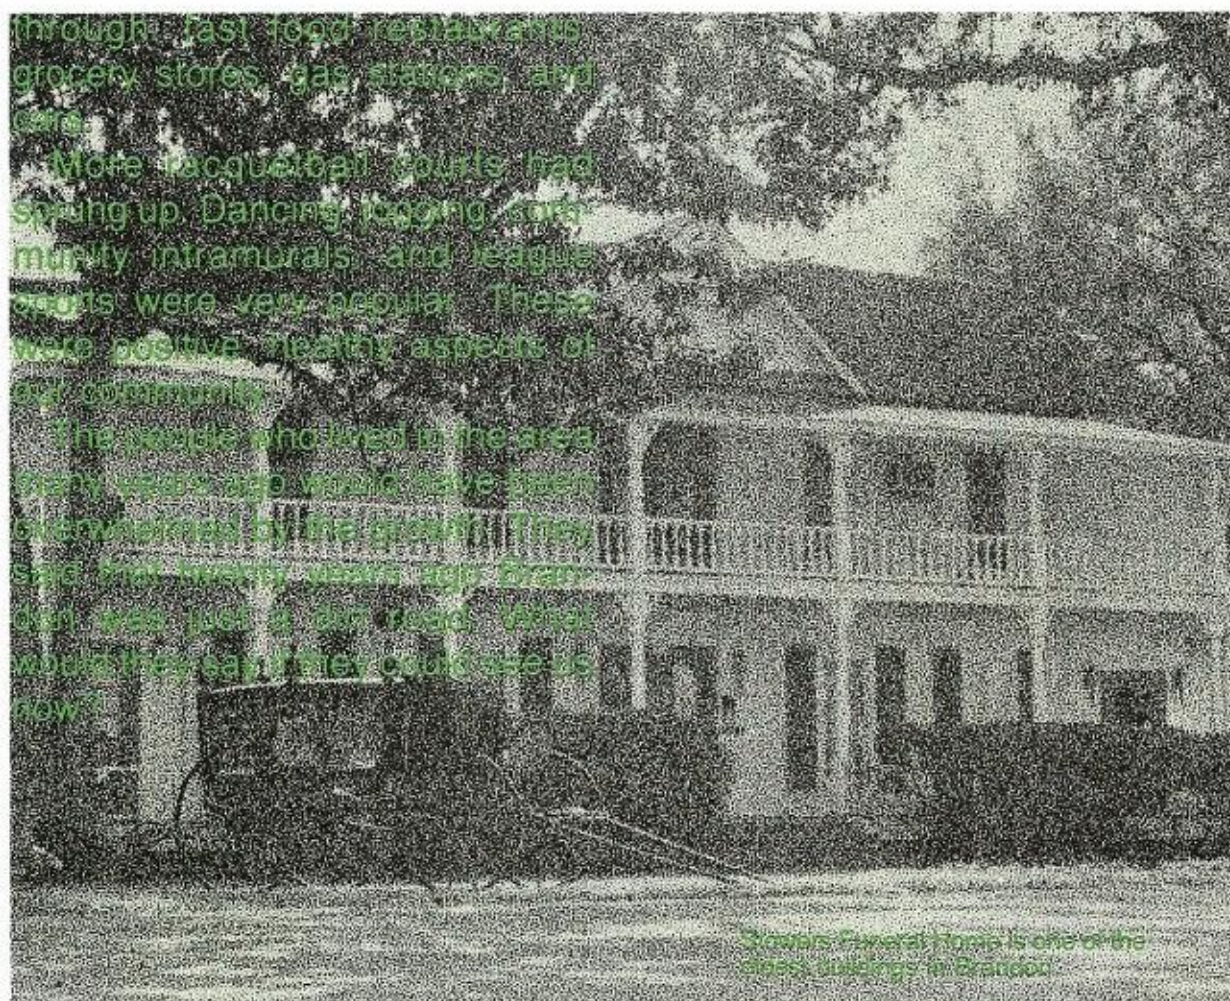

Brandon was considered a very extraordinary community. There was a strong feeling of pride and unity among its members. This was why it had been so successful. The various leaders and merchants had been supportive to Brandon, especially to the high school. They helped to carry Eagle spirit throughout the community.

It was unbelievable how Brandon had grown and kept growing. With the new I-75 bypass built, more and more people were attracted to our fair city. This led to an endless number of drive-through, fast food restaurants, grocery stores, gas stations, and more.

More racquetball courts had sprung up. Dancing, jogging, community intramurals, and league sports were very popular. These were positive, healthy aspects of our community.

The people who lived in the area many years ago would have been overwhelmed by the growth. They said that twenty years ago Brandon was just a dirt road. What would they say if they could see us now?

Donald,

Hi. I am real glad that we got to be friends this year. We had a lot of fun times in art!
You are a very nice guy! I wish you the best of luck in everything you do in life.
I know everything will turn out O.K. Good luck to you,

Sharon Pollett

behind this wondering season there's got to be a new reason, and if you're ready to see now take a look at Jesus

through this world I go now with love and courage I go now, and if you want a good reason put your trust in Jesus

Are You Living With A Purpose Or Searching For One?

God loves you, and has a wonderful plan for your life.

For God loved the world so much that He gave his only son so that anyone who believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life.

(John 3:16)

Man is sinful and separated from God.

For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God.

(Romans 3:23)

Jesus Christ is God's only provision for man's sin.

Christ died for our sins . . . He was buried . . . He rose on the third day . . .

(I Corinthians 15:3,4)

Jesus said to him, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man comes to the Father, but through me."

(John 14:6)

We must each receive Jesus as Savior and Lord, then we can experience an abundant and meaningful life.

"I came that they might have life, and might have it abundantly."

(John 10:10)

We receive Christ by personal invitation.

*"Behold, I stand at the door and knock;
if anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come into him."*

(Revelation 3:20)

Jesus, I admit that I am a sinner, I accept your forgiveness. I turn from my sins. Come into my life as my Lord and Savior. Thank you Jesus for giving me a new life.

 Excerpt from the Readers Digest "To Remember Me"

The day will come when my body will be upon a white sheet neatly tucked under four corners of a mattress located in a hospital usually occupied with living and the dying. At a certain moment a doctor will determine that for all intentions and purpose my life has stopped.

When that happens do not attempt to install artificial life into my body by the use of a machine, and don't call this my death bed. Let it be called the Bed of Life, and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

Give my sight to the man who has never seen a sunrise, a babies face or love in the eyes of a woman. Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain. Give my blood to the teenager who has pulled from the wreckage of a car, so that he might live to see his grandson play. Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist from week to week. Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells if necessary, and let them grow so that someday a speechless boy will shout a crack of a bat and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her window.

Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow. If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses and all prejudice against my fellow man.

Give my sins to the devil. Give my soul to God. If by chance you wish to remember me do it in a kind deed or word to someone who needs it. If you do all I have asked I will live forever.

Good luck and best wishes to the BETA officers of '82.

Senior Bob Dorsey is having a massive pulmonary arrest.

In many ways, this was our finest hour. We had grown from a tiny, unknown county school to a giant in the state, and even in the nation. Our reputation, however, hinged not on our size, but on our accomplishments. The name Brandon became synonymous with leadership as we moved to the helm in all areas of school life.

We began the year with records to uphold. Principal Orlan Briant chaired the Hillsborough County Council of High School Principals. Our Athletic Department was honored with the Carey F. McDonald Award for the most successful athletic program in Florida Class 4A high schools. In the foreign language area, the Spanish Department hosted the Florida State Spanish Conference. Orchestra had won seven consecutive superiors; it was rated the best in the state.

Mr. Earl Pate was the clinic conductor for the All-County Chorus. The string quartet was asked to play for the Tampa Art Museum. Mu Alpha Theta received the District Mathematics League Award in competition among all the high schools in Florida.

Alpha of Mu Alpha Theta won the Hillsborough County Math Bowl competition for the fourth year in a row. The Business Department launched an innovative program called Project InVEST sponsored by the insurance industry. Student participants in the two hour class worked in a simulated office setting in which the teacher was the office manager. At the end of the year, the National Organization of Women in Insurance and the Independent Agents Association gave an award to the outstanding "employer" of Project InVEST. Many departments offered advanced placement programs in which outstanding students could earn college credit. In these and many more areas, Brandon High was the leader not simply because it was big, but because it was a school whose people cared about quality.

Isaac Malave, Lisa Hartley and Jim Schiefelbein prepare to host the Florida State Spanish Conference.

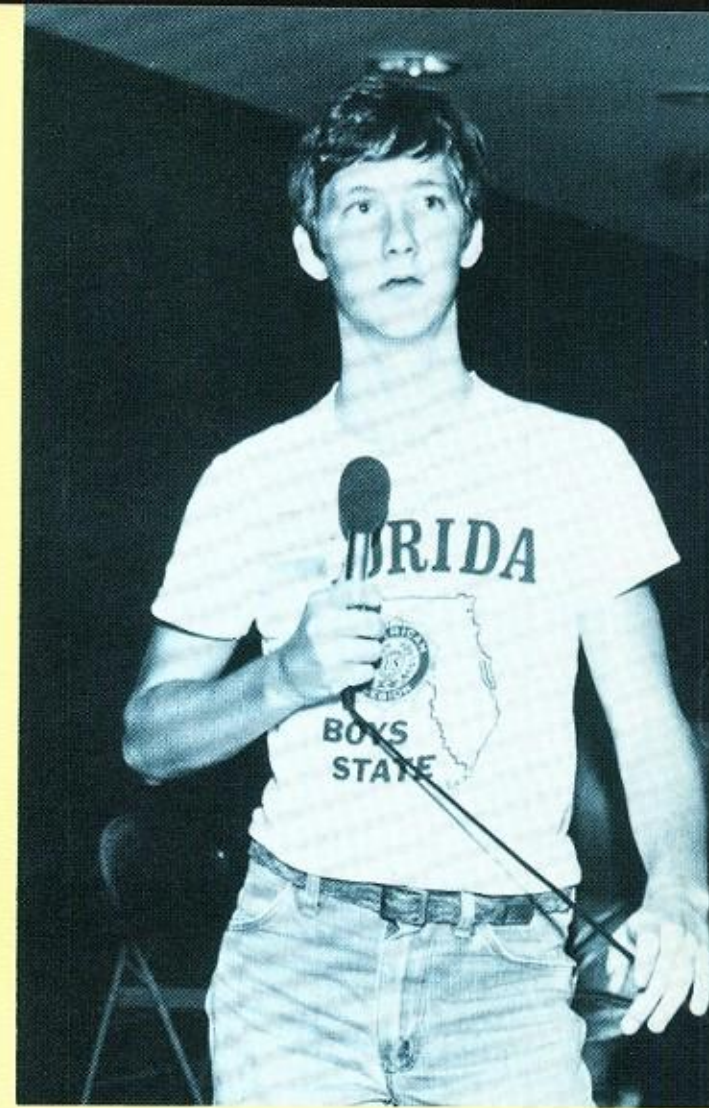

Linda Zeitler's long hours of practice contribute to the success of the award-winning B.H.S. marching band.

Brandon students make themselves known across America. This group went all the way to Colorado for the National Association of Student Councils Convention. (Paul Vazquez, Nick Chapman, Ginny Granstrand, Kelli Reed, Mary Johnson and Sam Schubert)

Having first earned the honor of attending Boys' State in Tallahassee, Mike Davis speaks to delegates from across the state.

Moving Into Leadership Positions

Mr. Orlan Briant is not only the principal of Brandon High, but he is also the chairman of the Hillsborough County Council of High School Principals.

Each year a very small percentage of the nation's high school students earn the distinction of being National Merit Semi-Finalists. Brandon High School is honored with these semi-finalists: FIRST ROW: Scott Specht, Mary Johnson, Christine Lisman, Todd Disotell. BACK ROW: Russell Kaplan, Robert Gendreau, Bruce Irwin. Not Pictured: Andy Cherry.

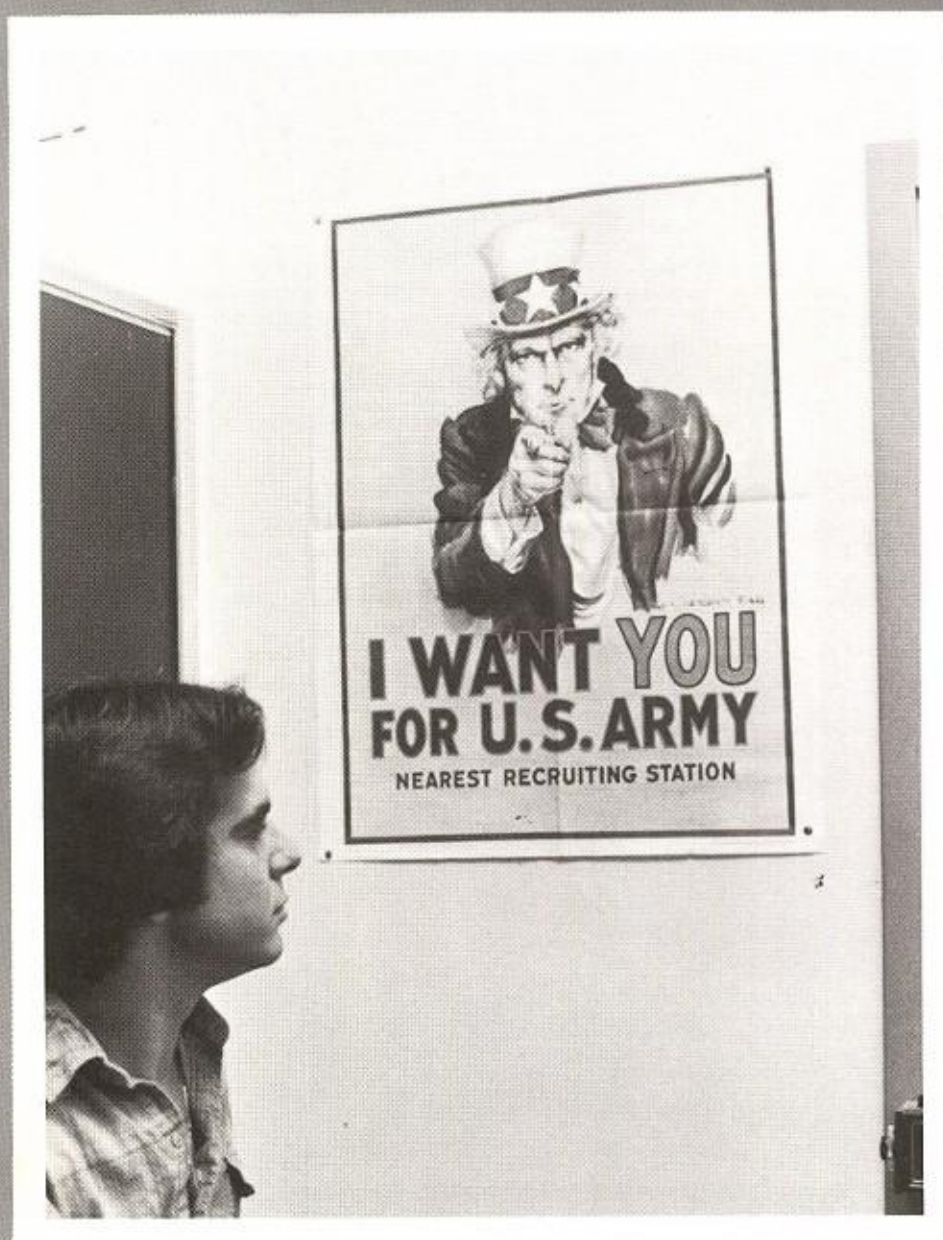

Former hostage, William Daughtery is reunited with his family.

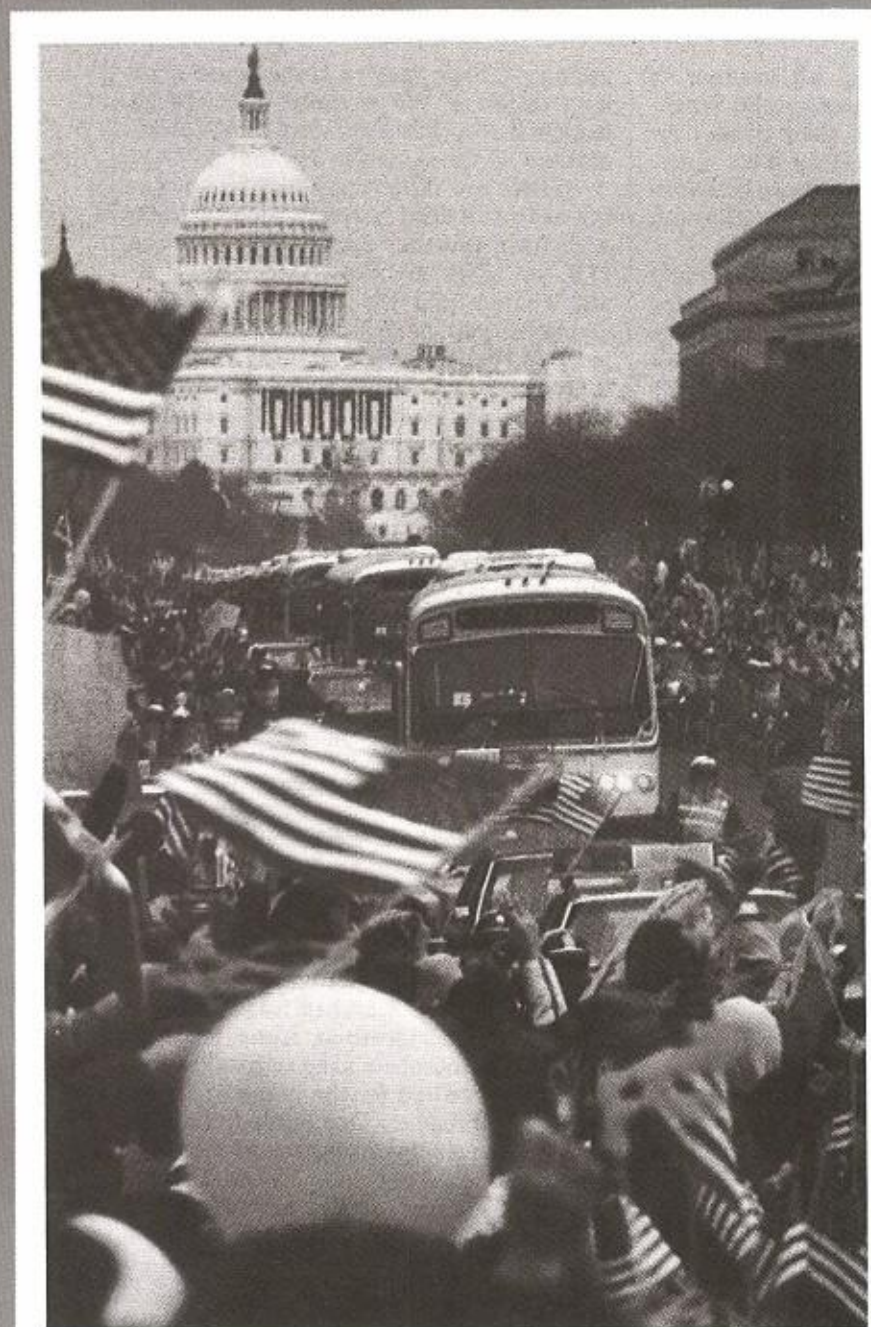

John Lennon, member of the Beatles, is missed as fans recall earlier years.

A Year Filled With Changes

Uncle Sam's poster makes the draft a reality for Brackie Simmons.

Flags and yellow ribbons say, "We're glad to have you back," to the freed Americans.

As we approached the final days of our senior year, we realized that many things in our world were rapidly changing. Ronald Reagan had become the President. He was not only the oldest man to ever hold office, but he was also the first actor and divorced person to receive the title. Just minutes after President Reagan was innaugurated, our fellow Americans, the fifty-two hostages in Iran, were freed. Admist much celebration and many tears, we welcomed a new President to office and knew that the hostages were on a plane leaving Iran after 444 days of captivity.

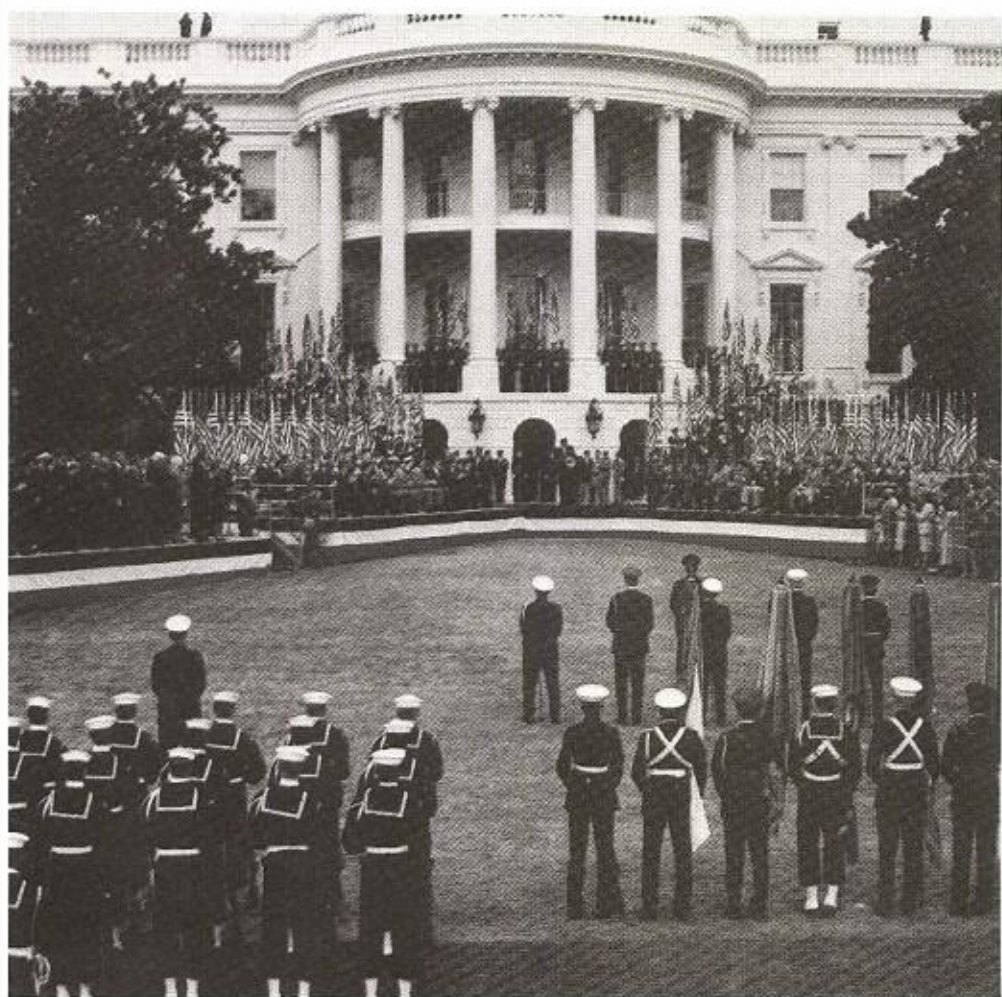

There was also a period of grief during our senior year. John Lennon, a former member of the Bea-ties, was killed outside his apartment in New York. Worldwide, teenagers and adults alike mourned as they remembered Lennon's music which had been an inspiration to them for many years. Radio stations all over played Lennon music in symphathy for his wife, fellow Beatles and fans.

On the local scene, spring brought about promise of some big changes for Brandon. State and county approval for a new high school in Brandon having been gained, officials began the search for the perfect site. Many quipped that the perfect spot would be right next door to Brandon High. Most estimates put the completion date for the new school at around 1985.

Along with these national and local changes, we noticed changes in our personal lives. As we were fitted for caps and gowns, underwent Love Week in February, and planned prom, gradnight and graduation, we realized that we were approaching the doorway to a whole new life, our lives as adults. Just as in the rest of our year, we were filled with mixed emotions. We were scared and excited, happy and sad. Things were changing, and we were learning to accept these changes and decide where we would go from here.

Soon after they return, President Ronald Reagan formally welcomes the hostages home.

Heading in the Right Direction

To Byron Castleman, who hopes for a career in the military, an appointment to West Point would be a dream come true.

Like many other students, Heidi Christian studies for the Scholastic Aptitude Test. Most colleges require SAT scores prior to granting admission.

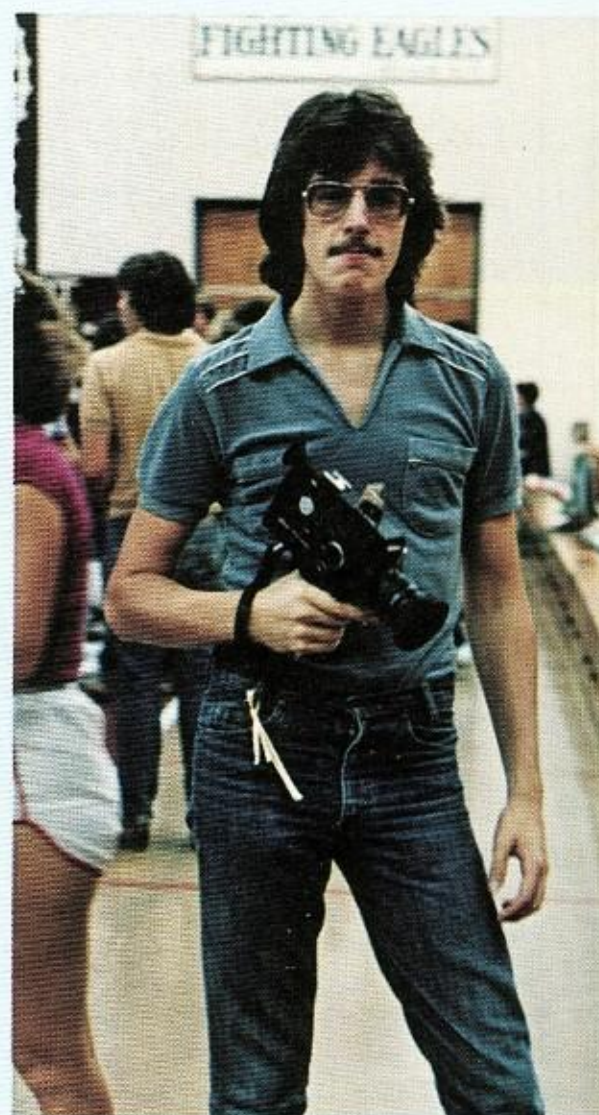

The question that came to mind as the Class of 1981 approached its final high school days was, "Where are we going?" For some this question was difficult to answer, but many others knew exactly what they planned to do. At Brandon High School the seniors' future plans included joining the military life, starting a business, and pursuing a college education. Some would remain in Florida, while others would move out of state. Yet, in every field there were seniors with challenging plans for the future.

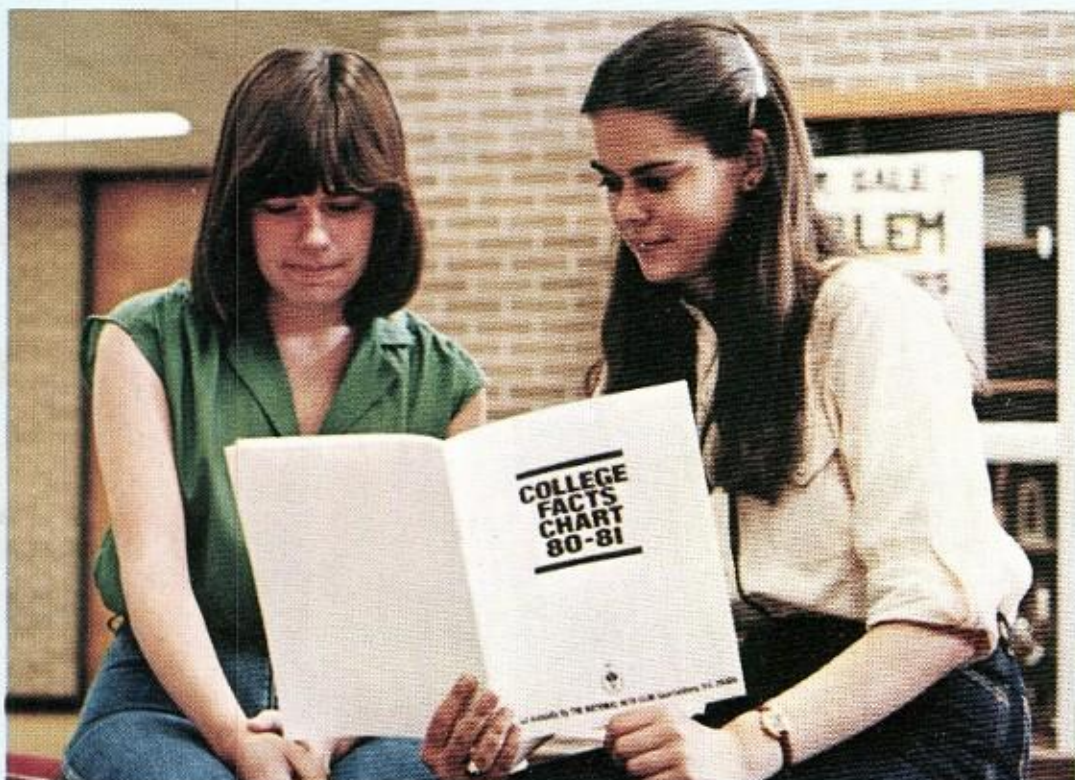

Renee Szulerecki takes advantage of college information books available in the guidance office.

Susan Palumbo smiles proudly at her hair-dressing accomplishments. Cosmetology students take state board exams and graduate prepared for entering their field.

Cameraman Scott Specht takes part in film-making for his own company, Spectrum Films.

Sharing a book of college facts, Olive Thompson and Laura Thomas verify some information.

Kelly Thompson takes care of preliminaries before she can pursue a career in medicine.

The 1981 edition of the Eagle was published by Hunter Publishing Company of Winston-Salem, North Carolina. 2,600 copies of the yearbook were printed using the offset lithography process. This volume, Brandon's 41st edition, contains 448 pages, including 62 pages printed in four-color and 128 pages printed with a single spot color. The end sheets are 100 lb. stock printed with 222C. The trim size of this year's book is 9"x12" and 80 lb. Hunter Matte paper was used. The colors used in the 1981 Eagle include 277U, 165C, 354C, 321C, 246C, 465C, 464C, 569C, 292C, 300C, 072C, 102C, 149C, 876C, 221C, and 485C. Type styles included Helvetica with Italics, Times Roman Bold, and Shelley Allegro Script. Headlines were 36pt.; copy on opening, closing, and division pages was 12 pt.; all other copy was 10 pt. Captions were 8 pt. Guide words in the index were 18 pt. Photography was by Eagle Staff photographers and Bryn Alan Studios. Cutouts from national news magazines were used in the opening and closing sections of the book. The photograph on page 6 of President Carter and Joseph Garcia was borrowed from Mr. Garcia's personal collection. The 1981 Eagle cover was designed by Eagle Staff Business Manager, Diane Boston, assisted by Thomas Preziosi, Honors Editor. The eagle's head on the end sheets was designed by Bob Dorsey. The estimated total cost of publishing the 1981 Eagle was $37,544.00.

Although the year was filled with hectic deadlines, missing pictures, and lost copy sheets, we should also remember goofing around, before school talks, and deadline parties. We were an organization; we were friends; and we were the 1981 Eagle Staff. You will always be in my memory, and from the bottom of my heart, I thank you.

Editor-in-Chief

Blake,

It has been exactly 1 month and 1 week!
Well, here's to it! You are my favorite person to be with so stick around! You're pretty crazy but that's good because you're never boring.
I know I get in my moods but somehow you always manage to put up with me. I don't know what I would do without ya!
Thanks for all of the good times & memories you have given me. You have added your own special touch to my life and where ever you go and whatever you do, you'll never be forgotten. I'll always remember the prom, and the beach and the movies and even when ~~us~~ we just sat around and talked, but most of all I will always remember you just the way you are!

P.S. Be good at Beach week!

Love Always,

Nancy

Donald, you are a very crazy person. You have made Art a joy. And I love to see what the hell you're going to come up with next - seeing you at prom -
I thank you for walking me thru the & Salad Bar - Take Care a Great summer! Love and have good luck and all that shit!
Love ya -
This is for

Donald, has
 It really year, been a terrific year, but it my senior year, I'm really going went by so quickly, but one thing is for sure; I'm forget McDonald's to miss you. Don't forget McDonald's and how we kinda sorta skipped the period. And don't forget me, I won't forget you!
 Love Always
 Jerry c/o 8/

Donald,
 I'm really glad that I met you in FAD this year. You are a really great guy & we had some pretty good times together. Too bad we didn't keep our friendship better well, anyway, it's been fun & we a lot better with you, finding all out of our world things & hiding another the best. (pitting) things & things! It like a war out of I'm sure you'll do in what you want to do. But just in case
 I'll stick always!
 Always
